Preface

A little more than a century has passed since the discovery of the Amarna letters. At first virtually unique and so extraordinary that even their genuineness was seriously questioned, these letters over the years have gradually acquired context and perspective. As subsequent discoveries made clear, the Amarna letters reflect a cosmopolitan culture, a "cuneiform culture," that throughout most of the second millennium B.C. extended from the mountains to the east of Assyria and Babylonia, across the Fertile Crescent, over into Asia Minor.

Though seen now as only part of a much larger picture, the Amarna letters still remain documents of the highest importance and still form, as one cuneiformist once put it so enthusiastically, "une des collections les plus précieuses du monde." This importance derives mainly from the rich evidence they provide for the social and political history of Syria and Palestine in the fourteenth century B.C. They may, therefore, be read as a kind of preface to biblical history, and it is for this reason, above all, that they have been, and continue to be, the subject of the most diligent inquiry and reflection. Indeed, one can safely predict that as long as the Bible retains in our culture its unique importance, the Amarna letters will command the serious attention of historian and exegete.

Over the years, too, there has been great progress in our understanding of these letters. Collations of the originals by various scholars have yielded a more accurate reading of the text. Grammatical and lexical studies have vastly extended our grasp of the language of the letters. Unfortunately, however, since J. A. Knudtzon's magisterial edition, in 1907-15, of the letters known at that time, the results of all this progress have remained scattered in dictionaries, monographs, dissertations, anthologies, articles, and footnotes. Except to the narrow specialist, they have been practically inaccessible.

A long-standing desideratum, therefore, and one with ever-increasing urgency, has been a translation of the entire corpus that reflects the advances of the last seventy-five years. It was to meet this demand that the present work was undertaken.

A translation: that is my main objective, and, I might almost say, my only objective. The Introduction aims principally at tracing in broad outline the form and the content of the translations that follow. Of the notes accompanying the translations, the primary, if not exclusive, purpose is to indicate the reading of the cuneiform text on which the translation is based and to offer the arguments—grammatical, lexical, and contextual—that support the translation. I regret that considerations of space often made it impossible to give in these notes due recognition to counterarguments and divergent views.

The translation is, in general, what is called literal, with the lack of felicity the term usually implies. It might be added, however, that here traduttore traditore seldom, if ever, applies. For the most part, the prose of the Amarna letters is, at best, pedestrian. Where the translation is not literal is in its grammatical correctness, a virtue that conceals the solecisms and barbarisms of the language of so much of the original text. I have also taken a certain liberty in the translation of some particles, often replacing a more literal, paratactic version with a subordinate clause. Those who have confronted the translation of hinne in the Hebrew Bible will recognize the option and perhaps sympathize with the inconsistency.

With the support of the American Council of Learned Societies and of Harvard University, which I gratefully acknowledge, I was able in 1973–74 to collate almost all of the letters. Besides those that had disappeared many years before, there were thirteen that eluded me; at the time, they were either destroyed, lost, misplaced, or on loan. My time being limited, the collations were at times not sign by sign, but recognized difficulty by recognized difficulty. This limitation was compensated for to some extent through the generosity of Albert E. Glock, at the time the Director of the Albright Institute in Jerusalem, who very kindly made available to me the results of the collations by the late Edmund I. Gordon of most of the letters housed in London and Cairo. As will become evident to the reader, Gordon's contribution is not a small one.

For granting me access to the Amarna letters, and for all their kind assistance and courtesy, I heartily thank the authorities of the Arkeoloji Müzeleri (Istanbul), the Ashmolean Museum (Oxford), the British Museum (London), the Egyptian Museum (Cairo), the Louvre (Paris), the Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York), the Musées royaux d'Art and d'Histoire (Brussels), the Oriental Museum (Chicago), and the Vorderasiatisches Museum (Berlin). I am most grateful, too, to my colleagues Volkert Haas and Gernot Wilhelm for their contributing, respectively, the translations of the letters written in the Hittite and Hurrian languages.

The present work is a revision of an earlier one that appeared in French, Les Lettres d'El Amarna (Paris, 1987). It tries to bring the latter up to date; it also not infrequently corrects and expands. Since the earlier publication three scholars—Shlomo Izre'el, Nadav Na'aman, and Anson Rainey—have put me particularly in their debt, both by their published work and by their unpublished manuscripts they very generously placed at my disposal. As a result, the translation that follows often represents a considerable improvement of my earlier effort. I thank them.

Finally, I am grateful to the Johns Hopkins University Press for making my work available in English and to the editorial staff for their painstaking labors on my behalf. I must mention by name Carolyn I. Moser, my copyeditor. I do not try to describe her contribution, which was enormous, but I do thank her, and most warmly.

Introduction

1. Discoveries and publications

The Amarna tablets take their name from el-'Amārna, a plain on the east bank of the Nile about 190 miles south of Cairo. This was the site of Akhetaten, the capital of ancient Egypt for a brief period in the fourteenth century B.C. Akhetaten was founded by Amenophis IV, also known as Akhenaten, one of the most famous of Egyptian kings, most renowned as a religious reformer, often called the "heretic king" and "first monotheist." It was here, among the ancient ruins, that, probably in 1887, natives came upon clay tablets with some writing on them and began clandestine diggings.<sup>1</sup> There are conflicting accounts of the discovery, and we will never know how many tablets may have been found and later lost or destroyed,<sup>2</sup> nor all the ways, perhaps many and devious, by which more than 300 tablets came into the possession of antiquities dealers and private collectors. Eventually, by purchase, gift, or confiscation, most of the tablets made their way to museums: the Vorderasiatisches Museum in Berlin (at first about 160, eventually 202 or 203, besides 3 fragments belonging with British Museum tablets and other unnumbered fragments); the Cairo museum (at first 31, eventually 49 or 50, plus a fragment belonging with a British Museum tablet); the British Museum (at first 81, plus a fragment belonging with a Berlin tablet, eventually 95); the Louvre (1, eventually 7).<sup>3</sup> Remaining in private hands, at least for a while, were the four tablets of the

1. On the various versions of the discovery and dispersal of the tablets, see J. A. Knudtzon, VAB 2/1, pp. 1ff.; 2/2, p. 1584. For the corrections of A. H. Sayce mentioned by Knudtzon, see the former's account in AJSL 33 (1916-17) pp. 89f. Sayce says that the tablets were found in 1886-87. For the history of the publications, see Anson F. Rainey, AOAT 8<sup>2</sup>, pp. 5ff.

2. Sayce, AJSL 33 (1916-17) p. 90, estimated the loss at 150-200 tablets, but the evidence for this high number, which is not supported by other arguments, comes from reports of questionable accuracy.

3. Most of the Berlin and Cairo collections, the Louvre tablet, and the Golenischeff tablets (see below) were published in the cuneiform copies of Ludwig Abel by Hugo Winckler in 1889-90 (WA). The cuneiform copies of the British Museum tablets appeared in 1892 (BB). On the uncertainty as to the eventual numbers in the Berlin and Cairo museums, see n. 12.

merchant Rostovitz Bey,<sup>4</sup> the three of the Russian Egyptologist Vladimir Golenischeff,<sup>5</sup> the one of the American missionary Chauncey Murch,<sup>6</sup> and the one of the French Assyriologist Jules Oppert.<sup>7</sup> In 1896, in their first comprehensive edition, all the known tablets, together with a letter that had been found at Tell el-Hesi in Palestine, were transliterated and translated by Hugo Winckler.<sup>8</sup>

When the location of the ruins where the tablets had been discovered was determined, Egyptian authorities explored the site but failed to find more tablets. More fortunate was Sir Flinders Petrie, who found 22 fragments in 1891–92; these went to the Ashmolean Museum in Oxford.<sup>9</sup> In 1903, M. Chassinat, director of l'Institut français d'archéologie orientale du Caire, acquired two more tablets.<sup>10</sup> By 1907, 358 inscribed tablets were known, and in that year—a landmark in the history of Amarna studies—the Norwegian Assyriologist J. A. Knudtzon published the first volume of his magisterial Die El-Amarna-Tafeln.<sup>11</sup> Based on painstaking collations of all except the Murch and Chassinat tablets and on an unrivaled knowledge of almost every aspect of the corpus, his readings and translations excelled by far those of all his predecessors, and even today his work remains of fundamental importance.

4. In the British Museum since May 1903 (information from museum authorities); see below, EA 28, 82, 230, 292, on the cuneiform copies.

5. Perhaps given to the museum in Moscow in 1911 (Kühne, p. 2, n. 8); see below, EA 70, 137, 160.

6. Now in the Oriental Institute in Chicago, after earlier stops in the Art Institute of Chicago in 1894, then on to the Haskell Oriental Museum at the University of Chicago in 1915 (Luckenbill and Allen, AJSL 33 [1916–17] pp. 1f.); see below, EA 26, of which it is a fragment.

7. A cuneiform copy of this tablet, which seems to have been lost and will probably never be found, was never published; see below, EA 260.

8. Die Thontafeln von Tell-el-Amarna, in E. Schrader et al., eds., Keilinschriftliche Bibliothek, 5 (Berlin, 1896); English trans. by J. Metcalf, The Tell-el-Amarna Letters (New York, 1896). The Tell el-Hesi tablet is in the Istanbul Arkeoloji Müzeleri; on the cuneiform copy, see below, EA 333.

9. Of these, only seven are relevant here; see below, EA 14, 43, 61, 135, 184, 190, 236. Cuneiform copies by Sayce in Tell el Amarna; see VAB 2/1, pp. 15, 996. One of the fragments was uninscribed; another is part of EA 14. Four (EA 135, 342, 344, 351) have been lost or destroyed.

10. Now in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York (L. Bull, Bulletin of the Metropolitan Museum of Art 21 [1926] pp. 169–76); on the cuneiform copies, see below, EA 15, 153.

11. VAB 2/1. The second volume of commentary by O. Weber and glossaries by E. Ebeling, with additional remarks by Knudtzon, appeared in 1915. VAB 2/1–2 (reprint, Aalen, 1964). Knudtzon's numbering of the tablets became standard.

Since 1907 an additional 24 tablets have come to light, one as recently as 1979. Four more have turned up in the Berlin collection, to which two were added by the excavations of the Deutsche Orient-Gesellschaft in 1911–14.<sup>12</sup> The Egyptian Exploration Society discovered one tablet in its excavations of 1921–24,<sup>13</sup> and eight more in the excavations of 1926–37.<sup>14</sup> The most recent to appear perhaps goes back to the explorations under Petrie in 1891–92,<sup>15</sup> and the rest, which eventually were made available to museums,<sup>16</sup> to the first clandestine diggings of the fellahin. With the exception of EA 380–82, the “post-Knudtzon” tablets were ably edited by Anson F. Rainey in 1970.<sup>17</sup>

2. The Archive

Of the 382 tablets, only 32 are not letters or inventories attached to letters. The content of this small group is quite diverse.<sup>18</sup> Some belong in the Mesopotamian scribal tradition: myths and epics (EA 340?, 356–59, 375?), syllabaries (EA 348, 350, 379), lexical texts (EA

12. Two were published by O. Schroeder, VS 11, 179 (now EA 360) and OLZ, 1917, col. 105f. (now EA 361). (In 1914–15 Schroeder published new cuneiform copies of the Berlin collection in VS 11–12.) The tablets discovered in 1911–14 are VS 12, 193 (now EA 359) and VS 12, 190 (now EA 379; on this number, see P. Artzi, Or n.s. 36 [1967] p. 432). EA 359 now belongs to the Cairo collection; the location of EA 379 I do not know. Finally, H. Klengel, OLZ, 1974, col. 262, called attention to VAT 3781 (already noted by Schroeder, OLZ, 1917, col. 105f.) and added the “Sammelnummer” VAT 8525 (almost entirely illegible fragments). To these two numbers J.-G. Heintz, Index Documentaire d'el-Amarna, I.D.E.A., 1 (Wiesbaden, 1982), p. xvii, n. 25, has given the code numbers EA 380 and 381. Hence the number 382 for the most recent discovery (see n. 15).

The numbering EA 359ff., based on Knudtzon's EA 1–358, was introduced by C. Gordon, Or n.s. 16 (1947) pp. 1f.

13. S. Smith and C. Gadd, JEA 11 (1925) pp. 230ff.; now in the Ashmolean Museum, EA 368 (see E. Edel, GM 15 [1975] pp. 11ff.).

14. C. Gordon, Or n.s. 16 (1947) pp. 1ff.; now in the British Museum, EA 370–77. See below, EA 370–72.

17. AOAT 8; 2d rev. ed., 1978. An earlier edition by S. A. B. Mercer of the tablets then known (EA 1–367, 369), The Tell El-Amarna Tablets, 2 vols. (Toronto, 1939), was not successful and is mentioned here as a matter of historical record. For a survey of the Amarna archive, certain characteristic features, and outstanding problems, see D. O. Edzard, in Biblical Archaeology Today, Proceedings of the International Congress on Biblical Archaeology, Jerusalem 1984 (Jerusalem, 1985), pp. 69–83.

351–54, 373), a god-list (EA 374). On one is a tale of Hurrian origin (EA 341); on another (EA 368), an unparalleled list of Egyptian words written in syllabic cuneiform with equivalences in Babylonian written either syllabically or logographically.<sup>19</sup> One tablet is perhaps an amulet (EA 355). The genres of the other 14 (EA 342–47, 349, 360–61, 372, 376–77, 380–81), which are often very fragmentary, remain to be determined.

Of the 350 letters and inventories (EA 13–14, 22, 25, 120), our only concern in this volume, it seems that all except one were found in the same place.<sup>20</sup> This was identified by inscriptions as “The Place of the Letters of the Pharaoh.” The name, however, may refer to a larger complex, the more extensive part of which was devoted to affairs of state conducted in the Egyptian language, the smaller (the actual find-spot), to those conducted in foreign languages.<sup>21</sup>

In Die El-Amarna-Tafeln Knudtzon divided the correspondence into two parts. The first concerns foreign powers that dealt with Egypt more or less on a basis of equality. On a map, the arrangement moves counterclockwise: Babylonia (EA 1–14), Assyria (EA 15–16), Mittani (EA 17, 19–30),<sup>22</sup> Arzawa (EA 31–32), Alašia (EA 33–40), and Hatti (EA 41–44). The other and by far the larger part concerns Syro-Palestine and its various local rulers, most of whom were Egyptian vassals. The arrangement of these letters begins in the north, in central Syria, and moves down, ending in southern Palestine. Knudtzon’s assignments, often only on grounds of clay texture and paleography, were remarkably successful, and only occasionally have been proved wrong.<sup>23</sup> Furthermore, throughout, in each dossier (for example, that of Babylonia or Jerusalem), Knudtzon also attempted to order the letters chronologically. Here the task was more difficult and the results less firm.

Most of the archive consists of letters received, but a small number were written in Egypt.<sup>24</sup> Two letters (EA 1, 5), plus one inventory (EA 14), were directed to Babylonia, one to Arzawa (EA 31), and the rest to vassals (EA 99, 162–63, 190, 367, 369–70). Their presence in the archive probably has more than one explanation. If one may assume that, in general, copies were made only of those letters that bore on matters of considerable importance and required more than some sort of simple record or notation, one would judge that, with the exception of EA 162, the letters to vassals are not copies and, probably because of oversight, were not sent.<sup>25</sup> Indeed, letters to vassals seem to have been somewhat infrequent, and even less often such as to demand copies. Hence we should not expect to find many in the archive.<sup>26</sup>

Correspondence with major powers, however, was quite another matter. This was, at times at least, rather regular and often, if not always, dealt with serious issues—for example, marriage negotiations. If Egyptian practice was to make copies of such letters, we must ask why there are so few in the archives.<sup>27</sup> Perhaps the explanation is that usually the letters were first written in Egyptian, and then a translation was prepared.<sup>28</sup> It was the latter that was sent off, though perhaps occasionally the Egyptian messenger may have also carried a copy of the original.<sup>29</sup> The original, if important enough to be saved, would be filed, but in the Egyptian, not the foreign, language section. If so, and

At Ugarit, see PRU 3, pp. 4f.; PRU 4, p. 294 (probably not a copy); Ugar. 5, nos. 21, 24, 28, 32, 34, 36. At Mari, in the Old Babylonian period, copies of letters are common, especially in “the ministry of foreign affairs”; see A. Finet, Cuneiform Archives and Libraries (see n. 18), pp. 155, 157.

28. Cf. the “originals” in Hurrian from Mittani (EA 24), in Hittite at Boghazköy (H. Otten, Afo 19 [1959–60] p. 39; Afo, Beiheft 12, pp. 64f.), and perhaps in Ugaritic at Ugarit (PRU 5, no. 8). The Egyptians were certainly familiar with the practice, and they seem to have called the translations “copies”; thus, EA 27 is a “copy” of a Hurrian original (Kühne, pp. 44f., n. 209).

29. Cf. EA 24. A messenger needing an interpreter might prefer to have the Egyptian version available.

19. Perhaps an import (Kühne, p. 139). Despite the Babylonian ductus of EA 356–58 (Kühne, pp. 138f.), these tablets were hardly written in Babylonia (so Knudtzon, VAB 2/1, p. 25), for a Babylonian scribe is not likely to have introduced peripheral features (many plene-writings, syllabary, lexicon); note also the absence of poetic line divisions. This is not to deny that they may also be imports. P. Artzi, in H.-J. Nissen and J. Renger, eds., Mesopotamien und seine Nachbarn: Politische und kulturelle Wechselbeziehungen im Alten Vorderasien vom 4. bis 1. Jahrtausend v. Chr., Berliner Beiträge zum Vorderen Orient, I (Berlin, 1982), p. 317, maintains that they were written in Egypt.

20. EA 371 was discovered in “clerk house no. 43,” the find-spot also of EA 368. According to Petrie, most of the tablets he found (part of EA 14, EA 43, 61, 135, 184, 190, 236, 342, 353, 355) were in “two early rubbish-pits” under the building where the other tablets were found and therefore antedating them. For strong reasons to doubt this earlier level, see Kühne, p. 70, n. 345.

assuming that they too were not victims of oversight and simply not sent, then we must consider EA 1, 5, 14, and 31 exceptional, being drafts or copies of the translations and filed accordingly in the foreign language section.

3. Language and Writing

The Amarna letters are manifestations of the "cuneiform culture" that was shared in the fourteenth century B.C. throughout the ancient Near East. As it appears in these letters it is largely a provincial and, in many respects, a very heterogeneous culture, the product of a long, complex history, of which we know but a very small part.

In some sense this history begins at least a thousand years before the Amarna period. By the middle of the third millennium B.C. not only had cuneiform writing been introduced into Syria, but already at that early date, as the celebrated discoveries at ancient Ebla have shown, it was being used in a breadth of application and with a sophistication rivaling those of the great centers in Sumer and Akkad.<sup>30</sup> By the first quarter of the second millennium B.C. knowledge of cuneiform writing had spread far and wide, and Babylonian had become the principal language of a cosmopolitan culture.<sup>31</sup> It was the language of international relations, but often, too, of local affairs, both legal and administrative. It was also a language of learning.

In Upper Mesopotamia and the west there developed a regional dialect, a kind of koimē, which was also introduced into Anatolia, thus laying the foundations of the Hittite cuneiform tradition.<sup>32</sup> A regional syllabary appeared and took root in Syria. Also discernible are the influences of other traditions and other languages.<sup>33</sup> These were mainly

33. As the Mari archives continue to be published, we find sporadic examples of deviations from the standard language that in the Amarna period are common or even the rule: gender of nouns (ālum, "city," feminine, AÉM 1/2, no. 316:14'; no. 358, note g); confusion of pronouns (mimma and mamma, AÉM 1/2, no. 535, note d; mannum and mīnum,

West Semitic and Hurrian, the very forces that would be mainly responsible for the language and writing that we find in the Amarna letters centuries later.<sup>34</sup>

With the exception of EA 15 (Assyrian), EA 24 (Hurrian), and EA 31–32 (Hittite),<sup>35</sup> the language of the Amarna letters is Babylonian, but for the most part it is a Babylonian profoundly different from that of the previous international age. It reflects many of the developments that one finds in the "good" Middle Babylonian language of the letters from Babylonia itself (EA 2–4, 6–11).<sup>36</sup> But if the cuneiform culture of the provinces was to some extent up-to-date, it was not infrequently, as is usually the way with provinces, also behind the times. This is true of the writing: a logogram that had been replaced by another logogram centuries before in the scribal schools of Babylonia survives in the provincial culture;<sup>37</sup> an exercise once part of the scribal training but long abandoned in Babylonia is still part of the provincial curriculum;<sup>38</sup> old orthographies are retained, sometimes mixed together with the modern ones;<sup>39</sup> and so on. In the language, too, one finds a similar quaint and archaic quality. The provincial scribes, perhaps at times because of analogues in their own native language, may use old common or dialectal forms that had otherwise disappeared centuries beno. 402, note c); morpheme analysis (kīma i-ia-ti-ia, "like me," AÉM 1/2, no. 314, note e); thematic vowels (ḫalāqu, lal, AÉM 1/2, no. 391, note p); lexicon (inūma, "that," introducing object clauses, AÉM 1/2, no. 523, note k; arānu, "to be a sinner/criminal," AÉM 1/1, no. 39, note c; 1/2, no. 312, note d; (w)arādu, "to serve," AÉM 1/1, no. 148, note b; 1/2, no. 377, note b; see JAOS 107 [1987] p. 135a). One can speak of "les lettres 'barbares'" (AÉM 1/2, pp. 51f.).

34. The main evidence of the Hurrian influence is the syllabary, for which see Labat, Syria 39 (1962) pp. 14f. In the letters of Aplaḫanda of Carchemish (ARMT 5, 5–11) confusion of gender, often a sign of Hurrian influence, is fairly frequent, especially in ARMT 5, 7.

35. On the Hurrian letter, see n. 28. The Arzawa scribe, probably because of incompetence in any form of Babylonian, expressly requests that the correspondence be carried on in Hittite (EA 32:24f.). Whether Aššur-uballit's use of Assyrian (EA 15) and Hurro-Akkadian (EA 16) reflects a conscious avoidance of normative Babylonian is not clear. (On the term "Hurro-Akkadian," see the text below and n. 44.)

36. The modernization of western Old Babylonian, which is not to be understood as a direct development, in an unbroken tradition, is more evident in the north, in the Hurro-Akkadian tradition, just as archaisms of language are more common in the south (see below).

37. See B. Landsberger and H. Güterbock, Afo 12 (1937–39) pp. 55ff.; A. Falkenstein, ZA 53 (1965) p. 75, discussion of line 107; Güterbock, Festschrift Heinrich Otten (Wiesbaden, 1975), pp. 71ff.; W. Moran, Acta Sumerologica 5 (1983) pp. 175f.

38. See Nougayrol, AS 16, pp. 29ff., on EA 350 and parallels at Ugarit.

39. E.g., in EA 38 the old writing a-wa-ta along with later a-ma-ta.

fore.<sup>40</sup> Their lexicon is full of words that by the fourteenth century B.C. had either disappeared completely from the Babylonian language or lived on only in the elevated language reserved for the solemnities of myth, epic, hymns, and prayers.<sup>41</sup> It is this combination of the old and the new that is so typically provincial and so distinctive of the Amarna cuneiform culture.

Equally distinctive, however, are many features that are specifically peripheral and are not found in normal written Babylonian, either in its contemporary or earlier forms.<sup>42</sup> Some few are shared across the entire area;<sup>43</sup> more commonly, one must distinguish two general traditions, northern and southern, within both of which further distinctions are necessary. They divide along a line, roughly, from Şumur on the coast to Qaṭna inland.

The northern tradition, which is the more widely diffused, is generally called Hurro-Akkadian.<sup>44</sup> The name indicates the dominant influence of the Hurrians in the formation and the diffusion of both the language and the graphic system in which it was written. It is Hurro-Akkadian that we find in one letter from Assyria (EA 16);<sup>45</sup> in the letters from Mittani (EA 17, 19–23, 25–30), Hatti (EA 41–44), Ugarit (EA 45–49), Nuḥašše (EA 51), and Qaṭna (EA 52–55); and in many of the letters from Amurru (EA 156–61, 164–71). Nevertheless, the language also differs considerably from site to site,<sup>46</sup> especially so far as the immediate influence of the Hurrian language is concerned.<sup>47</sup> A measure of the complexity of dialectal developments and relationships is, for example, the fact that at the same site the language of the letters may differ considerably from that of the legal documents.<sup>48</sup>

Also belonging to the northern tradition are the letters that are southernmost in origin, the letters from Egypt. The language and writing of these letters are quite unlike what we find just to the north-east along the Egyptian border, in Palestine, and on the Phoenician coast. Their closest ties are farther north, especially in the writing system and, above all, in the sign forms. Many of the latter are typically Hittite, and the relationship can only be one of direct dependence on or derivation from a common source.<sup>49</sup> The language itself, however, lacks many of the more common Hurro-Akkadian features, and so the borrowing must have occurred at a relatively early date.

In the southern tradition the transformation of the Babylonian language and the resulting deviation from normal usage were far more radical than in most forms of Hurro-Akkadian. Indeed, so radical is the transformation that one may ask whether the language of this tradition, even when qualified as “extremely barbarized,” should be called Babylonian at all. It is a pidgin in which the Babylonian component is mainly lexical, whereas the grammar is profoundly West-Semitic, most no-

40. E.g., dual forms of the pronoun (BASOR 211 [1973] pp. 50ff.) and ti-preformative in third masculine plural forms of the verb, which is first attested in a language perhaps related to earlier Eblaic (H. Limet, Syria 52 [1975] pp. 37ff., esp. p. 48; J.-M. Durand, MARI 1 [1982] pp. 81f., lines 21–24; I. Gelb, Syro-Mesopotamian Studies 1/1 [1977] pp. 9f.; D. O. Edzard, Miscellanea Babylonica, Mélanges M. Birot [Paris, 1985], pp. 85f.). In the latter instance, however, because the preformative is found in later West Semitic languages (Ugaritic), its origins need not go back to the early second millennium B.C. For the Amarna evidence, see S. Izre'el, UF 19 (1987) pp. 79ff.

41. E.g., awīlu, “man,” as a designation of the ruler of a city; qaqqadu, “head,” in the sense of “self, person”; various adverbs (anumma, appūna(ma), ašrānu, pānānu); and the prepositional phrase ana šēr, “towards.” Note also dialectal gištappu, “footstool,” at Mari, Chagar Bazar, Kumidu (EA 195), and Qaṭna.

42. See the survey by Kühne, pp. 5ff.

43. The north seems to influence the south.

44. The Nuzi dialect of the eastern highlands is also Hurro-Akkadian; see G. Wilhelm, Untersuchungen zum Hurro-Akkadischen von Nuzi, AOAT 9. As a designation of the language as used in the west, Huehnergard, Akkadian, p. 20 and n. 34, prefers “Syro-Anatolian,” the influence of Hurrian being at times inconsiderable (see below).

45. This suggests that Hurro-Akkadian was socially acceptable even in milieus where one might expect a certain contempt for its provincial character.

46. In the Amarna corpus, Hurrian influence is most evident in the letters from Mittani and Qaṭna; on the former, see Kühne, p. 9, n. 40, and H.-P. Adler, AOAT 201, pp. 105ff.

47. At Boghazköy A. Kammenhuber, Or n.s. 45 (1976) p. 137, sees two traditions, Hurrian and Hittite, plus the influence of direct imports from Babylonia, as formative of Boghazköy-Akkadian. At ancient Emar, D. Arnaud, AAS 25 (1979) pp. 87ff., finds both a Syrian and a Syro-Hittite tradition.

48. This is the case at Ugarit; see Huehnergard, Akkadian, pp. 220ff., with reference to T. Finley, “Word Order in the Clause Structure of Syrian Akkadian” (Ph.D. diss., University of California at Los Angeles, 1979). There is also in the legal texts evidence of an Old Babylonian, North Syrian background; see J. Greenfield, in M. Ellis, ed., Essays on the Ancient Near East in Memory of Jacob Joel Finkelstein (Hamden, Conn., 1977), pp. 87ff.

49. This was shown by K. Riemschneider in a paper delivered before the 186th annual meeting of the American Oriental Society, March 16, 1976; see also G. Beckman, JCS 35 (1983) pp. 112f., and G. Wilhelm, Studien zur Altägyptischen Kultur 11 (1984) pp. 643ff. Note, however, that in the Amarna archive the Egyptian material includes two letters in non-Hittite ductus, EA 1 and 369, the former of which manifests a strong preference for verb-subject-object word order, as is the rule in Egyptian and was noted long ago by Böhl, Sprache, p. 78. On EA 369, see below EA 369, n. 1.

tably in the word order and, most important of all, in the verbal system.<sup>50</sup> The language can only be described as an entirely new code, only vaguely intelligible (if at all) to the West Semite because of the lexicon, and to the Babylonian because of the grammar.

It is regrettable that translations either cannot or do not reflect the diversity of language and writing within the corpus itself and the distance of the several dialects from the normative language of Babylonia. They should be read with an awareness of this limitation, correcting so far as possible the impression of a colorless uniformity and grammatical propriety.

4. The International Correspondence

The form of the letters is pretty much the same everywhere, though the letters from Alašia (EA 33–40) have certain peculiarities.<sup>51</sup> In the usual form, the address, which is directed to the scribe who will read the letter, is usually of the type “Say to PN. Thus PN<sub>2</sub>.”<sup>52</sup> This form was inherited from the Old Babylonian period, and neither then nor as used here did it carry any implications of the relative social status of the correspondents. Another form, however, “Thus PN: Say to PN<sub>2</sub>,” appears in two letters from Egypt (EA 5 and 31) and in one from Boghazköy (EA 41). This is a different usage according to which the sender, if he is the superior or the equal of the addressee, names himself first, and therefore, in this system, the first and more common form

50. This is a subject with a long history of inquiry; see the outline by Kühne, pp. 8f., n. 36, II p-III, and add the work of A. Rainey and his students, most notably S. Izre'el. Rainey has shown that regularly the (preformative) verb base, with no additional marker (u-durative, a-injunctive), no matter what “tense” (iparras, iptaras, iprus), if a statement of fact, has past-time reference (IOS 1 [1971] pp. 86ff.; UF 7 [1975] pp. 395ff.). The same usage is found in a letter from Tyre a century later; see D. Arnaud, Syria 59 (1982) p. 104. Within the southern corpus there are two somewhat erratic blocks, the letters from Jerusalem and those from Abi-Milku of Tyre. On the former, see Jerusalem Scribe; on the latter, a dissertation by Cecilia Grave, to be presented to the University of Lund, is in progress (see OA 19 [1980] pp. 205ff.; UF 12 [1980] pp. 221ff.; Or n.s. 51 [1982] pp. 161ff.).

51. For the various forms of address and greeting in Akkadian letters, see the survey of E. Salonen, StOr 38, esp. pp. 61ff. on the Amarna letters.

52. In the international correspondence, we retain the conventional translation of umma by “thus,” except in EA 19:3 and 29:2, where it seems that umma was understood in the sense of “word, message” (Rainey, BiOr 37 [1980] p. 96). The latter meaning seems to have been the rule in the Syro-Palestinian area (see EA 144, n. 1), as first noted by W. F. Albright (BASOR 87 [1942] p. 33, n. 7), and it was not unknown to Hittite scribes (A. Goetze, JCS 2 [1948] p. 224; see also P. Berger, UF 1 [1969] p. 218; Izre'el, IOS 8 [1978] p. 68; Huehnergard, Akkadian, p. 144, n. 112; M. Kossmann, JEOL 30 [1987–88] pp. 38ff.).

noted above (“Say to PN . . .”) is employed only by an inferior writing to a superior.<sup>53</sup>

A salutation—which as such was an innovation of the Old Babylonian period—follows, and it consists of two parts. The first is a report on one's own well-being: “For me all goes well.” Since it is omitted in the Assyrian letters (EA 15–16), it seems to have been optional. The second part, never omitted and therefore probably not optional, is an expression of good wishes for the addressee, usually beginning with “May all go well with you,” which is then elaborated and extended to the household, to wives and children, courtiers and troops, even horses and chariots.<sup>54</sup>

The body of the letter is, naturally, much less stereotyped, and formal conventions are few and variable. Two types of letters, especially in combined form, dominate the international correspondence. These are what Jean Nougayrol called lettre d'envoi and lettre d'injonction.<sup>55</sup> Under the first we should place EA 2–3, 5, 21, 31, and 41; they characteristically end with “I (herewith) send. . . .”<sup>56</sup> Lettres d'injonction are EA 4, 7, 28, and 38–39, and they usually end with one or more injunctives.<sup>57</sup> As I already mentioned, however, most common of all are combinations, which we find in EA 6, 8–9, 15–17, 19–20, 23, 26–27, 29, 33–35, 40, and 44.

Occasionally, there is either a double letter (EA 12)—i.e., the same person is addressed but by a third party—or a postscript (EA 32)—i.e., the writer sends a message to a third party, who in the case in question was the addressee's scribe and whose services, therefore, were needed in

53. See Nougayrol, Ugar, 5, pp. 66f. Though “say” (qibī-ma) is absent in EA 34, this letter probably reflects the same usage. This seems more likely than a survival of the form of the Old Akkadian-Ur III periods (cf. E. Sollberger, TCS 1, pp. 2f.).

54. W. von Soden, Afo 18 (1958) p. 369, saw in this type of salutation a feature of an official as opposed to a private letter. Characteristic of the Egyptian letters is the addition of a parallel report on one's own household, etc. It seems that, in general, inferiors did not report on the state of their own person (cf. EA 12), though this is hardly the explanation of EA 15–16. Nougayrol, Ugar, 5, p. 67, has noted that the Hittite king and other high-ranking courtiers report only on themselves and do not wish well to their inferiors. (In Ugar, 5, no. 33:3', read gabbu da[n-n]šš šulmu.) Cf. the conclusions of Egyptian letters from the king to vassals (see below, sect. 5). Note that in Hittite usage (cf. EA 31:4) ANŠE.KUR.RA.MEŠ may contrast with ÉRIN.MEŠ and mean, not “horses,” but “chariot-fighters” (see A. Kammenhuber, Die Arier im Vorderen Orient [Heidelberg, 1968], p. 22, n. 30a).

communicating and perhaps explaining the message of the letter to his master.<sup>58</sup>

The prevalence of the combination of envoi and injonction reflects the complex social, economic, and political relationships of the correspondents, and the customs and ideology associated with them. According to the conceptions of the time, the most basic political relationship between the rulers was an alliance of "brotherhood," which made them brothers and members of the same family and household. They were thus united by the bond of love and friendship that befits brothers,<sup>59</sup> and the visible expression of this bond was the exchange of gifts.<sup>60</sup> "From the time my ancestors and your ancestors made a mutual declaration of friendship, they sent beautiful greeting-gifts to each other, and refused no request for anything beautiful" (EA 9:7–10). "Send me much gold, and you, for your part, whatever you want from my country, write me so that it may be taken to you" (EA 9:16–18). "If your purpose is graciously one of friendship, send me much gold. And this is your house. Write me so what you need may be fetched" (EA 16:32–34).<sup>61</sup> Acknowledgment of gifts received, praise of the gifts or

58. In EA 42:27f. perhaps the scribe sends a brief message either to the addressee of the letter or to a third party. In the vassal correspondence, too, there are postscripts, all to the Egyptian scribe who will read the letters (EA 286–89, 316). In EA 170:36ff. both the addressor and the addressees are different from those in the first part of the letter. EA 128 is probably a double letter. On these additions to letters, see A. Leo Oppenheim, AS, 16, pp. 253ff., and Nougayrol, Ugar. 5, p. 67, with references to earlier literature. Other double letters: RS 34.134, Ugar. 7, pls. XV–XVI; (the following references from J. Huehnergard) PRU 6, no. 7; RS 34.161, Ugar. 7, pl. XL; RS 34.171, Ugar. 7, pl. LII. Emar 6/3 263–64 are double letters; 266 is extraordinary, being four complete letters from the same correspondent. Emar 6/3 261 is also unusual; it is sent by two correspondents who, after the greeting, send individual messages, the first being introduced by umma (line 10), the second by the logogram INIM, "word" (see above, n. 52).

59. By the Amarna period "love" (râmul'ra'âmu and derivatives) had become part of the terminology of international relations; see V. Korosec, Mednarodni odnosaji po klinopisnih poročilih iz el-amarneškega in hetitskega državnega arhiva (International relations according to cuneiform reports from the Tell al-Amarna and Hittite State Archive) (Ljubljana, 1950), p. 340 (English summary, p. 393). It is a favorite term of Tušratta (EA 17ff., passim), when he speaks of the relationship between equals, but elsewhere in the Amarna letters it is also used of the relationship between sovereign and vassal (EA 53:41; 114:68; 121:61; 123:23; 138:71f.; see Catholic Biblical Quarterly 25 [1963] pp. 77ff.). On "friendship" (tâbûtu) and related terms, see M. Weinfeld, JAOs 93 (1973) pp. 190ff., and below, EA 136, n. 5.

60. See C. Zaccagnini, Lo scambio dei doni nel Vicino Oriente durante i secoli XV–XIII (Rome, 1973), which was inspired by Liverani, OA 11 (1972) pp. 297ff. (translated in Three Amarna Essays [see n. 26], pp. 21ff.).

61. This also belongs to the formal language of treaties: "We are all sons of Šupeven a frank expression of disappointment, expression of the motivation behind the exchange of gifts, petition of counter-gifts to respond to the gifts now being dispatched—these and related topics dominate much of the international correspondence.

One of the related topics is marriage, for marriage not only binds the correspondents even closer together, but it also involves the exchange of goods.<sup>62</sup> If in the gifts customarily exchanged the economic value was not always great and symbolic values were often as important, in the case of marriage the economic value was considerable, even staggering.<sup>63</sup>

Apart from declarations of friendship, the discussions of gifts associated with this friendship, proposals of marriage, and lists of goods exchanged at the time of marriage, there is little else in the international correspondence. Tušratta of Mittani tells of the difficulties attending his accession to the throne and makes a passing reference to the Hittites, but he says nothing more about the larger political scene.<sup>64</sup> Burna-Buriaš of Babylonia tells how a predecessor refused to support a coalition of Canaanite kings against Egypt, reveals the dangers of international trade, and implies growing Assyrian truculence and aspirations.<sup>65</sup> In the mention of Mayati, the daughter of Amenophis IV, there piluliumaš and our house is one" (E. F. Weidner, Politische Dokumente aus Kleinasien: Die Staatsverträge in akkadischer Sprache aus dem Archiv von Boghazköi, Boghazköi-Studien 8 [Leipzig, 1923; reprint, Hildesheim and New York, 1970], p. 86:8f.). The language goes back at least to the Old Babylonian period. Uruk and Babylon are "one house" (A. Falkenstein, Baghdader Mitteilungen 2 [1963] p. 56 ii 1f.), as are their kings (ibid., p. 58:25); Larsa and Eshnunna are also "one house" (TIM 1, 26:16; see also A. Zeebari, Altbabylonische Briefe des Iraq-Museums [n.p., 1964], p. 72). Išhi-Addu of Qaṭna wrote to Išme-Dagan of Assyria, "This house is your house. What is missing in your house? Does not a brother give a brother (his) request?" (ARMT 5, 20:25–28). Hammurabi of Babylon is quoted as declaring, "From long ago and ever after the city Mari and Babylon have been one house and one finger that cannot be separated (na-ab'-tu-qi-im)" (AE 1/2, no. 449:15f.; see also ARMT 1, 2:13'). In the private sphere, see AbB 1, 82:7; ibid. 4, 152:20 ("my house is your house and my purse your purse"); ARMT 10, 78:27; and Kraus, BiOr 22 (1965) p. 289 and n. 8. Cf. also "one man" (EA 20:17).

63. According to EA 14 ii 34, over a half a ton of gold was used on the gifts listed in the previous lines, and according to ii 72, about an eighth of a ton of silver. On EA 14 as a list of marriage gifts, see Kühne, pp. 70f.

is an opaque reflection of events at the Egyptian court.<sup>66</sup> But all this adds up to little information, and there is not a hint of the religious reforms that make the Amarna period so notable in Egyptian history.<sup>67</sup>

5. The Vassal Correspondence

The vassal correspondence<sup>68</sup> reflects the Egyptian administration of its territories in Syria and Palestine.<sup>69</sup> At the time of the Amarna letters, the area was divided into two or three provinces, each under an Egyptian official, who is, in the Amarna letters, without specific title.<sup>70</sup> Probably always a member of the military, he resided in a garrison city, one of a network, and from there he looked after Egyptian interests in the city-states and crown-lands within his territory. One was stationed in Gaza, and his province took in most of Palestine, the Phoenician coast, and, if there were only two provinces, Amurru. If there was a

67. On the alleged request of the Alašian king that the Egyptians form no alliances with the Hittites or Babylonians, see EA 35, n. 10.

68. The term vassal is used loosely of any ruler subordinate to the Egyptian king, whether or not he was bound by oath and a vassal in the strict sense. It thus includes, for example, Addu-nirari of Nuḥašše (EA 51), Aziru of Amurru (EA 156ff.), and the rulers of Ugarit (EA 45, 49; see A. Altman, Bar-Ilan 13 (1976) 1ff., English summary on pp. ix–xi).

Against the once common view that the Amarna letters reflect Egypt’s neglect of its territories and the absorption of Amenophis IV in internal matters, especially his religious reforms, see especially Liverani and Several; see also the text below on military operations.

70. Na’aman, Political Disposition, pp. 166ff. (cf. IEJ 31 [1981] p. 183f.), argues for only two provinces, whereas Helck (see n. 69), whose views have gained some currency, defends three. The crux is the status of Šumur. Donald B. Redford, Akhenaten, the Heretic King (Princeton, 1984), p. 26, proposes four provinces. The highest official was usually called “commissioner” (rābišu), but occasionally so were other Egyptian officials of lesser rank; see the survey of D. O. Edzard and F. A. M. Wiggermann, RLA 7/5–6, pp. 449ff., esp. §2.5. All of these officials also shared the designation “magnate” (rābū; see O. Weber, VAB 2/2, p. 1188, and cf. EA 1, n. 3). In EA 256:9 and 362:69, rābišu is glossed by sū-ki-ni and sū-ki-na, respectively, West Semitic **sōkinu* (Hebrew sōkēn), in my opinion “one who provides” (cf. below sakānu in the letters from Jerusalem), whereas J.-M. Durand, Miscellanea Babylonica (see n. 40), p. 82, n. 10, proposes “Résident,” from a West Semitic verb “to dwell” (see AÉM 1/1, no. 168, note j; AÉM 1/2, no. 316:16’ and note b; no. 519, note d).

third province, its administrative center was Šumur and its principal territory Amurru, the borders of which remain ill-defined.<sup>71</sup> Another official was in Kumidu, and he administered an area from Qadeš in southern Syria down to Hazor in northern Palestine, over to the Damascus and down into northern Transjordan.<sup>72</sup>

Subject to these officials, besides Egyptian underlings, were the native local rulers, who are usually referred to as “mayors” (ḫazannu) but are also called “rulers” (awīlu, lit. “man”) or “kings” (šarru) or, by the Egyptian term, “princes” (wr, lit. “great one”).<sup>73</sup> Among their obligations, which may not have been the same in each province, were the payment of tribute, meeting other exactions of goods and personnel, furnishing corvée labor on crown-lands, supplying Egyptian troops in transit and reinforcing them, and protecting caravans.

Six or seven letters in the vassal correspondence are from the Pharaoh (EA 99, 162–63, 190?, 367, 369–70; see above, sect. 2). With the exception of EA 162, as preserved they are formally very similar. The address, obviously ignoring any implications of social status, always names the inferior first (see above, sect. 4), and would appear to go back to an old tradition.<sup>74</sup> There follows an introduction to the message proper that is peculiar to the Pharaoh’s letters to vassals, and it seems to be based on Egyptian models: “He (I?) hereby sends (send?) this tablet

71. The province probably extended from Byblos to an area south of Ugarit, and inland to about the Orontes River.

72. According to Hachmann, ZDPV 98 (1982) pp. 18f., the Egyptian official displaced the native rulers; see also Archéologie au Levant: Recueil à la mémoire de Roger Saidab, Collection de la Maison de l’Orient méditerranéen, no. 12, série archéol. 9 (Lyons and Paris, 1982), pp. 133ff.

73. As used in the western periphery in the fifteenth to thirteenth centuries B.C., the ḫazannu was usually a royal appointee, and the term as said of the local rulers implied their incorporation within the administration as “fonctionnaires périphériques” (Liverani, in P. Garelli, ed., Le Palais et la Royauté [Paris, 1974], pp. 346ff.; on the ḫazannu at Boghazköy, see F. Picchioli, OA 14 [1975] pp. 93ff.). However, if the place of rule was indicated, one usually did not use ḫazannu but awīlu, a usage that goes back to the Syrian koinē of Old Babylonian times (see CAD, A/2, p. 57b). šarru was the nonadministrative, non-Egyptian term the city-state rulers used of themselves (Na’aman, UF 20 (1988) pp. 182–83, n. 18). Egyptian wr, which is used in EA only by Abi-Milku of Tyre (EA 149:30; 151:39), was applied by the Egyptians to all foreign rulers, not just to vassals; see D. Lorton, The Juridical Terminology of International Relations in Egyptian Texts through Dynasty XVIII (Baltimore, 1974), pp. 60ff.

74. The use of awīlu to designate the local ruler suggests the Old Babylonian period (see n. 73). These and the following remarks apply also to the king’s letters discovered at Kumidu; see D. O. Edzard, Schriftdokumente aus Kamid el-Loz, Saarbrücker Beiträge zur Altertumskunde 7 (1970) pp. 55f. (Kumidu 1–2).

to you, saying to you . . ." (EA 99, 367, 369–70).<sup>75</sup> Three times (EA 99, 367, 370), twice ruled off and included in the introductory section (EA 367, 370), the message begins with the command to be on one's guard and to guard "the place of the king where you are" (lit. "which is by/near you"), and again there are underlying Egyptian models.<sup>76</sup> The command may be repeated (EA 369:14), and along with more specific orders the vassal may be urged to obey without fault or negligence, two injunctions also with close Egyptian parallels.<sup>77</sup> He may also be promised to hear, if he is obedient, an expression of the Pharaoh's approval, "this is good" (EA 99:17; 369:21). Finally, all letters end in virtually the same words, following a longer or shorter form, by informing the inferior of the king's prosperity and power.<sup>78</sup>

From these letters, confirmed by letters of the vassals to the king, one sees that the main purpose of the king's writing was to acquire personnel and other goods, to introduce Egyptian officials and secure obedience to their orders, and to arrange for supplies for his troops.

The rest of the vassal correspondence is concerned almost exclu-

75. Cf., in the same position, after the address and immediately before the message, "This letter is brought to you to the following effect" (R. Caminos, Late-Egyptian Miscellanies [London, 1954], pp. 4, 7, 13–14), rendering Egyptian in.tw nk sš pn n dd hm̄ dd, followed by injunctions virtually identical with those continuing EA 99, 367, and 370. The king usually speaks of himself in the third person (EA 99:8f., 11, 17–19, 22; 162 passim; 367:6, 10–11, 16, 18, 20, 22ff.; 369:5, 19; 370:7), but at Kumidu the first person is also attested ("send me": Kumidu 1:5; 2:6), and some of the passages here taken as third person are ambiguous and could be in the first person. It seems likely that qabē (EA 99, 367, 370; Kumidu 1–2) or ana qabē (EA 369), lit. "to speak," is meant to correspond to Egyptian hm̄ dd, lit. "with saying," and therefore to introduce direct quotation. (For the infinitive expressing purpose without ana, J. Huehnergard points to PRU 4, p. 193:6ff.; KBo 1, 3:38f.) "My saying/speech" (Edzard) accords with neither EA 369 nor the Egyptian parallel. On EA 369 as extra chorum, see EA 369, n. 1.

76. As first recognized by Liverani, OA 10 (1971) p. 258, n. 36, and p. 262, n. 52 (translated in Three Amarna Essays [see n. 26], pp. 7, 9), who also established on the basis of Egyptian parallels the meaning of "which is by/near you." See also Liverani, Vicino Oriente 2 (1979) p. 68, n. 8.

77. Cf. "lest the king find fault [lit. a crime] in you" (EA 367:10f.) and "do not let yourself be found fault with" (Caminos, Late-Egyptian Miscellanies, pp. 5, 198); "do not become negligent" (EA 367:14) and "slack not" (Caminos, Late-Egyptian Miscellanies, p. 7), "be not remiss" (ibid., 198).

78. For the short form, see EA 99, 367; for the long form, EA 162 and 370, and Kumidu 1–2. The conclusion of EA 369 is without parallel. For a brief analysis of the two forms, see J. Wesselius, UF 15 (1983) p. 313. Liverani, Lingering over Words, pp. 341ff., studies the form and the background of EA 99, 367, and 369–70, which he calls "Egyptian spring letters," in his opinion examples of a standard annual procedure. For difficulties with this view, see EA 367, n. 1.

sively with letters from subordinate rulers or vassals to the king or high Egyptian officials.<sup>79</sup> Formally, they are very similar, though regional differences are observable. In the address, the vast majority begin either "Say to the king/PN . . . ; Message of PN<sub>(2)</sub>," or simply "To the king. . . ."<sup>80</sup> The exceptions are confined almost entirely to the letters of Rib-Hadda of Byblos, where we also find "Rib-Hadda speaks [17 times]/writes [9 times] to the king . . ."; comparable are EA 260 and 317–18.<sup>81</sup> Another unusual form is found in EA 126, 129(?), 137(?), and 362. EA 100 is unique. The king is almost never addressed by name, only by title, to which are usually added various honorifics.<sup>82</sup> To the identification of himself the vassal regularly adds various expressions of self-abasement.

Salutations are rare. Only once does an inferior report on his own well-being (EA 145, to an Egyptian official; see above, sect. 4), and only rarely does he wish his superior well (EA 44–45, 49, 59).<sup>83</sup> Again, the letters from Byblos are a notable exception. In letters addressed to the king the desire is expressed that the goddess, the Lady of Byblos, grant power to the king, and in letters to Egyptian officials it is hoped that Aman or the Lady of Byblos, or both, give the addressee honor in the king's sight.<sup>84</sup>

The prostration formula, which in the Byblos letters always precedes the salutation of an official, but always follows the salutation of the king, is omitted only once in a letter to the king (EA 44) and once

79. Exceptions: female correspondents (EA 48, 50; cf. EA 12, 26, and see also 273–74); Egyptian general to vassal (EA 96, a copy sent to central archives?). Those sending the letters may be a group of vassals (EA 200; cf. 30), the (senior) citizens of a city (EA 59, 100), or a vassal's locum tenens/tenentes (EA 169f.). Letters to Egyptian officials and courtiers: EA 62, 71 (cf. 40), 73, 77, 82, 86f., 93, 95, 98, 102, 145, 158, 164, 166f., 169(?), 178, 210(?), 238, 251(?), 256, 333. On postscripts, etc., see the text above at n. 58.

80. On umma, "message," see n. 52.

81. Liverani, Lingering over Words, p. 344, n. 16, points to the same form in letters written in Egyptian. On iqbilistapar as examples of Koinzidenzfall, see W. Mayer, Untersuchungen zur Formensprache der babylonischen "Gebetsbeschwörungen" (Rome, 1976), pp. 195f.; cf. iqtabi in EA 59:5.

82. The king's name appears in EA 53:1; 55:1. It may be doubted that EA 210 was addressed to king [. . . <sup>m</sup>ni-i]b-hu-ri-[ia] (Amenophis IV? Tutankhamun? see below, n. 137), since he would be named without title (see VAB 2/1, p. 745, note f) or the homage of proskynesis (see the text below).

83. EA 44 is from an independent Hittite prince, 45 and 49 from probably independent rulers of Ugarit, and 59 from the city of Tunip.

84. EA 71, 73, 77, 86–87, 95, 102; cf. also 113:32f. in the body of the letter, and, at Kumidu, as a concluding formula (Edzard, ZA 66 [1976] p. 64:18–20, with "the gods" as subject; in lines 7, 13, BE is a logogram for bēlu, as frequently in EA).

in a letter to an official (EA 166; also 167?). In letters to officials one simply declares the prostration, but in letters to the king this is usually said to be performed "seven times and seven times," which in Palestinian letters is made even more explicit, with the addition of "(both) on the belly and on the back."<sup>85</sup>

The body of the vassal letters, in both form and content, is quite varied.<sup>86</sup> Most vassals, it seems, wrote neither regularly nor on their own initiative, but rather only in reply to a letter from the king,<sup>87</sup> and very many of the letters begin by acknowledging in different ways that the king's letter has been received: "I have heard";<sup>88</sup> "as to the king's writing/saying";<sup>89</sup> "you have written";<sup>90</sup> "the king . . . wrote";<sup>91</sup> "the word(s) . . .";<sup>92</sup> "everything/whatever. . ."<sup>93</sup>

The king's letters are often cited. His command to be on one's guard or to guard oneself,<sup>94</sup> and to guard the place of the king where the vassal is (see above), is frequently quoted<sup>95</sup> and even more frequently alluded to.<sup>96</sup> Associated with this command is at times another, either cited directly<sup>97</sup> or alluded to,<sup>98</sup> to guard (pay close attention to?) or listen to the king's commissioner. This may refer to the vassal's general duties, but at times at least it certainly looks to specific missions (cf. EA 367, 369; see above).

The command to be on one's guard, etc., was probably never isolated (cf. EA 367, 370). There were also orders, for example, "to prepare" (EA 99:10ff.), and the best-attested preparations are those of supplies for Egyptian troops in transit (EA 367:15ff.).<sup>99</sup> The vassal occasionally cites the actual order (EA 141:21-22; 337:8-11), but always, in one way or another, he states his compliance.<sup>100</sup>

The vassals reply to other commands and charges, some cited verbatim,<sup>101</sup> others easily inferred from context, and they do so not always with an unquestioning submissiveness. Thus, it is clear that the king has not succeeded in his attempt to have Aziru rebuild Šumur or to get him to come to Egypt (EA 156ff.). Lab'ayu does not hesitate to make known his displeasure at certain orders of the king (EA 252), and in two other letters (EA 253-54) he emphatically denies the serious charges brought against him by others and repeated by the king (cf. also EA 256). But the most unusual correspondence as well as by far the longest is that between the king and Rib-Hadda of Byblos, for it goes far beyond the routines that we find in most of the EA archive.<sup>102</sup> Rib-Hadda writes and writes. If he is told to guard himself and the city where he is, he does not reply that he will do so; he insists that it is impossible.<sup>103</sup> And he does so not once; to a single letter of the king he sends, it seems, nine letters in reply. Told, too, to send a certain wood, he replies that this also is impossible.<sup>104</sup> The impression that one gets of a tireless and boring correspondent, endlessly reiterating his requests and his complaints, was also shared by the king (the foreign office), who complained that Rib-Hadda wrote to him more than any local ruler.<sup>105</sup> This, of course, gave Rib-Hadda the occasion to insist that he alone was loyal and suffering for his lord.

Caminos, Late-Egyptian Miscellanies (see n. 75), p. 198, where the order is to have things ready before the arrival of the Pharaoh; see also p. 199 and p. 202, note. The use of ana pānī may reflect Egyptian r-ḥit (Pintore, AO 11 [1972] p. 129, n. 158; Liverani, Vicino Oriente 2 [1979] p. 69), but it need not, for in Old Babylonian ana pānī has the same temporal meaning; see, for example, M. Stol, AbB 9, 63:11; 98:8; 117:5; 137:29; 144:6', and note too ina pānī in F. Kraus, AbB 7, 56:26, and the remarks of Durand, ARMT 21, p. 413, n. 83. In view of EA 5:15-17, its survival in the periphery seems quite probable. The troops in question were the regular army units, "archers" in the literal translation that I have followed, to be distinguished from auxiliaries (tillatu) and garrison-troops (maššartu, maššāru); see Rainey, AOAT, 8<sup>2</sup>, p. 87.

Some vassals, however, did not simply reply to the various demands of the king. They also reported on their own situation and on anything they thought of possible interest to the crown, frequently on their own initiative, as they were at times urged to do.<sup>106</sup> Such reports are often introduced by "may the king, my lord, know (idû) that . . .," and they tell of the city as "safe and sound,"<sup>107</sup> or threatened,<sup>108</sup> of lost territory,<sup>109</sup> or of other dangers.<sup>110</sup> Letters also end this way, calling attention to something in particular or summing up the letter as a whole.<sup>111</sup>

Unlike the international correspondence, the letters to and from vassals often refer to political events, too often indeed for even the barest summary here. In the north, politics were dominated by two

Since the writer may go on to describe the parlous situation of the city that is "safe and sound" (šalmat), the meaning must have shifted from the original one of "well-being." EA 267:15ff. and 330:9ff., where "safe and sound" is said of "the place of the king, my lord, where I am," and of "the city of the king where I am," respectively, clearly allude to the vassal's duty to guard the place of the king where he is (see the text above) and suggest that "safe and sound" means that the place remains under the loyal protection of the vassal; cf. also EA 230:4–22. Already in the Old Babylonian period we find occasional declarations of a city's well-being followed immediately by a report on the strength of the security forces (AbB 5, 158:4ff.; ARMT 2, 88:6ff.; 3, 12:6ff.).

major developments—first, the emergence of a new state, Amurru, and second, the appearance of a new threat to Egyptian power, the resurgent Hittites. The emergence of Amurru—which was achieved by a certain 'Abdi-Aširta, partly through exploitation of social unrest and disaffection, and then solidified by his able son and successor, Aziru<sup>112</sup>—was the object of unceasing protest by Rib-Hadda of Byblos, who never tired of accusing the rulers of Amurru of disloyalty and treason. Others shared this view of Aziru. As the Hittite threat became evident,<sup>113</sup> Aziru, along with Aitagama of Qadeš, was charged with being a Hittite ally and, with Hittite support, a despoiler of Egyptian territory.<sup>114</sup> Needless to say, in his own letters someone quite different is portrayed.<sup>115</sup>

The vassal correspondence in the south is more insular in its interests and less reflective of international tensions. This correspondence presents a scene of constant rivalries, shifting coalitions, and attacks and counterattacks among the small city-states.<sup>116</sup> A probable exception to the isolation of the south from events to the north and the Hittite threat is seen in those letters that speak of preparations by the vassals before the arrival of Egyptian troops.<sup>117</sup> These preparations seem to reflect plans for a single campaign and the dispatch of Egyptian troops through Palestine to Syria, there to confront the Hittites and former Egyptian vassals supporting them.<sup>118</sup> are mostly "late-summer letters," sent, in his theory, at the time an Egyptian official came to collect the annual tribute. Be it noted, here without comment, that for Liverani the vassal correspondence is shot through with extensive and constant misunderstandings, both linguistic and political; see especially RA 61 (1967) 1ff.; Berytus 31 (1983) 41ff.; Lingering over Words, pp. 343f.

6. Chronology

Despite a long history of inquiry, the chronology of the Amarna letters, both relative and absolute, presents many problems, some of bewildering complexity, that still elude definitive solution. Consensus obtains only about what is obvious, certain established facts, and these provide only a broad framework within which many and often quite different reconstructions of the course of events reflected in the Amarna letters are possible and have been defended.<sup>119</sup>

The Amarna archive, it is now generally agreed, spans at most about thirty years, perhaps only fifteen or so. The extremes depend on the number of years, if any, one assigns to the co-regencies of Amenophis IV with Amenophis III, and of Smenkhkare with Amenophis IV. The longer the co-regencies, the shorter the period.

The archive begins about the thirtieth year of Amenophis III and extends no later than the first year or so of Tutankhamun, at which time the court abandoned the site of Akhetaten.<sup>120</sup> The upper limit is suggested, first of all, by the hieratic docket on EA 23, which dates the reception of this letter in the thirty-sixth year of Amenophis III. Then, by inference from internal evidence, EA 17, 19–21, and 24–25 fit into the previous five years or so. The Babylonian correspondence with Amenophis III also fits well into his last years, and in general, nothing in the archive argues clearly for an earlier date.<sup>121</sup>

120. On EA 16, see n. 123.

121. The arguments for an earlier date of the Arzawa correspondence have been refuted by F. Starke, ZA 71 (1982) pp. 221ff. (See, however, EA 31, n. 2.) Even if one sees in EA 31:25–27 reference to events in Hittite history far back in the reign of Amenophis III, this does not imply a date for the writing of the letter; see Wilhelm and Boese, High, Middle, or Low? (see n. 119), pp. 103ff.

Within this framework we may locate some of the international correspondence a little more precisely:

Babylonian—the last years of Amenophis III until late in the reign of Amenophis IV, perhaps even as late as the first year or so of Tutankhamun;<sup>122</sup>

Assyrian—late in the reign of Amenophis IV, if not later;<sup>123</sup>

Mittanian—ca. year 30 of Amenophis III until year 4–5 (very short co-regency or no co-regency) or year 14–15 (co-regency of ca. 10 years) of Amenophis IV;

Arzawa—Amenophis III.<sup>124</sup>

Of the Hittite letters, EA 41 is addressed to Huriya, who, according to one's reconstruction of Hittite history, is either Amenophis IV, Tutankhamun, or Smenkhkare.<sup>125</sup> The other letters (EA 42–44), non liquet. The Alašia letters (EA 33–40): again non liquet.<sup>126</sup>

Since, with few exceptions, the vassals never address the king by name, we lack this valuable evidence for establishing the relative chronology of their letters. The correspondence of the northern vassals, however, presents a fairly clear if rather general sequence of three periods: an earlier and a later Rib-Hadda of Byblos, and one post-Rib-Hadda. To the first are to be assigned EA 68–95; in this period 'Abdi-Asirta of Amurru (EA 60–62) was Rib-Hadda's main enemy, and probably Amenophis III was king.<sup>127</sup> In the second period, EA 101–38 and

122. The possibility of the later date depends on the identity of the recipient of EA 9; see n. 137 and EA 9, n. 1.

123. EA 15 and 16 were probably separated by a fair interval, since the latter implies, it seems, several exchanges of envoys, any one of which could explain EA 9:31–35. If the addressee of EA 16 was Aya, the successor of Tutankhamun (see EA 16, n. 1), one can only guess how this letter made its way to the abandoned capital.

124. See n. 121.

125. See n. 138 and EA 41, n. 1.

126. On the chronology of the international correspondence and for a critical review of earlier opinions, see Kühne.

127. The arguments for placing EA 68–70 in the second Rib-Hadda period (Campbell, Chronology, pp. 80, 82f.) depend on questionable translations and readings. The assignment of EA 83–86 is also not without difficulties (Campbell, Chronology, pp. 93ff.). Putting the entire early period in the reign of Amenophis III is not universally accepted; see Campbell, ibid.; Klengel, Geschichte Syriens im 2. Jahrtausend v. u. Z., Teil 2 (Berlin, 1969), pp. 184, 231, n. 4; Kitchen, Suppiluliuma and the Amarna Pharaohs (see n. 119), pp. 40ff. Wilhelm and Boese, Middle, High, or Low? (see n. 119), p. 86, would assign all vassal letters, or at least the vast majority, to the reign of Amenophis IV. If, however, Rib-Hadda's letters fall in this period, it is very difficult, if not impossible, to explain why the Byblos

362 were written, and Amenophis IV was on the throne. The last period, beginning with the exile and, probably not long afterwards, the death of Rib-Hadda (EA 162:7ff.), introduces new protagonists, notably Abi-Milku of Tyre (EA 146–55) and Aitagama of Qadeš (EA 189), and new synchronisms.<sup>128</sup> Just when this period begins in the reign of Amenophis IV, and whether within it some letters are addressed to his successors, are unresolved issues.<sup>129</sup>

The correspondence of the southern vassals has certain clear sequences and correlations, but its time span is more difficult to determine. One point of reference is the figure of Lab'ayu (EA 252–54), who clearly belongs to the earliest level of this correspondence. His death provides a terminus ante and post quem for a good number of letters. He is ruler, when writing in the Aziru period, recalls (EA 108, 117, 131, 132, 362) the success the present king's father, certainly Amenophis III, had in an earlier action against 'Abdi-Aširta, but when writing in the 'Abdi-Aširta period, he does not refer to it even once. Why, when Aziru is the enemy, is Amenophis IV urged to do as his father did to 'Abdi-Aširta, but when the enemy is 'Abdi-Aširta, and therefore the example of his father even more pertinent, he hears not a word about his father? Different scribes with different arguments are not the explanation; scribes span the two periods (Campbell, Chronology, p. 84). Besides, Rib-Hadda did not leave the composition of his letters without his own contribution (Campbell, Chronology, p. 83). Had he known at the time of the early letters of a previous defeat and capture of his archenemy, how could he have failed to insist on their being mentioned and mentioned often?

128. Among the contemporaries of Abi-Milku were Zimredda of Sidon (EA 144f.; see 146:15; 147:66; 149:49, 57, 68, etc.), Biryawaza of Apu (Upu, EA 194–97; see 151:62), Aitagama of Qadeš (EA 151:59), Aziru (passim), and Niqmadu of Ugarit (EA 49), as may be inferred from the fact that Abi-Milku wrote EA 151:55ff. after the fire in the palace of Ugarit (Liverani, La storia di Ugarit, Studi Semitici 6 [Rome, 1962], pp. 27ff.). Aitagama was a contemporary of Akizzi of Qaṣna (EA 52–55; see 53:4ff.), Teuwatti of Lapana (EA 193; see 53:35ff.), Arsawuya of Ruḥizzi (Ruḥiṣu) (EA 191–92; see 53:35ff.), and two kings of Nuḥašše and Ni'i (see EA 53:40ff.), who undoubtedly were Addu-Nirari (EA 51) and Aki-Teššup, respectively (see Nougayrol, PRU 4, pp. 32ff.; cf. EA 59:15, 18), in the time of Amenophis IV (EA 53:1; see also 140, 363).

129. Rib-Hadda's correspondence with Amenophis IV covered a period of at least five years (Campbell, Chronology, p. 88). There is, however, a hiatus in Rib-Hadda's letters during which 'Abdi-Aširta is captured and eventually dies or is killed. The length of this period is unknown. If Amenophis IV had a long co-regency with his father, Rib-Hadda died about the same time as his master, and the post-Rib-Hadda period would have to be assigned mainly to the reigns of Smenkhkare and Tutankhamun. (Following Krauss, Das Ende der Amarnazeit [see n. 119], one would put nh.t-hpr.w-r, Amenophis IV's daughter, Meritaten [Mayatil], before Smenkhkare; see the table at the end of the Introduction.) Some letters have been placed in these later reigns on other grounds, apart from the question of co-regency (EA 147 and 155, according to Redford, History and Chronology [see n. 119], p. 220; EA 139, 169, 171, according to Ph. H. J. ten Cate, BiOr 22 [1963] pp. 275f.; etc.); on EA 210, see above, n. 82, but see Krauss, Das Ende der Amarnazeit, pp. 71f.

also a contemporary of Surata of Akka (EA 232; see EA 245) and of Milkilu of Gazru (EA 267–71), to whom a letter was addressed very probably by Amenophis III.<sup>130</sup> He was dead before Rib-Hadda, for EA 287 and 289 speak only of Lab'ayu's sons at a time when Pawuru (EA 287:45), whom Rib-Hadda survived (EA 131, 362), is still alive.

Another correlation between the northern and southern correspondences is probably found in the warnings to a number of vassals, both northern and southern, to make preparations before the arrival of Egyptian troops.<sup>131</sup> If these warnings were all issued at virtually the same time, inspired by the same plans for a Syrian campaign, then not only are the two correspondences linked and a number of synchronisms established, but the relative date is also clear—i.e., shortly after Rib-Hadda's exile and before his death (EA 142:15–31).<sup>132</sup>

The major cruxes are several. One is the reading of the hieratic docket on EA 254, a letter from Lab'ayu: "year 12" or "year 32"? If the first, then it must refer to Amenophis IV and would require a very late date for the entire southern corpus.<sup>133</sup> If the second, then it could refer only to Amenophis III and would put the earliest level of the southern correspondence with comparable levels of the northern and international correspondences, late in this Pharaoh's reign.<sup>134</sup>

Another and, depending on one's interpretation of the letter, a possibly even more serious crux concerns the reading of the hieratic docket on EA 27: "[yea]r 2" or "[year] 12"? It raises, on one reading of the letter, the vexing and still unsettled question of the co-regency of Amenophis IV with his father. The letter is addressed to the former, and probably not long after the latter's death. If so, and if the first reading is correct, then a short co-regency remains a possibility, but it would have to be established, not from the Amarna letters, but from 130. In EA 369 the king attributes his power to Amun, not to the Aten.

131. See the text above at nn. 117–18.

132. There seem to be few if any southern letters after this time. If the more recent northern correspondence was left behind at Akhetaten, it is perhaps to be explained by the fact that, whereas the southern letters were still relevant for the administration, the profoundly altered situation in the north made letters written there of no practical value.

133. See Campbell, Chronology, pp. 69f. "Year 22" is another possibility, epigraphically, but suffers from the same difficulties as the alleged early date of EA 31 (see above, n. 121).

134. It would also bring down the date of Rib-Hadda's correspondence.

other evidence. But if the second is right, then a co-regency, and a long one of ten years or so, seems inescapable.<sup>135</sup>

A tissue of problems is the correlation of the data of the Amarna letters with the history of the Hittites and their expansion into Syria. Unfortunately, with the exception of EA 170, the Amarna letters speak in rather general terms of Hittite activities, allowing therefore conflicting interpretations, which are only encouraged by the uncertainties afflicting contemporary Hittite history.

Basic to the discussion of the Amarna data is the date of the accession of Šuppiluliumaš to the Hittite throne, for it was under him that the Hittites moved onto the larger political scene and through their ambitions came into conflict with Egypt. Most scholars have put Šuppiluliumaš on the throne ca. 1380 B.C. This would be late in the reign of Amenophis III and provide a broad chronological framework for references to Hittite aggression. This high date, however, has been challenged, with strong arguments assembled in favor of a much later date, ca. 1343 B.C., well into the reign of Amenophis IV. In this view, the Amarna framework collapses to a decade, and the period of possibly relevant Hittite activities is greatly reduced.<sup>136</sup>

Another and urgent problem is whether the Amarna data reflect the six-year Hurri war that Šuppiluliumaš waged in Syria late in his reign. On one reading of the evidence no reflection is possible, for it dates an early stage of the war at the time of the death of Tutankhamun; this would be many years after the abandonment of the site of Akhetaten and well out of the Amarna framework.<sup>137</sup> But other readings are 135. See Kühne, pp. 43f.; William J. Murnane, Ancient Egyptian Coregencies, Studies in Ancient Oriental Civilization, no. 40 (Chicago, 1977), pp. 124f. Murnane accepts the reading "12" but denies its bearing on the co-regency problem. The way, however, friendship is requested and promised in EA 27:9-12, 37-40, 74-78, strongly suggests a period of transition when friendship must be reestablished. Nor does it seem likely at all that after twelve years or more, Tušratta would still be urging that a promise made by Amenophis III be kept now by his son.

136. For the arguments supporting this much later accession date, see Wilhelm and Boese, High, Middle, or Low? (see n. 119). This would also make dating the reference to the Hittites in EA 75:35ff. more problematic than ever.

137. Early in the war Šuppiluliumaš learned of the death of the Egyptian king Bibhururiyaš (variant: Nibhururiyaš) and received the widow's extraordinary request for a Hittite prince to replace him (H. Güterbock, JCS 10 [1956] p. 94; A. Goetze, ANET, p. 319). As it stands, the name looks like Nibhurureya (Tutankhamun) rather than Naphurureya (Amenophis IV) or A(na)hururiya (Smenkhkare). If, however, as seems virtually certain, the Hurri war is reflected in the Amarna letters, then one either postulates confusion in the Hittite tradition (Albright, JEA 23 [1937] p. 194; Redford, History and Chronology [see n.

also possible, and indeed more probable. The dead king, whose identity is so important, is in one reading Amenophis IV, in another, Smenkhkare. In either one the Amarna data are most certainly relevant and part of the history of the six-year war.<sup>138</sup>

Absolute dates of kings reigning in the Amarna period cannot be fixed with certainty. The following reflect most recent studies:<sup>139</sup>

Kingdom	King	Dates of reign
Assyria	Aššur-uballiṭ	1353-1318
Babylonia	Kadašman-Enlil I	(1364)-1350
	Burna-Buriaš II	1349-1323
Egypt	Amenophis III	May 1386-1349 (1390-1352)
	Amenophis IV ( nḥ.t-ḥpr.w-rʿ )	1350-1334 (1352-1336) (1336-1335)
	Smenkhkare	1336-1334 (1335-1332)
	Tutankhamun	1334-1325 (1332-1323/22)
	Aya	1324-1321 (1323/22-1319/18) or 1324-1319

119], pp. 158ff.; Wilhelm and Boese, High, Middle, or Low? [see n. 119], pp. 100ff.) or argues that Niphururiya was by a development in the Egyptian language a possible form of the prenomen of Amenophis IV (Krauss, Das Ende der Amarnazeit [see n. 119], pp. 99ff.).

138. Krauss, Das Ende der Amarnazeit (see n. 119), pp. 54ff., offers an extensive reconstruction of the history, including the Amarna data, on the assumption that the dead king (see n. 137) was Amenophis IV. For criticisms of this view and a reconstruction that assumes the dead king was Smenkhkare, see Wilhelm and Boese, Middle, High, or Low? (see n. 119), esp. pp. 96ff.

139. The Assyrian and Babylonian dates are those of J. A. Brinkman, Materials and Studies for Kassite History: A Catalogue of Cuneiform Sources Pertaining to Specific Monarchs of the Kassite Dynasty, vol. 1 (Chicago, 1976), p. 31, but lowered by ten years, according to the "low chronology" (see E. Wente and C. Van Siclen, Studies in Honor of George R. Hughes, Studies in Ancient Oriental Civilization, no. 39 [Chicago, 1976], p. 249; J. Boese and G. Wilhelm, WZKM 71 [1979] pp. 19ff.). The Babylonian dates have a margin error of  $\pm 5$  years. The Egyptian chronologies, which are also "low," are those of Wente and Van Siclen, p. 218, and, in parentheses, of Krauss, Das Ende der Amarnazeit (see n. 119), p. 202.

140. For the lower dates, see Wente and Van Siclen, Studies (see n. 139), pp. 249ff.; Wilhelm and Boese, High, Middle, or Low? (see n. 119), pp. 107f. Note that, if Aya is addressed in EA 16, only the low Assyrian chronology is compatible with the Egyptian chronologies presented here.

Editorial Apparatus

The following symbols are used in the translations and transcriptions:

[...]	missing text
...	obscure or greatly damaged text
< >	omission by scribe
<< >>	sign(s) repeated by error
ʹ ʹ	sign(s) partially illegible
( )	word(s) supplied by editor to clarify text

In addition, the following appear in the text:

boldface numbers	line numbers (also in the notes)
paragraph indent	indication of a line of separation traced across the surface of the tablet (a usage that was especially widespread in the North)
italics	translation doubtful (for italics in notes, see below)
centered colon	indication of a gloss (the gloss is translated only if it has a different meaning from the word glossed; glosses in Akkadian are not indicated)

For the transliteration of Sumerian-Akkadian passages the following conventions apply:

Sumerian	roman type
Sumerogram	small caps
Akkadian	reading certain: italics reading dubious: roman

As always, proper names present problems. I have tried to resolve these in what seemed the simplest, if not always the most consistent, fashion. In general, syllabic writings have been kept; thus, for example, Yapaḫu, and not Yapa'u. Whenever a logogram has been employed, however, I have given a more exact transcription—for instance, 𒌦 = 'Abdu, 𒌦𒌦 = Ba'lu. With the exception of several well-known geographic names (Egypt, not Mišru; Jerusalem, not Urusalim; etc.), I have retained the ancient forms, and although we know that geographic names are generally in the genitive (the country/the city of + geographic name), the (diptotic) form of the text has usually been kept. In addition, throughout these letters the short form "Šumur" has been used rather than the long form "Šumuru."

The Near East in the Amarna Period

The Pharaoh complains to the Babylonian king

Say [t]o Kadašman-Enlil,<sup>1</sup> the king of Karadun[i]še, my brother: Thus Nibmuarea, Great King,<sup>2</sup> the king of Egypt, your brother. For me all goes well. For you may all go well. For your household, for your wives, for your sons, for your magnates,<sup>3</sup> your horses, your chariots, for your countries, may all go very well. For me all goes well. For my household, for my wives, for my sons, for my magnates, my horses, the numerous troops, all goes well, and in my countries all goes very well. 10–17 I have just heard what you wrote me about, saying, “Here you are asking for my daughter in marriage, but my sister whom my father gave you was (already) there with you, and no one has seen her (so as to know) if now she is alive or if she is dead.” These are your words that you sent me on your tablet. Did you, however, ever send here a dignitary of yours<sup>4</sup> who knows your sister, who could speak with her and identify her?<sup>5</sup> 17–21 Suppose he spoke with her. The men whom you sent here are nobodies.<sup>6</sup> One was the [...] of Zaqara, [the ot]her, an assherder [fr]om [...]. There has been no one among the[m wb]o [knows her, wb]o was an intimate of your father, and w[ho could identify her].<sup>7</sup> 21–25 Moreover, the messengers [who] ... [...].<sup>8</sup> 26–32 And as for your writing me,<sup>9</sup> “You addressed my me[ssen]gers as your wives were standing gathered in your presence, saying, ‘Here is your mistress who stands before you.’ But my messengers did not know her, (whether) it was my sister who was at your side”<sup>10</sup>—about whom you yourself have now written me, “My messengers did not know her,” and (still) you say, “Who is to identify her?”— 32–36 Why don’t you send me a dignitary of yours who can tell you the truth, the well-being<sup>11</sup> of your sister who is here, and then you can believe the one who enters to see her’ quarters and her relationship with the king?<sup>12</sup> 36–42 And as for your writing me, “Perhaps the one my messengers saw was the daughter of some poor man, or of some Ka(s)kean,<sup>13</sup> or the daughter of some Hanigalbatean, or perhaps someone from Ugarit.<sup>14</sup> Who can believe them? The one who was at your side ... , she did not op[en] her mouth.<sup>15</sup> One cannot believe them at all." These are your words. 43–52 But if your [sister] were de[ad], what reason would there be for one's concealing her de[ath],<sup>16</sup> and our presenting someone [else]? [May] Aman [be my witness]<sup>17</sup> . . . [ . . . ] 52–62 And as for your writing me, "My daughters who are married to neighb[ori]ng kings, if my messengers [go] there, they speak with th[em], and they bri[ng] me a greeting-gift. The one with you [ . . . ]"<sup>18</sup> Th[ese] are your words. Undoubtedly [your neighb[ori]ng]<sup>19</sup> kings are [ri]ch<sup>20</sup> (and) mighty. Your daughters can acquire something from them and send (it) to you. But what does she have, your sister who is with me? But should she make some acquisition, I will send (it) to you! It is a fine thing that you give your daughters in order to acquire a nugget of gold<sup>21</sup> from your neighbors! 62–77 As for your writing me the words of my father, never mind! you do not cite his (exact) words.<sup>22</sup> Furthermore, "Establish friendly brotherhood between us"—these are the words that you wrote me. Now, we are brothers, you and I, but I have quarreled because of your messengers, since they report to you saying, "Nothing is given to us who go to Egypt." Those who come to me—has a single one of them ever come [and not]<sup>23</sup> received silver, gold, oil, solemn garb,<sup>24</sup> every sort of finery, [more than i]n any other country?<sup>25</sup> He does not tell the truth to the one who sends him! The first time the messengers went off to [y]our f[ather],<sup>26</sup> and their mouths told lies.<sup>27</sup> The next time they went off [and] they told lies to you. So I said to myself, "Whether I [gi]ve them anything or do not give them<sup>28</sup> anything, they are going to go on t[el]ling [l]i[e]s just the same." So I made up my mind in their regard and I did not gi[ve i]o them anymore.<sup>29</sup> 77–88 And as for your writing me, "You said to my messengers, 'Has your master no troops? The girl he gave<sup>30</sup> to me is not beautiful.'"—these are your words, (but) it is not so! Your messengers keep telling you what is not true, (saying things) like this. Whether soldiers<sup>31</sup> are on hand or not can be found out for me.<sup>32</sup> What reason is there for asking about whether there are troops on hand belonging to you, whether there are horses on hand also belonging to you? Please, do not listen to them!<sup>33</sup> Your messengers, of whom the mouths of both groups<sup>34</sup> are untruthful and whom you sent here, I swear that they have not served you,<sup>35</sup> and so they go on t[el]ling lies in order to escape your punishment. 88–98 As for your saying to me, "He put my chariots among the chariots of the mayors. You did not review them separately. You humiliated them before the country where you are. You did not rev[iew] (them) separately." Whether the chariots were here or there, the chariots needed the horses of my [coun]try—all were my horses.<sup>36</sup> As for your writing me in order to aggrandize yourself (and) to put oil on the b[ea]d of a girl, you for your part sent me one pr[es]ent.<sup>37</sup> Are we to laugh?<sup>38</sup>

NOTES

1. <sup>m</sup>ka-dá (over erasure; also Gordon)-aš-ma-an-en-líl. KUR ka-ra-an-du-n[í]-še (Gordon).

2. The exact legal and political implications of the title "Great King," which is confined to the rulers of the major states, are not clear. It appears in the Old Babylonian period, certainly with implications of status and noblesse oblige (ARMT 5, 20:33), but as used in the fourteenth to thirteenth centuries B.C. it was perhaps an innovation of the Hittites (F. Starke, ZA 67 [1977] p. 288). For occurrences, see M.-J. Seux, Épithètes royales akkadiennes et sumériennes (Paris, 1967), pp. 298ff.; for the Old Babylonian period, see also M. Rowton, JCS 21 (1967) p. 269, A. 7535: 24f., of the king of Elam; D. Charpin, MARI 3, p. 110; and K. Veenhof, MARI 4, p. 209 and n. 72. That the Babylonian king is here not given the same title need not imply Egyptian claims of superiority or hostility; cf. EA 41. The Pharaoh is also addressed as "Great King" by northern vassals; see P. Artzi, JNES 27 (1968) p. 165, n. 18. On the West Semitic (at least linguistic) equivalent mlk rb in Ugaritic and its later history in Syria and Palestine, see J. Greenfield, Fourth World Congress of Jewish Studies 1 (1967) pp. 118f.

3. In the greeting-formula, the term "magnate" (rabû, "great one") refers to the highest officials of the palace organization; see Liverani, in Garelli, ed., Le Palais et la Royauté (Paris, 1974), p. 343. Cf. PRU 4, p. 42:38ff., for a list of the magnates at the Hittite court; in Babylonian sources they are identified as šūt ekalli, "those of the palace" (S. Page, Sumer 23 [1967] p. 64 ii 13; F. Reschid and C. Wilcke, ZA 65 [1975] p. 40:29f.). Lesser kings also had their magnates; for example, the king of Qadeš (see Ugar. 5, no. 38).

4. LÚ-ka DUGUD (kabta; LÚ ka-DUGUD?): following Pintore, OA 11 (1972) pp. 37f., and Gordon, confirmed by collation (RA 69 [1975] p. 156, n. 1); also line 33.

5. ú-ma-an-di-še (AHw, p. 640; CAD, I/J, p. 31).

6. rīqa, lit. "empty," contrasting with kabta (line 15), "heavy, important," and therefore "nobodies" seems preferable to "simpletons" (Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 181; Kühne, p. 53, n. 245) or "idle" (AHw, p. 979). "Empty-handed" (Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 61) does not fit the context. The figures mentioned were probably proverbial (Ungnad).

7. šJa [i-de, -še šJa qé-ri-ib 21 a-na a-bi-ka à šJa ú-ma-an-di-še] (cf. lines 16 f.); on qerib, for correct qerub, see AHw, p. 915.

8. Line 22: Knudtzon's qa, perhaps the end of a long sign (Gordon). Line 24: the reading ti-na-din is quite doubtful, since the prefix appears throughout this letter as ta-, never ti- (cf. esp. line 61, ta-na-an-din). Read šu-ul[ma] à TI (balāša), "well-being and life," with what goes before, and then na-din 25 [x-y] a-[n]Ja ŠU-ī[i-šu a]-na la-q[ī-šu] a-na um-mi-še, "[x-y] was given into [his] hand [t]o fet[er] her mother"? Instead of "mother," in context perhaps ummu is better taken as "nurse"; cf. the "mother" who accompanies to the Mari court a woman given in marriage (AEM 1/2, no. 298:29 and note f, with references to Durand, MARI 4, pp. 414f., and Bardet, ARMT 23, pp. 72ff.).

9. Epistolary inūma introduces a clause that states the fact of communication, with or without following direct quotation (see also lines 36, 52, 78, 88, 95), and is especially frequent at the beginning of the body of a letter (see above, Introduction, n. 89); cf. epistolary quod (quod scribis). kī is also used this way: kī aḥīya tašpura mā . . ., "As to my brother's having written me, saying. . ." Cf. perhaps in Ugaritic u.k.rgm. špš / mlk.rb.b<sup>4</sup>ly (PRU 2, 18:1f.; see also PRU 5, 65 r. 7). Deictic kī probably also explains the use of inūma; see Or n.s. 29 (1960) p. 17, n. 1, and Rainey, Particles.

10. ša KI(itti)-ka ša anumma: interpretation very difficult (see also lines 41, 56, 91), but the existence of kīka (AHw, p. 478, "thus," "she is thus, like this"; CAD, K, p. 351, "like her") is very dubious (on EA 138:66, see below), and ša cannot be the feminine pronominal suffix, which always appears as -še in this letter. The assumption of a logographic writing of itti is very difficult, though in line 91 "the country where you are" (māti ša ittīka) would be very reminiscent of the stock phrase "the place of the king where you are" in the vassal correspondence (ašru šarri ša ittīka; see Introduction, sect. 5).

11. Since the main question raised by the Babylonian king concerned his sister's welfare, šulmāni (for correct šulmāna) seems best taken as "well-being," a meaning well-attested in the Western Periphery (see AHw, p. 1268).

12. ta-qa-ap (cf. AHw, p. 919): the assumption of a short form of taqabbi (also lines 40, 42), proposed by Kühne, p. 10, n. 42, does not seem necessary. a-na na-ma-ra, for a-na a-ma-ra (cf. the common expression tēm x amāru), with CAD, N/1, p. 219; otherwise, AHw, p. 726.

13. kurga-(aš)-ga-ia: see E. von Schuler, Die Kaskäer (Berlin, 1965), p. 81. Cf. EA 31:25–27.

14. The sign after it is uncertain: KI (Knudtzon), very doubtful; sa[l]-ma (Knudtzon's other proposal), impossible (Gordon).

15. If ša a[n-n]i (Knudtzon) is correct, "as to what belongs to an answer"? According to Gordon, there is room only for ip-t[i].

16. m[u-ta/ut-še].

17. [lu-ú i-de<sub>4</sub>], end of line 45; end of 46, perhaps a-[ḥa-at-ka bal-ṭa-at], "[your] sister is alive"; end of 47, [. . . aš-ku-un-še], "[. . . I have made her] a mistress of the household"; line 50, "more than the wives [of neighboring kings. . .]?"

18. On our understanding of ša KI-ka, one would expect something like lapnat, "is poor," ḥašḥat, "is in need," or the like; space is small.

19. [i-me]-[ti]-[ia], quite probable, was proposed by Kühne, p. 51, n. 237, and also by Gordon.

20. š'a-ru-ti: the reading is virtually certain (also Gordon). Perhaps the language is more correct than assumed and the adjectives are attributive rather than predicative; if so, "as to the rich (and) mighty kings. . ."

21. If LU-ta (so Gordon), then either ra-ši-lu-ta, "the lucky ones" (cf. AHw, p. 961; "... you give your daughters to ..."), or ṭab-ta, "(to acquire) good thing(s)" (Gordon, though, has "to acquire friendship," also possible). However, I could not see the top horizontal that Knudtzon copied (VAB 2/1, p. 1001, no. 6), and UR seemed more likely, and therefore liq-ta (CAD, L, p. 206). This was also Artzi's reading (see CAD), but more recently he has favored ra-ši-lu-ta (La femme [see Introduction, n. 62], p. 25, n. 15). The venality implied by liqta seems more to the point in context.

22. Also possible: "As for your writing me (that) I have gone back on [lit. abandoned] the words of my father, you do not cite. . ." However, with very few exceptions, the word order is verb-object. Moreover, instead of the expected tēzib one must assume a virtual object-clause. The interjection ezib seems preferable, even though otherwise unknown in the periphery.

23. [ù la] el-te-ge.

24. <sup>u</sup>ME(MA<sub>6</sub>/BA<sub>13</sub>).HI.A, nalbašu, probably a cloak or mantle of some sort ("solemn garb" is a gloss); add this passage and PRU 3, p. 183:10, to the dictionaries.

25. 71 [UGU ša i-n]a K[UR] ša-ni-ti. Long-established custom required the king to welcome royal envoys to his table as often as their rank demanded, to furnish board and lodging, and to give them gifts; see ARMT 21, pp. 506ff., and AÉM 1/2, pp. 142f.

26. a-na a-[bi-k]a (Gordon).

27. Perhaps the abstract sarrūtu (AHw, p. 1031), but in line 87 sà-ra-ti (sarrāti) favors the alternative interpretation, masculine plural adjective.

28. The [z]a "may well be scratches; therefore (anandinunu)-[ti] is possible (and no sà-ru-ti)" (Gordon). If so, perhaps 'i'-[dā]b-bu-bu.

29. ú-ul ad-d[i-in a-na m]u-ḥi-šu-nu.

30. Or "they gave" (indefinite plural), "that was given."

31. ḥu-<sup>r</sup>ra-t<sup>a</sup><sub>5</sub>, is a possible reading (Gordon).

32. Either ud-dū-ni (CAD, I/J, p. 30b) or ut-tu-ni (atū, "to find, discover") is possible.

33. The feminine gender of the suffix is difficult (the things or words said? confusion of gender?). Perhaps better: "do not listen to (any) evil man (lem-na)."

34. On the dual suffix, see BASOR 211 (1973) pp. 52f.

35. šumma is understood as introducing a negative assertory oath.

36. Lines 88ff. are very obscure. I assume that in the Babylonian king's complaint, he speaks of the Pharaoh in both the third and second person. Line 91, tu-te<sub>4</sub>-pí-il-šu-nu.

37. ana šu-ti-ri-ka (for correct šu-tu-ri-ka; a West Semitism): following Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 158, n. 88, which I take to imply that the Pharaoh refers to a request by the Babylonian king for an Egyptian girl whom he wishes to have anointed (cf. EA 11:17ff.); otherwise, Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 27; p. 169, n. 348.

38. Against NI = šamnu is the writing NI.HI.A in lines 70 and 96, and the impossibility of making any sense of the following Za-ah. For the assumed first person plural (nišāḥ), cf. nušeziz in line 45. Perhaps "we are distressed"; on this meaning of šāḥu, see Veenhof, JEOL 24 (1975–76) pp. 107ff.

Proposals of marriage

{Say} to Mimmuwareya, the king of Egypt, {my} brother: Thus {K}a[d]aš[m]a[n-En]lil, the king of Kara[duniyaš]. For me and {m}y country all goes very {well}. For you, for {yo}ur wi[ves], for your sons, fo[r your magnates], your horses, your chariots, and your entire country, may all go very we[ll].

6-11 With regard to my brother's writing me ab[out marriage],<sup>1</sup> saying, "[I *desir*e {your daughter}],"<sup>2</sup> why should you not marry (her)? [...] . . . My daughters are available, {but their husbands must be a king o}r of royal blood. {These are the only ones whom I accept for my daughters. No king has ever gi}ven {his daughters to anyone not of royal blood}.<sup>3</sup>

NOTES

1. a-n[a a-ḥu-za-ti]: following Kühne, p. 55, n. 63.

2. [DUMU.MUNUS-ka a-ḥa-aš-še-e]ḥ: following Kühne, ibid.

These are very conjectural restorations based on the assumption that the Babylonian king wishes to stress the high standards of his own dynasty's customs, while also implying that to demand more would be unreasonable. He would thus lay the grounds for his own request of an Egyptian princess; cf. EA 4.

4. [DUMU.MUNUS.MEŠ-ka i-ba-aš-ša-a am-mi-ni la ta-a]d-di-na: cf. Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 181.

Marriage, grumblings, a palace-opening

TEXT: C 4743 (12210).

COPY: WA 1.

{S}ay {to Nim}u'wareya, the king of Eg[yp]t, m[y] {brother}: {Thus Kad}ašman-Enlil, the king of Karaduniyaš, your brother. {For me all indeed goes w}ell. For you, your household, your wives, {and for you}r {sons},<sup>1</sup> your country, your chariots, your horses, your {mag}nates may all go very well.

4-12 With regard to the girl, my daughter,<sup>2</sup> about whom you wrote to me in view of marriage, she has 'become a woman;<sup>3</sup> she is nubile. Just send a delegation to fetch her. Previously, my father would send a messenger to you, and you would not detain him for long. You qui[ck]ly<sup>4</sup> sent him off, and you would also send here to my father a beautiful greeting-gift.<sup>5</sup>

13-22 But now when I sent a messenger to you, you have detained him for six years, and you have sent me as my greeting-gift, the only thing in six years, 30 minas of gold that looked like silver.<sup>6</sup> That gold was melted down in the presence of Kasi, your messenger, and he was a witness. When you celebrated a great festival, you did not send your messenger to me, saying, "Come t[o eat an]d drink."<sup>7</sup> No[r did you send me] my greeting-gift<sup>8</sup> in connection with the festival. It was just 30 minas of gold that you [sent me].<sup>9</sup> My {gi}ft {does not amoun}t to what [I have given you] every yea[r].<sup>10</sup>

23-31 I have built a {ne}w {house}.<sup>11</sup> I{[n my house]} I have built a [l]arge [...]. Your {mes}engers have see[n the house and the . . . , and are pleased. No]w<sup>12</sup> I am going to hav[e] a house-opening. Come {yourself} to [eat an]d drink with me.<sup>13</sup> [I shall not act a]s<sup>14</sup> you yourself did. {25 men and } 25 women, altogether 50 i[n my service],<sup>15</sup> I send {to you in connection with the house-opening}.<sup>16</sup>

32-34 [...] for 10 wooden chariots,<sup>17</sup> {and 10 teams of hor}ses I send to you as your greeting-gift.

NOTES

1. [DUMU.MEŠ-ka]: following von Soden, p. 427, confirmed by collation (also Gordon).

2. DUMU.MUNUS.A.NI-ia: following Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 181, with von Soden and also Kühne, p. 54, n. 250; otherwise, Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 26. See also EA 287:26 for pronominal suffix as part of logogram, as commonly in the Old Babylonian period.

3. MUNUS = amiltu or sinništu? See CAD, A/2, p. 47b, and S, p. 292 (discussion).

4. ḥa-m' u' -[u]t-ṛ'a: Gordon saw all the signs "quite clearly."

5. On lines 9–12 see von Soden, p. 427.

6. Following AHw, p. 227, and CAD, E, p. 196. Other versions: "of the quality of silver" (Kühne, p. 54); "worked with (KI = itti) silver" (Landesberger in Gordon). Egyptian gold had a high percentage of silver, giving it a grayish cast (A. Lucas, Ancient Egyptian Materials and Industries<sup>3</sup> [London, 1948], pp. 257ff.).

7. [akul] 'ū' šiti (Gordon).

8. šulmānī, "my (greeting-)gift": following Kühne, p. 54, n. 252. The festival was undoubtedly one of three sd-festivals celebrated by Amenophis III in his thirtieth, thirty-fourth, and thirty-seventh years (Kühne, p. 254).

9. tu-še-bi-la: following von Soden, p. 427.

10. [šū-ul-ma-ni ša-a e-em MU.I. [KAM ad-di-na-ak-ku ul ma-ši]-i: free restoration.

11. [É eš-š]a: cf. EA 5:13, 19. Von Soden, p. 427, proposed [a-nu-um-ma bī]ta, but there is not enough room for this restoration, and anumma is not used in Middle Babylonian. At the end of the line ina libbi fits the traces very well.

12. 26 [i-na-an-n]a. End of line 25, free restoration: ītam[rū]-ma ḥa-du-ū].

13. 27 [ū at-ta] alkamma itīya 28 [a-ku-ul] [ū' (head of final vertical visible, Gordon) šiti.

14. [ul ep-pu-uš š]a.

15. a-š[i-ib maḥrī/pānī-ia]: a phonetic spelling, a-m[i-li], does not seem likely.

16. [a-na te-ru-ba-ti]: cf. Kühne, p. 55, n. 259.

17. "Wooden chariots" (also EA 9:37; 19:84) were perhaps the light two-wheeled battle chariot, as opposed to the heavier four-wheeled wagons that were used for transport and were reinforced with metal fittings; cf. the same distinction in Egyptian and Edel's remarks in Manfred Görg, ed., Fontes atque Pontes: Eine Festgabe für Hellmut Brunner, Ägypten und Altes Testament 5 (Wiesbaden, 1983), pp. 104f.

EA 4

Royal deceit and threats

TEXT: VAT 1657.

4–22 [Moreove]r,<sup>2</sup> you, my brother, when I wrote [to you]<sup>3</sup> about marrying your daughter, in accordance with your practice of not gi[ving]<sup>4</sup> (a daughter), [wrote to me], saying, "From time immemorial no daughter of the king of Egy[pt] is given to anyone." Why n[ot]?<sup>5</sup> You are a king; you d[o] as you please. Were you to give (a daughter), who would s[ay] anything? Since I was told of this message, I wrote as follows t[o my brother], saying, "[Someone's]<sup>6</sup> grown daughters, beautiful women, must be available. Send me a beautiful woman as if she were [you]r daughter.<sup>7</sup> Who is going to say, 'She is no daughter of the king!?' But holding to your decision, you have not sent me anyone. Did not you yourself seek brotherhood and amity, and so wrote me about marriage that we might come closer to each other, and did (not) I, for my part, write you about marriage for this very same reason, i.e., brotherhood and amity, that we might come closer to each other?<sup>8</sup> Why, then, did my brother not send me just one woman? Should I, perhaps, since you did not send me a woman, refuse you a woman, just as you did to me, and n[ot send her]?<sup>9</sup> But my daughters being available, I will not refuse [one] to y[ou].<sup>10</sup>

23–35 Perhaps, too, when I [wrote you] about marriage, [and] when I wrote you about the animals, . . . [..] Now, you need not ac[cept]<sup>11</sup> the offspring<sup>12</sup> of my daughter whom I shall s[end to you, but] s[end me] any animals requested of you.

36–50 And as to the gold I wrote you about, send me whatever i[s on hand], (as) much (as possible), before your messenger [comes] to me, right now, in all haste, this summer, either in the month of Tammuz or in the month of Ab,<sup>13</sup> so I can finish the work that I am engaged on. If during this summer, in the months of Tammuz or Ab, you send<sup>14</sup> the gold I wrote you about, I will give you my daughter. So please<sup>15</sup> send me the gold you [feel prompted t]o. But if in the months of Tammuz or Ab you do not send me the gold and (with it) I do not finish the work I am engaged on, what would be the point of your being pleased to send me (gold)? Once I have finished the work I am engaged on, what need will I have of gold? Then you could send me 3,000 talents of gold, and I would not accept it.<sup>16</sup> I would send it back to you, and I would not gi[ve] my daughter in marriage.<sup>17</sup>

NOTES

1. The greeting and perhaps several more lines are completely destroyed; lines 1–3 are too fragmentary for translation. That EA 4 belongs to the Amenophis III-Kadašman-Enlil correspondence is not completely certain; see Kühne, p. 56.

2. [ap-pu-na-m]a: [a-nu-um-m]a (Knudtzon) is not used in Middle Babylonian; see EA 3, n. 11.

3. āš-pu-r[a-ak-ku ta-allal-ta-ap-ra]: first word, with Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 181, and von Soden, p. 428. However, since temporal clauses regularly precede, or, as here, are inserted within, the main clause (GAG §169b), the main verb must have followed.

4. kī lā na-d[a-ni-im-ma]: following Knudtzon and Aro, StOr 20, p. 135; otherwise, von Soden, p. 428.

5. am-mi-ni l[a innaddin]: beginning of a horizontal wedge visible, and beneath it, a hole, not writing.

6. GAL.M[ĒŠ ša ma-am-ma]: MEŠ not collated (cf. copy VS 11).

7. ki-i D[UMU MUNUS-k]a: following von Soden, p. 428, except for [a . . .], for which there is not enough room.

8. Because of the preterite (ašpurakku, line 18), lines 17f. must be taken as a question; see Aro, StOr 20, p. 81. Either ul (line 15) is still felt and understood in this clause, or, as seems more likely, we should read ù a-na-ku (ul). . . . That ul is used rather than lā is undoubtedly due to the fact that lines 15–18 are rhetorical questions. On the grammar of rhetorical questions, see also EA 11, n. 18.

9. l[a ušebbilši]: following von Soden, p. 428.

10. a-ka-al-la-a[k-ku-uš-ši]: following ibid.

11. ia-ša-a[b-ba-at ù]: cf. ibid.

12. Literally, “seed”; for a woman’s seed, cf. zēr mārīya, “my daughter’s seed” (KB0 1, 8:31).

13. The fourth (June–July) and fifth (July–August) months of the Babylonian calendar.

14. tulēbīla[m]: following von Soden, p. 428.

15. ina tūbi: following Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 182. Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 155, n. 121, sees in the expression as used in line 46 reference to a gift that has not been requested, but the distinction is hard to reconcile with the expression in line 43.

16. Three thousand talents is a huge amount of gold, roughly 100 tons.

17. After a space of three lines, traces suggest additional writing, probably a list of gifts; see VAB 2/1, p. 74.

Gifts of Egyptian furniture for the Babylonian palace

TEXT: BM 29787 + C (12195).

COPIES: BB 4 + WA 17.

[Thus Nibmuar]ey[a,<sup>1</sup> Great King, the king of Egypt. Say to] Ka[dašman-Enlil, the king of Karadu]niya[š,<sup>2</sup> my brother: For m]e all goes (well). F[or you may all go well. For you]r [household, your] wives, [your sons, yo]ur [magnates], yo[ur] troops, [yo]ur [horses], your [chariots], and i[n your countries, may all go] well. [For me al]l goes well. For my household, [my] wives, [my sons], my magnates, my ma[ny] troops, my [horses], my chariots, and in [m]y [countries] all goes very, very well.

13–33 I have [just]<sup>3</sup> heard that you have built some n[ew] quarters.<sup>4</sup> I am sending herewith some furnishings for your house. Indeed I shall be preparing everything possible<sup>5</sup> before the arrival of your messenger who is bringing your daughter. When<sup>6</sup> your messenger returns, I will send (them) to [yo]u. I herewith send you, in the charge of Šutti, a greeting-gift of things for the new house: 1 bed<sup>7</sup> of ebony, overlaid with ivory and gold; 3 beds of ebony, overlaid with gold; 1 uruššu of ebony, overlaid with gold; 1 lar[ge] chair [o]f ebony, overlaid with gold; 5 chairs of [eb]ony, overlaid with gold; 4 chairs of ebo[ny], overlaid with gold.<sup>8</sup> These things, the weight of all the gold: 7 minas, 9 shekels, of gold. The weight of the silver: 1 [mi]na, 8½ shekels, of silver.<sup>9</sup> (In addition), 10 footrests of ebony; [. . .] of ebony, overlaid with gold; [. . .] footrests of ivory, overlaid with gold; [. . .] . . . of gold. [Total<sup>10</sup> x] minas, 10 and 7 shekels, of gold.

NOTES

1. [. . . r]e-i[a . . .] (Gordon). Note the form of address (see sect. 4 of the Introduction).

2. Probably not enough room for LUGAL GAL, “Great King,” at the beginning of line 3; see Seux, Épithètes royales akkadiennes et sumériennes (Paris, 1967), p. 299, n. 162.

3. Restore either inanna or anumma (cf. EA 1:10).

4. É.ĦI.A. GI[BIL]: in line 19, É GIBIL is certain, and the traces here fit GIBIL perfectly.

5. mimma ma-a-‘la’: last sign possibly ad (so Knudtzon, VAB 2/1, p. 76, note n, denied by Gordon) or even ta; if mala, unusual orthography. Note the stock expression šūšuru ana pānī, “to prepare before the arrival,” so common in the vassal letters (see the Introduction, sect. 5, and n. 100). CAD, E, p. 358a, followed by Durand, ARMT 21, p. 456, n. 16: “but now, I will prepare whatever your messenger selects.” This gives ana pānī a meaning for which I know no parallel. CAD, M/1, p. 145a–b, confuses šūšuru and wuššuru, “to release.”

6. Note the use of šumma as a temporal conjunction, as at Boghazköy, in a letter characterized by the Hittite ductus and the Hittite form of address.

7. The join with the Cairo fragment begins here.

8. Lines 24–25 are conflated in the WA copy.

9. This is the first reference to silver.

A lesson in geography

TEXT: VAT 150 (not collated).

COPIES: WA 7; VS 11, 4.

TRANSLATION: Oppenheim, LFM, pp. 113ff.

m]e and my household, for my horses and [m]y ch[ariots, for] my magnates and my country all goes ver[y well].

6–7 For my brother and his household, for his horses and [his] c[hariots], for his magnates and his country ma[y all go] very [well].

8–13 From the time the messenger of my brother ar[rived here],<sup>3</sup> I have not been well, and so on no occa[sion]<sup>4</sup> has his messenger eaten food and [drunk] spirits [in my com]pany. If you ask [. . .] . . .,<sup>5</sup> your messenger, he will [tell you that] I have not been well and that, as far as my rec[overy] is concerned,<sup>6</sup> I am [still b]y no means re[stored to health].<sup>7</sup> 14–25 [Furthermore], since I was not well and my brother [showed me no] conc[ern],<sup>8</sup> I for my part became an[gry]<sup>9</sup> with my brother, saying, “Has my brother not hea[rd] that I am ill? Why has he sho[wn] me no concern? Why has he sent no messenger here and visi[ted] me?”<sup>10</sup> My brother’s messenger addressed me, s[aying], “(It) is not a place close by so your brother can hear (about you) and send you greetings. The country is far away. Who is going to tell your brother so he can immediately send you greetings? Would your brother hear that you are ill and still not send you his messenger?” 26–32 I for my part addressed him as follows, saying, “For my brother, a Great King, is there really a far-away country and a close-by one?” He for his part addressed me [as] follows, saying, “Ask your own messenger whether the country is far away and as a result your brother did not hear (about you) and did not send (anyone) to greet you.”<sup>11</sup> Now, since I asked my own messenger and he said to me that the journey is far, I was not angry (any longer), I said no [more].<sup>12</sup> 33–41 Furthermore, as I am told, in my brother’s country everything is available and my brother needs absolutely nothing. Furthermore, in my country everything too is available and I for my part nee[d] absolutely nothing. We have (however) inherited good relations of long standing from (earlier) kings, and so we should sen[d]<sup>13</sup> greetings to each other. It is these same relations that shall be lasting between us. My [greet]ings [I will send t]o yo[u, and your greet-ings you shall send to me]. 42–48 [. . .] M[y] greetings [. . .] and your greetings . . . [. . .] 49–62 You no[w, before es]corting (him on his way),<sup>14</sup> have detain[ed] my messenger for two [years].<sup>15</sup> I informed your messenger and sen[t him] (on his way). Inform my messenger immediately sḫ he may co[m]e to me.<sup>16</sup> Furthermore, as I am also told, the journey is diffi[cult],<sup>17</sup> water cut off, and the weather ho[t]. I am not sending many beautiful greeting-gifts. I send to my brother 4 minas of beautiful lapis lazuli as a routine<sup>18</sup> greeting-gift. In addition, I send my brother 5 teams of horses. As soon as the weather improves, my next messenger to come I will have bring many beautiful greeting-gifts to my brother. Furthermore, whatever my brother wants, let my brother just write me so it can be taken from the house.<sup>19</sup> 63–72 Being engaged on a work, I write to my brother. May my brother send me much fine gold so I can use it on my work. But the gold that my brother sends me, my brother should not turn over to the charge of any deputy. My brother should make a [personal] check, then my brother should seal and send it to me. Certainly<sup>20</sup> my brother did not check the earlier (shipment of) gold that my brother sent to me. It was only a deputy of my brother who sealed and sent it to me. When I pu[t] the 40 minas of gold that were brought to me into a kiln, not (even) [10, I sw]ear,<sup>21</sup> appear[ed]. 73–82 [Furth]ermore, [tw]ice has a caravan of Šalmu, my messenger whom I sent to you, been robb[ed].<sup>22</sup> The first one Biriawaza<sup>23</sup> rob[bed, and] his [sec]ond caravan Pamaḥu, [a gov]ernor of yours in a vassalage,<sup>24</sup> robb[ed]. [When] is my brother [going to adjudicate] this case?<sup>25</sup> [As] my messenger sp[oke]<sup>26</sup> before my brother, (so) [n]ow<sup>27</sup> may Šalmu sp[oke]<sup>28</sup> before my brother. His [thi]ngs<sup>29</sup> should be restored t[o him] and [he] should be compensa[ted] for his losses.

NOTES

1. For Amenophis IV as the addressee of this letter, see Kühne, p. 60, n. 292.
2. At the beginning of line 2, restore ŠEŠ-ia; for the position, cf. EA 6:2. Where Burna-Buriasš calls himself brother, he addresses the Egyptian king in the same way (EA 6, 8–9, 11).
3. ik-[šu-da] would be less crowded than ik-[šu-da-an-ni] (Knudtzon).
4. a-a-i-[ka-(am-)ma]: following von Soden, p. 428. Oppenheim seems to emend the text so that Burna-Buriasš says that no foreign messenger, non-Egyptian or Egyptian, had dined with him; see Kühne, p. 61, n. 295. On the banquets for messengers, see EA 1, n. 25.
5. von Soden, p. 428, proposes [ᵐḤa-a]-ú; cf. EA 11:19, rev. 13f.
6. ana na-a[b-la-ti]: if na-p[a-š libbi] (von Soden, ibid.), one would expect to see traces of the vertical (cf., however, pa in EA 8:22), and the expression refers to mood or sentiment, not to bodily health. Oppenheim: "... that I nearly lost my life, and that nothing could help me" (the assumed text is not clear).
7. [a-di-na] m[i]-im-ma-ma la uš-[ta-la/li-mu]; on the assumed uštallalimu rather than ultallalimu, see Aro, StOr 20, pp. 37f. Another proposal: [Ú (šammu)] ... la uš-[né-ša-an-ni], "and no medicine has given me any cure" (von Soden, ibid.).
8. re-e-š[i la iš-šu-ú]: the enclitic -ma at the end of the previous clause favors taking the following clause as coordinate, and therefore not reš[i ul iš-šú] (von Soden, ibid., following Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 182).
9. am-[ta-la]: not am-[la] (von Soden, p. 429), for in Middle Babylonian letters the perfect is the normal form of past narrative, as throughout this letter. In line 32, amla because of the negative ul.

10. i-mu-[ra-an-ni], presumably visit by delegation. If i-mu-[ra] is right (Knudtzon), then "pro[vided for me]"?

11. ana šulmika, "for your šulmu," might also mean "for your health"; probably neither version should be excluded.

12. On the syntax of girru rūqatu, see von Soden, p. 429. For a slightly different interpretation, see Veenhof, JEOL 27 (1981–82) p. 67, n. 1. ul am-la as-[a-k]-u-[u]: following Gordon.

13. ni-ša-ap-pa-[ra-ar]: it is not clear why we should create an anacoluthon—"the good relations which we have received from the kings in earlier times, so that we send greetings to each other, these same good relations ..."—and restore -[ru] (Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 182, followed by von Soden, p. 429). Burna-Buriasš prefaces his proposal of continued good relations with remarks that establish how disinterested both parties are. If there are to be greetings with the necessary accompanying gifts, they are not inspired by need.

14. [la-am t]e-re-ed-du-ú: following von Soden, ibid. Provision of an escort for messengers was customary. For the Old Babylonian period, at Mari, see CAD, A/1, p. 343; ARMT 21, pp. 509, 514; ÁEM 1/2, no. 511:2off. In EA, see 30, n. 2.

15. ši-it-ta [šānāti]: following von Soden, p. 429.

16. li-i[li-ka]: following von Soden, ibid. The information is the answer, perhaps quite perfunctory, to the message received; cf. EA 29:III.

17. The enclitic in kī iqbūnim-ma probably looks back to kī iqbūni in line 33, and therefore is rendered by "also." da-an-n[a-at], with von Soden, ibid., unless the enclitic coordinates clauses (for this possibility, see Römer, AOAT 12, p. 51, n. 5), and then da-an-n[a-tu]/tu] (cf. rūqatu in line 32).

18. The gift ša qāti seems opposed to the many gifts not sent at the moment; cf. ša qātim in Old Assyrian, "normal quality, current quality" (CAD, Q, p. 198), and at Mari (ARMT 21, p. 252, n. 16; p. 272, n. 28). That the weight of the stone is given implies, according to E. Porada, AfO 28 (1981–82) p. 7, n. 18, that the stone was unworked (see also EA 8:43; 10:43ff.). Tušratta, therefore, gave only jewelry.

19. Lit. "from their house." Since Burna-Buriasš hardly wishes to say that the gifts will come from others' houses, the suffix must refer to the indefinite plural subject of the verb.

20. ki-ša (kīša): see the dictionaries; for its influence on tenses, see Aro, StOr 20, p. 83.

21. [10 š]a-ar-ru-um-ma: the asseverative šarrumma (Knudtzon) fits the context perfectly (originally, "by the king"; S. Parpola, AOAT 5/2, p. 97) and implies a small number in the break (10 is only a guess); cf. EA 10:19f. Otherwise von Soden, p. 430, followed by CAD, B, 113: [KÚ.GI b]a-ar-ru-um-ma, "pure gold."

22. ba-ab-t[a-at]: following von Soden, ibid.

23. Written ᵐbi-ri-ia-ma-za.

24. Pamaḥu may be an Egyptian title misunderstood as a personal name; see Albright, JEA 23 (1937) p. 200, n. 4, who thought it the Egyptian equivalent of rābišu, seeing it also in EA 162:74. Edel, JNES 7 (1948) p. 24, distinguished between EA 7:76 (personal name) and 162:74 (title). Is ki-is-ri a mistake for mi-is-ri, "[a pre]fect in your country, the country of Egypt"? An even greater enormity, right under the Pharaoh's nose!

25. [ma-ti] . . . i-[da-an]: following von Soden, p. 430.
26. id-[bu-bu]: following von Soden, ibid. Line 80: li-id-[bu-ub].
27. [i-na]-an-na: following von Soden, ibid.
28. See n. 26.
29. [ú-d]e-e-šu: following von Soden, ibid.

Merchants murdered, vengeance demanded

TEXT: VAT 152.

COPIES: WA 8; VS 11, 5.

TRANSLATION: Ebeling, pp. 371f.

Sa[y to] Naphu'rure[ya], the king of Egypt, my brother: Thus Burra-Buriyaš, the king of Kara[duniyaš], your brother. For me all goes well. For you, your country, your household, your wives, yo[ur] sons, your magnates, your horses, your chariots, may all go very well.

8–21 My brother and I made a mutual declaration of friendship, and this is what we said: "Just as our fathers were friends<sup>1</sup> with one another, so will we be friends with one another." Now, my merchants<sup>2</sup> who were on their way with Ahu-ṭabu, were detained in Canaan for business matters. After Ahu-ṭabu went on to my brother, in Hinnatuna of Canaan, Šum-Adda, the son of Balumme, and Šutatna, the son of Šaratum<sup>3</sup> of Akka, having sent their men,<sup>4</sup> killed my merchants and took away [th]eir money. 22–33 [I] send [. . .] . . . to y[o]u post[baste].<sup>5</sup> Inqu[ire from him so] he can inform yo[u]. C]anaan is your country, and [its] king[s are your servants]. In your country I have been despoiled. Bring [them] to account<sup>6</sup> and make compensat[ion] for the money that they took away. Put to death the men who put my servants [to] death,<sup>7</sup> and so avenge their blood. And if you do not put these men to death, they are going to kill again, be it a caravan of mine or your own messengers, and so messengers between us will thereby be cut off. 34–42 And if they try to deny this to you,<sup>8</sup> Šum-Adda, having blocked the passage of one man of mine,<sup>9</sup> retained him in his company, and another man, having been forced into service<sup>10</sup> by Šutatna of Akka, is still serving him. These men sh[ould be] brought to you so you can investigate, inquire [whether they are de]ad,<sup>11</sup> and thus become informed. 43–47 [As a greet]ing-gift I send you 1 mina of lapis lazuli.

Se[nd off] my [mess]enger immediately so I may kno[w] my brother's [dec]ision.<sup>12</sup> Do not deta[in] my [mess]enger. Let him be off [to me imm]ediately.<sup>13</sup>

NOTES

1. End of line 11, written on reverse, ta-a-bu; see Schroeder, OLZ, 1915, col. 175.
2. The implications of the king's calling them "my merchants" are not clear; see Brinkman, in Garelli, ed., Le Palais et la Royauté (Paris, 1974), p. 400, n. 34.
3. The scribe, or his informant, interchanged the vowels in the first syllable of the names of the two rulers.
4. LÚ.MEŠ = amēlī (also lines 28, 30, 40); cf. von Soden, p. 430.
5. 22 [x(x)]-x a-na pa-[ni-k]a ki-i [ka-al-li-e]: at the beginning of the line the very clear [. . .]-*h*u of VS is misleading; see Schröder, OLZ, 1917, col. 165. The assumption that nothing followed ki-i in the rather large broken space at the end of the line is supported by neither the previous nor the following lines, and the resulting sense, "As soon as I send . . . , inquire . . ." (von Soden, p. 430; Aro, StOr 20, p. 148), does not seem satisfactory. It seems unlikely that the Babylonian king would put off to some future date sending the messenger who was to provide the Pharaoh with additional information. It is the bearer of the present letter who should have such a role. Cf. kī kallē in the Babylonian letters EA 10:38 and 11, rev. 18.
6. su-ni-iq-[*š*u-nu-ti-ma]: following von Soden, p. 430.
7. i-[du-k]u: following von Soden, ibid.
8. Following Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 182; von Soden, p. 430; CAD, N/1, p. 165b. Denial can be refuted by two witnesses to the crime who are still available. Aro, StOr 20, pp. 144f., postulates a contamination from šumma-šumma ("or they will treat you hostilely").
9. Following CAD, N/1, p. 179b; cf. šēpam nakāsum in ARMT 4, 38:7'; 14, 86:27. If the Babylonian's feet had been literally cut off, it would have been an extraordinary indignity and hardly mentioned so casually.
10. ina rēšī kī ulzizzū: following AHu, p. 974a.
11. k[i-i mi]-tu: von Soden, p. 431, proposed [amēla ša]-tu, but, as he admits, the form of the pronoun is otherwise unattested in the Middle Babylonian period. Besides, one expects a plural—"these men"—not a singular.
12. 44 . . . ku-[*u*š-ši-da-š]u 45 [te-e]-ma: following von Soden, ibid. (but not te-e-ma; cf. EA 7:51, 52; 9:32; 11, rev. 18).

Ancient loyalties, new requests

TEXT: BM 29785.

COPY: BB 2.

PHOTOGRAPH: BB, pl. 24.

Say to Nibḥurrereya, the king of Egy[pt, my brother]:<sup>1</sup> Thus Burra-Buriyaš, the king of Karad[un]iyaš, your brother. For me all goes well. For you, your household, your wives, your sons, your country, your ma[g]nates, your horses, your chariots, may all go very well.

6–18 From the time my ancestors and your ancestors made a mutual declaration of friendship, they sen[t]<sup>2</sup> beautiful greeting-gifts to each other, and refused no request for anything beautiful. My brother has now sent me 2 minas of gold as my greeting-gift. Now, (i)<sup>3</sup> gold is plentiful, send me as much as your ancestors (sent), but if it is scarce, send me half of what your ancestors (sent). Why have you sent me 2 minas of gold? At the moment my work on a temple is extensive, and I am quite busy with carrying it out. Send me much gold. And you for your part, whatever you want from my country, write me so that it may be taken to you.

19–38 In the time of Kurigalzu, my ancestor, all the Canaanites wrote here to him, saying, “C[om]<sup>4</sup> to the border of the country so we can revolt and be allied [wi]th<sup>5</sup> you.” My ancestor sent them this (reply), saying, “Forget about being allied with me. If you become enemies of the king of Egypt, and are allied with anyone else, will I not then come and plunder you? How can there be an alliance with me?” For the sake of your ancestor my ancestor did not listen to them. Now, as for my Assyrian vassals, I was not the one who sent them to you. Why on their own authority have they come to your country? If you love me,<sup>6</sup> they will conduct no business whatsoever. Send them off to me empty-handed. I send to you as your greeting-gift 3 minas of genuine lapis lazuli and 5 teams of horses for 5 wooden chariots.<sup>7</sup>

NOTES

1. On the addressee, either Amenophis IV or Tutankhamun (so taken here), see Introduction, n. 137. On the end of line 1, see VAB 2/2, p. 1585.

2. ul-te-bi-i-lu-n[i]: following Gordon.

3. inanna-ma burāšū mād, “Right now, (if) the gold is plentiful,” is probably possible, but one then expects the same structure in the parallel clause. Hence inanna (šum)-ma seems much more likely.

4. ku-u[š]-da-am-ma: traces support this reading of von Soden, p. 431.

5. [it-t]i-ka: despite Knudtzon’s correct observations (VAB 2/1, p. 90, n. a), this seems the only possible reading. The absence of any sign of the vertical could reflect a form like that in line 29 (it-ti-ia).

Egyptian gold and carpenters

TEXT: BM 29786.

COPY: BB 3.

PHOTOGRAPH: BB, pl. 10.

[Say t]o [Naphu]rar[ey]a,<sup>1</sup> the king of [Egypt: T]hus Burra-Buriyaš, the king of Karad[uniyaš]. For me all goes wel[l]. For you, for your household, for your wives, fo[r your sons], for your magnates, for your troops, for your chariots, for your horses, and for your country, may all go very well.

8–24 From the time of Karaindaš, since the messengers<sup>2</sup> of your ancestors came regularly to my ancestors, up to the present, they (the ancestors) have been friends. Now, though you and I are friends, 3 times have your messengers come to me and you have not sent me a single beautiful greeting-gift, nor have I for my part sent you a beautiful greeting-gift. (I am one for whom nothing is scarce, and you are one for whom nothing is scarce.)<sup>3</sup> As for your messenger whom you sent to me, the 20 minas of gold that were brought here were not all there. When they put it into the kiln, not 5 minas of gold appeared.<sup>4</sup> [The . . . th]at did appear, on cooling off looked like ashes. Was [the gold ev]er identi-fied] (as gold)?<sup>5</sup> [. . .] friends with e[ach other] [. . .] . . . 25–28 [. . .] 29–42 [. . .] of a wild ox for . . . [. . .]<sup>6</sup> when your messenger . . . [. . .]<sup>7</sup> let him bring to me. There are skilled carpenters<sup>8</sup> where you are. Let them represent a wild animal, land or aquatic, lifelike,<sup>9</sup> so that the hide is exactly like that of a live animal. Let your messenger bring it to me. But if there are some old ones already on hand, then as soon as Šin-dišugab, my messenger, reaches you, let him immediately, posthaste, borrow chariot[s]<sup>10</sup> and get here. Let them make some n[e]w ones for future delivery, and then when my messenger comes here with your messenger, let them bring (them) here together. 43–49 I send as your greeting-gift 2 minas of lapis lazuli, and concerning your daughter Mayati,<sup>11</sup> having heard (about her), I send to her as her greeting-gift a necklace of cricket-(shaped) gems, of lapis lazuli, 1048 their number.

And when your messenger [comes] along with Šindišugab, I will make [...] and have (it) brought [t to h]er.<sup>12</sup>

NOTES

1. [a-n]a [na-ap-ḥu]r-ra-<sup>r</sup>re<sup>7</sup> -[i]a/a (Gordon saw more of hur than I could). Of the na-ap in BB, Gordon wrote that there are "no traces of original wedges, completely obliterated by modern pin scratches on rubbed surface of tablet—so confirmed by Mr. Bateman of B[ritish] M[useum] who examined surface under a microscope."
2. DUMU.MEŠ = mārū: following von Soden, p. 431.
3. This parenthetical remark stresses the independence of the parties and thereby the symbolism of the exchange of gifts; cf. EA 7, n. 13. The usual interpretation—according to which it is stated here that the result of neither one's sending the other party a gift has been "I had nothing precious, and you had nothing precious"—must be rejected; mimma ana X (w)aqar does not mean that "X has something precious" (which would be, rather, mimma aqrulaqartu ana X, or X mimma aqrulaqarta ṯšuli), but that "something is rare/scarce for X." See AHw, p. 146ob.
4. Cf. EA 7:71–72 and n. 21.
5. [KÜ.GI im-ma-t]i-ma-a u'-e-du: immāṯimā, Landsberger in Gordon; if the verb is uddū, one expects u'-e-du-[ū], but nothing follows (also Gordon).
6. 30 [ša i]r-'i-mu-šu-nu-ti, "which he presented/with which he presented them" (von Soden, p. 434), is not supported by collation.
7. il-q[u-š]i (Knudtzon) is hardly right, especially š; see VAB 2/1, p. 1001, no. 10. il-l[a-k]a (Gordon) is equally difficult.
8. NAGAR.MEŠ: following CAD, N/1, p. 114a; so already Landsberger in Gordon.
9. a-[n]a 'p'i-i bal'i: following von Soden, p. 431.
10. 8<sup>is</sup>GIGIR.ME[Š]: the second and third signs are doubtful. If the reading is correct, narkabta našū can hardly mean "to load a wagon" (Oppenheim, Dictionary of Scientific Biography, 15 [1978], p. 656, n. 39); and "to bring a wagon" (AHw, p. 764a) does not seem to fit the context. I understand našū in the sense of withdrawing from a supply (CAD, N/2, p. 98b) or appropriating (CAD, N/2, p. 100). Not expecting to have a shipment of animal figures to bring back to Babylonia, the messenger would have to borrow means of transportation. For narkabtu as a means of shipping, cf. EA 41:34 and CAD, N/1, p. 357b.
11. <sup>6</sup>ma-i-ia-<sup>r</sup>a-<sup>r</sup>i<sup>7</sup>: following von Soden, p. 432, and confirmed by collation; correct CAD, M/2, p. 74b.
12. 49 [il-la-ka x-x-x] e-pu-uš-ma ú-še-ba-l'a'-a[š]-š[i] (Gordon).

Proper escort for a betrothed princess

TEXT: VAT 151 + 1878.

COPIES: WA 6 + WA 218, 225; VS 11, 6.

[Say] to Naphururea, the king of Egypt, [my] broth[er]: Th[us Bur]na-Buriyaš, the king of Karaduniyaš, your brother]. F[or me all goes well]. For you, your wives, you[r] household, [your sons, for yo]ur [horses,] your chariots, may all go very we[ll].

5–8 [After the wife of] your father had been mourned,<sup>1</sup> I sent Ḥu'a, [my] mess[enger, and . . . , an interp]reter, [to you]. [I] wrote [as follows],<sup>2</sup> saying, "A daughter of the king who [. . . , was (once) ta]ken [to your father]. Let [them take] another [to you]."<sup>3</sup>

9–15 [And you yourself]<sup>4</sup> sent [Ḥaamaš]ši, your messenger, and [. . . Miḥuni, the interp]reter, [saying, ". . . the wife of] my father was mourned<sup>5</sup> [. . . ] that woman [. . . ] she die[d] in a [pl]ague [. . . ] I wrote, saying, "That woman [may be taken]."<sup>6</sup>

16–22 [When] I presented [my daughter] to [Ḥaamaš]ši, your [mess]enger, and to Miḥuni, the inte[r]preter, they [pou]red oil on the head of my daughter.<sup>7</sup> But as to the one tak[ing her] to you,<sup>8</sup> [w]ho is going to take her to you? With Ḥaya there are 5 chariots. Are they going to take her to you in 5 chariots? Should I in these circumstances allow her to be brought to you [from m]y [house],<sup>9</sup> my neighboring kings [would say], "They have transported the daughter of a Great King [to] Egypt in 5 char[iots]."

23–28 [When my father] a[llow]ed [bis daughter] to be br[oug]ht to your father,<sup>10</sup> [. . . ] 3000 soldie[rs wi]th him [. . . ]

Reverse

1–5 [. . . ] . . . [ . . . let] them carve [. . . ] let them brin[g me . . . ] let them carve [. . . which look like] live [. . . ]<sup>11</sup> let them bring me. 6–12 If old ones in the number required are a[vailab]le, have them brought to me im[mediate]ly.<sup>12</sup> If old ones are not available, let them carve new ones and have Šalmu, the merchant, bring them to me. If Šalmu, the merchant, has already departed for here, let your messenger that comes to me take them. Trees<sup>13</sup> are to be carved from ivory and colored. Matching plants of the countryside are to be carved, colored, and taken to me.

13–18 As for Ḥaya, your magnate, whom you sent to me, the chariots and soldiers with him are too few. Send here many [char]iots and soldiers so that Haya be the one [to ra]ke<sup>14</sup> the princess to you. Do not send here some other [mag]nate. The princess [on] whose [he]ad oil [has been poured] should not delay here by me.<sup>15</sup> Send them so [they can take her] immediate[ly]. [I]f within this year you intend to sen[d here] chariots and soldiers, [a messen]ger should come out to me posthaste and info[rm me].<sup>16</sup>

19–23 [After]<sup>17</sup> your [fa]ther sent [here] to Kurigalzu much gold, what was more lavish than [the gift] to Kurigalzu, and so in the palace [of my ancestor what wa]s missing?<sup>18</sup> That neighboring kings might hear it said, “The go[ld is much. Among]<sup>19</sup> the kings there are brotherhood, amity, peace, and [good] relations,” [he] was rich in stones, rich in silver, rich in [gold].<sup>20</sup>

24–34 I s[en]d 10 lumps of genuine<sup>21</sup> lapis lazuli as your greeting-gift, and to the mistress of the house [I send] 20 “crickets” of genuine lapis lazuli. [I know] that Mayatu alone<sup>22</sup> did nothing for me by which [I am] res[tored to health],<sup>23</sup> and showed no concern for me. As soon as poss[ible]<sup>24</sup> let them take to me much gold that is yours alone.<sup>25</sup> Let them take to me [much gold]! By the end of [this very] year I wish to bring the work to completion quickly. And . . . [ . . . ] he must not say, “Your messenger has received a lar[ge and beautiful] greeting-gift.” He . . . [ . . . ] how can I send to you? Send me [much gold] so that [I, too, send] to y[ou a] large [greeting]-gift.<sup>26</sup>

NOTES

1. [ul-tu aš-ša-at] a-bi-ka qu-ub-ba-tu<sub>4</sub>; stative subjunctive (cf. rūqatu, EA 7:32) of qubbû, “to (be)wail” (AHw, p. 890; CAD, Q, p. 292a); cf. Landsberger in Campbell, Chronology, p. 46, and also in Gordon. CAD, Q, puts this passage under qubbātu, meaning unknown.

17. [ki-i]: following von Soden, ibid.

18. ina ekal(li) [a-bi-ia 21 [mi-nu-ú i] n-da-ti: following von Soden, ibid., in the reading of the verb. Being rhetorical questions, minû itatir (line 20) and minû indati are probably only apparent exceptions to the rule that in Middle Babylonian letters the perfect was not used in questions (Aro, StOr 20, p. 81).

19. [i-na]: hardly enough room for [bi-ri-it] (von Soden, p. 432).

20. [šu-ú(-ma)]: cf. von Soden, ibid.

21. For the distinction between “genuine” (lit. “of the mountain”; see EA 9:36 and passim in the inventories) and “artificial” (lit. “of the kiln”), see Oppenheim, Glass and Glassmaking in Ancient Mesopotamia (Corning, N.Y., 1970), pp. 10ff. If the qualifier “genuine” is not used, the stone was probably artificial.

22. šma-ia-tu-ma: see EA 10:44 and n. 11. Lines 26f. are often understood as distinguishing Mayatu from the “mistress of the house” in line 25. The title occurs in the badly broken EA 1:48 and YOS 13, 90:21; as GAŠAN É in a few Neo-Assyrian texts cited in CAD, B, 190b; and as nin é (-e-ke<sub>4</sub>) in Sumerian (Civil, JAOS 103 [1983] p. 57:156); cf. b<sup>ct</sup>lt bbtm and L. Muntingh, JNES 26 (1967) p. 109. The latter is identified either with the famous Nefertiti, Amenophis IV’s first wife, or with Ankhsepenpaaten, his daughter and last wife; see Pintore, Matrimonio, pp. 29f. Two translations have been offered for kī in line 26, “whereas,” which is without parallel, and “because,” which assumes a causal clause after a main clause, a sequence that is extremely rare if not quite without parallel. In either case the line of thought and the implied enthymemes are curious: “I gave so-and-so something, (a) whereas so-and-so<sub>2</sub> treated me badly, or (b) because so-and-so<sub>2</sub> treated me badly.” To abide by conventional usage we must read at the end of line 25 [ul-te-bi-la i-de] 26 ki-i . . . This favors the identity of the two figures. By sending the gift (and a small one) to Mayatu under her title it is perhaps suggested that the demands of propriety rather than those of friendship are being met. Cf. Na’aman, Political Disposition, *p. 83, n. 20.

23. šu-u[l-lu-ma-ku]: cf. EA 7:13, n. 7.

24. ki-i du-lu-ub-t[i-iš]: following Kühne, p. 145.

25. attākā-ma: the enclitic seems to stress the identity of the source of the gift, perhaps in contrast to Mayatu, from whom he has learned to expect nothing; cf. šmayatu-ma in line 26 and the enclitic “Mayatu alone.”

26. kī luššibilak[ku KÙ.GI ma-a(‘)-da šu-b]i-la-am-ma 34 [a-na-ku-ma šu-ul-m] a-na ma-a-da a-na k[a-a-ša lu-še-bi-la-ak-ku].

A letter from a princess

TEXT: VAT 1605.

COPIES: WA 188; VS 11, 7 (tablet now in two pieces).

TRANSLATION: Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 61.

Say to my lord: Thus the princess.<sup>1</sup> For you, your chariots, the m[e]n a[nd] yo[ur] [. . .], may all go well. 6–11 May the gods of Burra-Buriyaš accompany you. March in safety, and safely push on so you will see your house (again). 12–22 In the presence of my lord thus do I prostrate myself,<sup>2</sup> saying, “From . . . [. . .] my messenger brings (you) colored cloth. For your cities and your household may all go (w)ell. Do no[t] wo[rry], or you will have made me sad.”<sup>3</sup>

23–26 Your servant, Kidin-Adad, . . . I would give my life for you.<sup>4</sup>

NOTES

1. The script is Babylonian, not Egyptian, and so the letter was probably written in Babylonia and sent by a Babylonian princess (lit. “daughter of the king”), perhaps one destined for the Pharaoh’s harem. For other views, see Kühne, p. 50, n. 232. Landsberger in Gordon, instead of “to my lord” (ana mbi-li-ia), proposed “to Biniya.”

2. i-na pa-[ni bi-li-ia] 13 a-ka-an-n[a ul-ta-ki-in]: Knudtzon could see what looked like u[l], no longer visible. For other and bolder restorations and corrections of the text, see Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 167, n. 308.

3. it-ku-l[a] iēendanni: following von Soden, p. 433, but suggesting that the perfect be taken as future perfect (cf. GAG, Erg. §80e). The tone of the letter argues against a statement of fact.

4. The second letter (see the Introduction, sect. 4) was added perhaps by the scribe. In line 24, i ša aG NI remains unexplained; how it can mean “has decided” (Pintore, without comment) is not clear.

NOTES

1. This inventory, from Babylonia, is apparently the dowry of a Babylonian princess, probably a daughter of Burna-Buriaš. The absence of identifying notation at either the beginning or the end of the tablet suggests that this was one of two or more tablets.
 2. ú-<sup>hi</sup>-nu (cf. EA 15:13).
 3. Perhaps be-ra, "in between" (Gordon); also lines 6 and 19.
 4. A type of chalcedony; see Limet, MARI 4, p. 511, n. 7.
 5. Durand, ARMT 21, pp. 224ff., identifies muššar(r)u as onyx and cloisonné. The muš-ša-li of Emar 6/4, p. 127, Annexe V 6', between dušu-stone and pappardilu-stone, is pertinent.
 6. šikkatu, a jar for oil, or an ornament so shaped (AHw, p. 1234); see also D. Charpin, AEM 1/2, 294, note a.
 7. Gordon proposed <sup>na</sup>ta-r]a-am-ma-nu, comparing tarammanu in PBS 2/2, 120:53 (cf. tarammu 1, AHw, p. 1325); also lines 10, 13, 15, 18.
 8. Perhaps [... tu-di-it]-tu (Gordon); see EA 14, n. 11.
 9. GÚ.TUR = kakkû, "lentil" (or the like)? See also EA 14 i 13.
 10. Written <sup>na</sup>MUŠ.GÍR.TAB (von Soden, p. 433); a variety of muššar(r)u-stone?
 11. [...] KÚ.GI] tù-tù-ur-ru: see AHw, p. 1375; Landsberger, RA 62 (1968) p. 127, n. 108. Durand, ARMT 21, pp. 231f., argues for "granulated."

12. napādu, perhaps a type of handle; see Durand, MARI 5, p. 186.
 13. p[a-ru]-tí.
 14. Reading in lines 1-6: 1 [... ka]m-m[u-ša-ak-ku] 2 [... <sup>gi</sup>a-ma-r]a-a-tu x [...] 3 [... kam-m]u-ša-ak-ku x [x x (x)] x KÙ.BABBAR 4 [... <sup>gi</sup>a-ma-ra-[tu a-di šú-up]-ri 5 [...] ZUR.MEŠ kam-m[u-ša]-ak-ku 6 [...] x in-di ù x (10?) <sup>šú</sup>-up-ri KÙ.BABBAR. Gordon recognized kammuššakku (the double m is otherwise unattested).
 15. GÚ.ZI = kāsu; also rev. lines 9, 24. In view of the feminine suffix (ina kāsī-ša) and lines 9 and 24, restore probably [NÍG.ŠU.LUH.HA = namsītu].
 16. For the restoration of this line and the following one, cf. lines 24-25 below; see also EA 22 ii 51, iv 22; 25 ii 53, iv 60. For syllabic writing, see EA 14 ii 36; 22 iv 27; 120:12. Unless the plural of namsû (nemsû) is namsātu (>namsītu), at least here and in line 24 the reading of the logogram is namsītu, not namsû (against CAD, N/1, p. 245), as the feminine suffix (ina kāsī-šina) makes clear; note, too, the syllabic writings.
 17. [...] mu-s]a-li-ba-tu (AHw, p. 1013; CAD, M/2, p. 231).
 18. [...] bu-lu-up-pa]aq-qú (also Gordon); cf. EA 22 iv 15.
 19. [...] al-ta]-pí-pu i-na IZI.GAR(nūrī)-šu-nu; cf. EA 22 iii 22.
 20. <sup>du</sup>g*stallu* (also line 19).
 21. [...] (urudu)š]EN = ruqqu (Gordon); see also Durand, MARI 2, pp. 133f.
 22. [...] mu]ša-lu (Landsberger in Gordon); for the meaning of mušālu, see Durand, ARMT 21, pp. 356f., and W. Farber, in Francesca Rochberg-Halton, ed., Language, Literature, and History: Philological and Historical Studies Presented to Erica Reiner, American Oriental Series 67 (New Haven, 1987), pp. 94f. On dušu, "agate" (banded chalcedony), see P. Steinkeller, ZA 72 (1982) pp. 249ff.

Whiting, Jr., Old Babylonian Letters from Tell Asmar, AS 22 (Chicago, 1987), pp. 107–8. On Heb. šemen ṭôb, see L. Stager, JSS 28 (1983) p. 245.
 10. Perhaps the designation of a container according to its form (Gordon).
 11. [...] du-ti-n]i-du (tudinētu); cf. iv 10. On the tudittu, see H. Klein, ZA 73 (1983) pp. 255ff.; Farber, in Rochberg-Halton, ed., Language, Literature, and History (see EA 13, n. 22), pp. 96ff.
 12. Cf. i 63.
 13. In line 53, perhaps Canaan is mentioned; cf. ii 26.
 14. 1 qí-iš-šú-ú' [ša É' Ì] (Gordon); cf. iii 38, iv 5.
 15. 1 du-ra-ḥu i-n]a q[á]-ab-la-t[ú-u]š-šú; cf. ii 9.
 16. In EA, GAL is probably to be read kāsu, "cup, goblet," though this is not absolutely certain; see CAD, K, p. 256b. For the reading and meaning elsewhere, see K. Deller, Baghdader Mitteilungen 16 (1985) pp. 327ff.; J.-M. Durand, ARMT 21, p. 351; idem, AÉM 1/1, pp. 421–22; H. Limet, ARM 25, p. 159; MARI, 4, pp. 518–19; W. Mayer, Or n.s. 58 (1989) p. 274.
 17. It is assumed that mihḥuṣ = muhḥuṣ; cf. CAD, M/2, p. 83b.
 18. mēqītu.
 19. taḥḥu.
 20. The pw and pu-wa-ti found at Ugarit, probably "madder," are not relevant here; see Huehnergard, Ugaritic Vocabulary, p. 166.
 21. According to CAD, M/2, p. 38, here and in ii 58, mešenu (ša šēpi) is a buckle, not the sandal itself.
 22. saḥḥaru; also ii 54, iii 70, iv 18. Cf. si-ḥa-ru, ARMT 25, 818 passim and note, p. 289.
 23. qanū.
 24. ⟨⟨É⟩⟩ mi-qí-ti; cf. ii 3 and note É in previous line.
 25. quppū rather than quppu, "chest"; cf. AHw, p. 928b.
 26. nalpattu, a small (metal) bowl or ladle, used with an oil-container (ii 53) and by a barber (ii 55–56, 61; iii 6–7). Here, rather than "with claws" (CAD, N/1, p. 202), AHw, p. 724, sees the nalpattu used "for fingernails."
 27. ša šarri, and ša aššat šarri and ša mārti šarri in ii 13–14, respectively, hardly means "for the king," "for the wife/daughter of the king," since everything is for the king, and additional small presents for the king's wife and daughter would not be listed here; cf. Kühne, p. 69, n. 341. Note, too, the shift in ii 13–14 to lamassu or lamassatu, a female figurine, when the gift is "of the king's wife/daughter"; cf. also EA 24 §25 (end); 27:19ff.
 28. Following an unpublished proposal of CAD.
 29. šuššūgu = šaššūgu, with G. Wilhelm, AOAT 9, p. 31, n. 5; see also K. Veenhof, BiOr 25 (1964) p. 197a.
 30. 1 <sup>giš</sup>MÁ ša <sup>giš</sup>EREN . . . 6 <sup>giš</sup>MÁ.ḪI.A ru-ku-bu . . . , with AHw, pp. 199, 994, and CAD, E, p. 276; see also Edel, Brief, p. 127, n. 1. CAD's "which children can pull" does not translate the text, assuming ša seḥḥerūti . . . instead of the text's seḥḥerūti ša . . .

31. Cf. i 74.
32. du-ul-lu q[a]-at-nu = dullu SIG (also iii 75–76, iv 1); see CAD, D, p. 176b.
33. mabrû, a West-Semitic form of nabrû, a type of vessel? Cf. malbašu for nalbašu in EA 369:9, a letter from Egypt.
34. Assuming, with ARMT 7, p. 308, no mistake in gender concord, and therefore taking rabû as a substantive. However, such a mistake seems probable in iii 62.
35. Perhaps a vessel in the shape of a donkey; for the motif, characteristic of Egyptian art, see Sally Dunham, ZA 75 (1985) pp. 259–60.
36. For the reading of this entry, see CAD, K, p. 316. The identification of <sup>815</sup>TASKARIN as boxwood is still not universally accepted; see Ugar. 5, p. 319; R. Borger, Akkadische Zeichenliste, AOATS 6, p. 88, no. 536. On the identification of ušû at this period as Ethiopian ebony, see van Lerberghe, in Stol, On Trees, Mountains, and Millstones in the Ancient Near East (Leiden, 1979), pp. 34ff. J.-M. Durand, ARMT 21, p. 419, in the final clause emends the text to ša še-er (Durand: šer)-tû ikešširu ina libbišunu, which he understands in the sense that the handles are attached by a strip of cloth. He justifies the correction of DA to DU on the mistaken assumption that EA 14 comes from Mittani; see ibid., n. 106.
37. tup-ni-nu (also iii 47, 75; iv 11); see ARMT 9, p. 325, n. 2; von Soden, ZA 67 (1977) p. 238; Edel, Brief, p. 128, n. 1.
38. 1 na-[ma]-a[r pa-ni ša KÛ.BABBAR N]A<sub>4</sub>, (HI.A) s[šm]-m[u-ḥ]u, and in the following line, 1 na-[m]a-a[r pa-ni ša] KÛ.BABBAR K[Û.G]I; cf. ii 75, 77. The reading assumes signs that Knudtzon could see but are now no longer visible. N]A<sub>4</sub>, with Gordon.
39. KAXU = pû (also iii 3), as at Boghazköy, Ugarit (Ugar. 5, p. 277), and Emar (Arnaud, Emar 6/4, 783 passim, for example). Here perhaps “mouth” means “setting” (for stones; cf. AHw, p. 874b). In line 68, “û” with VS 12 rather than 14 (Knudtzon).
40. 5 G[a-x]-x-Du, with VS 12.
41. For the reading and interpretation of lines 11–23, see Edel, Studien zur Altägyptischen Kultur 1 (1974) pp. 116–25, 138–46, 295.
42. Reading <sup>gadaš</sup>AG<sub>4</sub>.DÛ-a (šakattâ). AHw, p. 1139, reads GADA instead of DÛ, and it is followed by Edel, Studien zur Altägyptischen Kultur 1 (1974) p. 139. M. Birot, ARMT 9, p. 307, suggested an undergarment; Durand, ARMT 21, p. 418, a belt. See now gada-ša-ga-dù = ku-û-ša-ga-da = né-be-ḥu (Emar 6/4, 556:56’).
43. 1 ME 2[<sup>ú</sup>stu-un-zu], and in the next line, 5 [<sup>ú</sup>stū]-un-zu. On the tunzu, see Waetzholdt, RLA 6/1–2, p. 23a; cf. also tūzu (AHw, p. 1375; M. Green, JCS 30 [1978] p. 150).
44. Reading with Edel, Studien zur Altägyptischen Kultur 1 (1974) p. 125 (cf. AHw, p. 1308), . . . ša pa-ni SU GAR ták-mu-uz-zi-e. CAD, M/2, p. 246, sees here a colored decoration called ša pan mušê but offers no explanation of the inserted KUŠ.NÍG NA<sub>4</sub> (so CAD).
45. la a-<sup>r</sup>mi<sup>r</sup> (cf. iii 29).
46. For amê šabi, see Edel, Studien zur Altägyptischen Kultur 1 (1974) pp. 124–25.
47. That is, “(of) fine (threads)”; see Edel, Brief, p. 156. mišlu: gloss to ½?
48. [<sup>na.k</sup>]i-ir-re-tu (AHw, p. 484b).
49. [. . .] kā-an-dú-ri-šu-nu (cf. iii 64); on the reading sabnakû, see Rainey, AOAT 8<sup>2</sup>, p. 88.
50. CAD, K, p. 409a, sees in the “cripple” the bowlegged god Bes. This seems very plausible, since he was extremely popular at this time, his representation serving to ward off various evils; see D. Beyer, Miscellanea Babylonica (see Introduction, n. 40), pp. 42–43.
51. On šuibta, see Rainey, AOAT 8<sup>2</sup>, p. 95.
52. See above, n. 32. All the uses of SIG as predicated of fabrics in EA 14 should be added to CAD, Q, p. 174; note, too, Emar 6/3, 176:13, šubātu SIG.
53. The writing of za-a here and in iv 8, so much smaller than the other signs, is noteworthy and unexplained. It was, according to Lambdin, Or n.s. 22 (1953) p. 368, a small vessel; according to Edel, Brief, p. 128, n. 1, a type of container.
54. <sup>(815)</sup>HAŠḤUR (Gordon) = hašḥuru, “apple (tree),” on which see Å. Sjöberg, JCS 40 (1988) p. 174, with reference to earlier literature, and M. Civil, in Rochberg-Halton, ed., Language, Literature, and History (see above, n. 11), p. 45, n. 13.
55. <sup>815</sup>GA.RÍG = muštu/mulṭu, “comb”; on the Sumerogram, see Civil, AOAT 25, p. 94.
56. On the Egyptian term, besides Lambdin, Or n.s. 22 (1953) p. 368, see Edel, Brief, p. 128, n. 1.
57. Assuming du-ša-ḥu is an error for du-ra-ḥu; cf. i 62, iv 62.

Say to the king of E[gypt]:<sup>1</sup> Thus Aššur-ubal[liṭ, the king of As]syria.<sup>2</sup> For you, your household, for your [coun]try,<sup>3</sup> for your chariots and your troops, may all go well. 7-15 I send my messenger to you to visit you and to visit your country.<sup>4</sup> Up to now,<sup>5</sup> my predecessors<sup>6</sup> have not written; today<sup>7</sup> I write to you. [I] send you a beautiful chariot, 2 horses, [and] 1 date-stone of genuine lapis lazuli,<sup>8</sup> as your greeting-gift. 16-22 Do [no]t delay<sup>9</sup> the messenger whom I send to you for a visit. He should visit and then leave for here. He should see what you are like and what your country is like, and then leave for here.

NOTES

1. Perhaps m[i-is-sa-ri]; cf. EA 16:2, unless the spelling is tied to the language (Hurro-Akkadian).

2. For the restoration, cf. EA 16:3; on the emergence of the title "king of Assyria," see R. Borger, Einleitung in die assyrischen Königsinschriften, 1 (Leiden, 1961), p. 26.

3. [KU]R most likely (so Artzi, Bar-Ilan Studies [see EA 15 headnote]); cf. EA 16:5.

4. If interpreted correctly, the unusual word-order probably lays stress on the fact of sending a messenger.

5. adi anniša: see Or n.s. 53 (1984) p. 298.

6. ab-ba-ū-ia: following von Soden, p. 433.

7. u<sub>4</sub>-ma: following Knudtzon and Artzi (see n. 3), since there is no basis in this letter for assuming the possibility of the peripheral writing of anumma.

8. See A. Sachs, Afo 12 (1937-39) p. 371, n. 1. On beads in the shape of (unripe) dates, see Artzi, p. 32, n. 15, and J. Bottéro, RA 43 (1949) pp. 14f. On the alleged connection between this bead and one found in Egypt bearing a cuneiform inscription, see Borger, Einleitung (see n. 2), pp. 20ff.

9. [l]a tu<sub>4</sub>-ka-as-sū: following CAD, K, p. 295b, with Artzi and Grayson, Assyrian Royal Inscriptions (see EA 15 headnote). This reading is confirmed by Spar's copy (Cuneiform Texts [see headnote above]).

The profit motive

TEXT: C 4746 (12209).

COPY: WA 9.

TRANSLATION: Grayson, Assyrian Royal Inscriptions, 1, pp. 48f.

S[ay] to ...<sup>1</sup> [..., Great King], king of Egypt, my brother: Thus Aššur-uballiṭ, king of [Assy]ria, Great King, your brother.

5 For you, your household and your country may all go well.

6-8 When I saw your [me]ss[en]gers, I was very happy. Certainly your messengers shall reside with me as objects of gre[at soli]citude.<sup>2</sup>

9-12 I send as your greeting-gift a beautiful royal chariot out[fitt]ed for me, and 2 white horses<sup>3</sup> also [out]fitted for me, 1 chariot not outfitted, and 1 seal of genuine lapis lazuli.<sup>4</sup>

13-18 Is such a present that of a Great King?<sup>5</sup> Gold in your country is dirt; one simply gathers it up.<sup>6</sup> Why are you so sparing of it?<sup>7</sup> I am engaged in building a new palace.<sup>8</sup> Send me as much gold as is needed for its adornment.

19-21 When Aššur-nadin-ahḫe, my ancestor, wrote to Egypt, 20 talents of gold were sent to him.<sup>9</sup>

22-25 [W]hen the king of Ḫanigalbat [wr]ote to your father in Egi[pt], [h]e sent 20 talents of gold to him.<sup>10</sup>

26-31 [Now]<sup>11</sup> I am the [equal]<sup>12</sup> of the king of Ḫani[galba]t, but you sent me [...] of gold, and it is not enough [f]or the pay<sup>13</sup> of my messengers on the journey to and back.

32-34 If your purpose is graciously one of friendship, send me much gold. And this is your house. Write me so what you need may be fetched.

35-36 We are countries far apart. Are our messengers to be always on the march with (only) such results?<sup>14</sup>

37-42 As to your messengers having been delayed in reaching you, Suteans had been their pursuers (and) they were in mortal danger. [I] det[ain]ed<sup>15</sup> them until I could write and the pursuing Suteans be taken for me. Surely my messengers are not to be delayed in reaching me.

43-55 Why should messengers be made to stay constantly out in the sun and so die in the sun? If staying out in the sun means profit for the king, then let him (a messenger) stay out and let him die right there in the sun, (but) for the king himself there must be a profit.<sup>16</sup> Or other[wi]se, why should they [d]ie in the sun? As to the messengers we have exch[anged]<sup>17</sup> ... do they keep [my] messengers alive?<sup>18</sup> They are made to die in the sun!

NOTES

1. The reading of the name is uncertain. Instead of m<sub>n</sub>[a-a]p-ḫu-[r]i-i-x (Knudtzon, and generally accepted), Gordon read m<sup>r</sup>ḫu<sup>r</sup>-[r]u/[r]a-ḫu-ri-i-[tu<sup>r</sup>]-[x-x]. I thought the last sign might be 'a, ' replacing y as glide. If Gordon's reading of the beginning of the name is correct, then only ḫpr-ḫprw-r<sup>c</sup>, the praenomen of Aya, seems comparable.

2. te'k<sup>r</sup>-ni-e is virtually certain. Reference is to the care and honors shown messengers (see EA 1, n. 25), concrete expressions of, and implied by, the happiness just mentioned. Joy moves, almost necessarily, to external expression; cf. Moses Finley, The World of Odysseus, rev. ed. (New York, 1965), p. 132. See also Gary A. Anderson, A Time to Mourn, A Time to Dance: The Expression of Grief and Joy in Israelite Religion (University Park, Pa., 1991).

3. White horses were highly prized; see Weidner, BiOr 9 (1952) pp. 157ff., and AHu, p. 857a (add ARM 10, 147; ARM 14, 40, and 98). In the classical world, they were proverbial for their speed (Iliad x 437; Aeneid xii 84; Plautus, Asinaria 279; Horace, Satires i 7.7); see C. J. Fordyce, Catullus (Oxford, 1961), p. 233.

4. 1<sup>na</sup>, KIŠIB ZA.GÌN KUR-e.

5. On the sentence as question, see von Soden, p. 434. Reference is to the gifts brought by the Egyptian messengers of lines 6ff. The topic of the size of the gifts, introduced by a rhetorical question, occupies lines 13–36, concluding with another rhetorical question (kannā . . . kammā). Lines 37–42 take up the risks of the journey between Assyria and Egypt, and the concluding section, lines 43–55, combines the two: size of gifts (profit) and risks.

6. i-is-si-pu-uš (esēpu): following von Soden, p. 434.

7. Lit. "why must it linger on in your sight (inē)/presence (pānī)" (AHu, p. 1006, II, 3; CAD, S, p. 47a).

8. ekalla eššeta (Knudtzon), not ešša (von Soden, p. 434); note the feminine suffixes of uḫḫuzī-ša and ḫišḫēḫī-ša in the following lines (Huehnergard).

9. Opinion is divided on the identification of the Assyrian king, whether the one who ruled before 1430 B.C. (so Kühne, pp. 77f., n. 387), or the one who ruled 1400–1391 (1390–1381) B.C. (so Artzi, Bar-Ilan Studies in History, 1978, p. 36, and others). Twenty talents is such a large sum and so much greater than the value of the gifts usually exchanged that, if the number is at all accurate, there is probably reference to bride-price gifts (Kühne, 77f., n. 387); cf. EA 14 ii 34 (1200 minas = 20 talents).

10. Reference here could be to the bride-price of either Tušratta's sister or daughter; see EA 17ff.

11. [a-nu-ma]: possible in this dialect, but perhaps [a-na-ku], "I myself," is preferable.

12. [me-eh-re]-ku (Friedrich in Kühne, p. 78, n. 389), or a virtual synonym, [ša-ni-na]-ku (von Soden, p. 434).

13. Sachs, AfO 12 (1937–39) pp. 371f.

14. See von Soden, p. 434.

15. a<sup>o</sup>k-ta<sup>o</sup>-la-šu-nu: following von Soden, ibid.; the reading is virtually certain. The language of lines 37ff. is ambiguous and open to several interpretations: mīṭū (line 39), as to its subject (Suteans? so generally; Egyptian messengers? so CAD, M/1, p. 423b) and meaning (literal? so generally, but cf. mīṭu, said of people in mortal danger, CAD, M/2, p. 143); rādū, "pursuer"? (so generally) or "guide"? (so Kupper, Les nomades en Mésopotamie au temps des rois de Mari [Paris, 1957], p. 100). I take ša in the sense of "as to" (Middle Babylonian, Aro, StOr 20, pp. 146f.; Old Assyrian? cf. AHu, p. 1118, 9b), thus making mārū šiprika uḫḫirūnikku and mārū šipriya uḫḫarūni parallel constructions; uḫḫuru, either intransitive or indefinite third plural subject (cf. CAD, M/1, p. 423b). Also possible: "The ones who delayed . . . were the Suteans" (so generally). If the dead or those in mortal danger are the Egyptians rather than the Suteans, we would have a clearer connection with lines 43ff.

16. Lines 43ff. have been given many interpretations, mainly because of šēru or šīru: "pestilence" (VAB 2/2, p. 1587; Helck, Beziehungen<sup>2</sup>, p. 183); "deprivation, fatigue" (Kühne, p. 83, n. 418; cf. von Soden, p. 434); "sun, open air" (CAD, Š, p. 152; AHu, p. 1095b); "foreign country" (Knudtzon; Edzard, AS 16, p. 113). The Assyrian king probably refers to the long journeys mentioned in lines 35ff., especially the heat and other dangers of the desert (cf. EA 7:53ff.). Donald B. Redford, Akhenaten, the Heretic King (Princeton, 1984), p. 235, sees here a reference to Amenophis IV's holding audiences in the sun, thus worshipping his father.

17. ni-i[l-tap-pa-ru], or perhaps the present tense (-ta-na-ap-).

18. ú-bal'-[l]a-tù-ú is probable; subject, indefinite third plural.

A Mittani bid for a renewed alliance

TEXT: BM 29792.

COPY: BB 9.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Adler, pp. 122–25.

PHOTOGRAPHS: Kitchen, Suppiluliuma, I protagonista della storia universale, fasc. 66 (Milan, 1966), p. 260, figs. 2–3; Giles, Ikbmaton: Legend and History, pl. XI (obverse).

Sa[y] to Nibmuareya, the k[ing of Egypt], my brother: Thus Tuišerratta, the king of [M]ittani, your brother. For me all goes well. For you may all go well. For Kelu-Ḫeba may all go well. For your household, for your wives, for your sons, for your magnates, for your warriors, for your horses, for your chariots, and in your country, may all go very well.

11–20 When I sat on the throne of my father, I was young,<sup>1</sup> and UD-ḫi had done an unseemly thing to my country and had slain his lord. For this reason he would not permit me friendship with anyone who loved me.<sup>2</sup> I, in turn, was not remiss about the unseemly things that had been done in my land, and I slew the slayers of Arta[š]umara, my brother, and everyone belonging to them.<sup>3</sup>

21–29 Since you were friendly with my father, I have accordingly written and told you so my brother might hear of these things and rejoice. My father loved you, and you in turn loved my father. In keeping with this love, my father [g]ave you my sister. [And w]ho els[e] stood with my father [a]s you did?<sup>4</sup>

30–35 [The ver]y next year,<sup>5</sup> moreover, my brother's . . .<sup>6</sup> all the land of Ḫatti. When the enemy advanced against [my] country, Teššup, my lord, gave him into my hand, and I defeated him. There was [n]ot one of them who return[ed] to his own country.

36–38 I herewith send you 1 chariot, 2 horses, 1 male attendant, 1 female attendant,<sup>7</sup> from the booty from the land of Ḫatti.

39–40 As the greeting-gift of my brother, I send you 5 chariots, 5 teams of horses.

41–45 And as the greeting-gift of Kelu-Ḫeba, my sister, I send her 1 set of gold toggle-pins, 1 set of gold (ear)rings,<sup>8</sup> 1 gold mašbu-ring,<sup>9</sup> and a scent container that is full of “sweet oil.”

46–50 I herewith send Keliya, my chief minister, and Tunip-ibri. May my brother let them go promptly so they can report back to me promptly, and I hear the greeting of my brother and rejoice.

51–54 May my brother seek friendship with me, and may my brother send his messengers to me that they may bring my brother's greetings to me and I hear them.

NOTES

1. The exact implications of “young”—legally a minor or something less precise?—are not clear; see Kühne, p. 19, n. 84, and cf. RS 34.129:5–7 (Ugar. 7, pl. XI): “Now, there by you the king, your lord, is young (seber); he knows nothing (mimma lā idē),” and so the correspondent writes to an official instead. On this letter, see M. Dietrich and O. Loretz, UF 10 (1978) pp. 53ff., and Lehmann, UF 11 (1979) pp. 481ff.

2. On “love,” see the Introduction, sect. 4, n. 59.

3. Literally, “everything belonging to them,” but the verb “to kill” argues for primary reference to persons (families and households of the traitors).

4. [ša kē]-i-ka-a-ša, following Kühne, p. 18, n. 78. At the end of the previous line, ša-n[u-ū] (Knudtzon) is certain (against Adler).

5. [i-n]-a TI (for MU.TI, balāṭ)-ma; [nu-kūr]-ti-ma (Adler) is not supported by the traces.

6. 3I “ki-i” (BB 9; Adler, despite VAB 2/1, p. 133, note g) is excluded.

7. On šubāru and šubārtu, see Ugar. 5, p. 135, n. 3; A. Finet, in D. O. Edzard, ed., Gesellschaftsklassen im Alten Zweistromland und in den angrenzenden Gebieten, Bayerische Akademie der Wissenschaften, Phil.-hist. Klasse, NF 75 (Munich, 1972), pp. 65ff.

8. The exact implications of “set” (pair?) are not clear; see Farber, in Rochberg-Halton, ed., Language, Literature, and History (see EA 13, n. 22), pp. 97–98.

9. According to Adler, mašbu is a Kassite loanword, “god,” here a representation of a god. However, the restriction of the term to a Hurrian milieu (Mittani, Alalakh, Qaṭna) argues against such a derivation.

Too fragmentary for translation.<sup>1</sup>

NOTE

1. The two fragments may not belong to the same letter (Michel Artzi, private communication; cf., however, VAB 2/1, p. 134, note b), and neither fragment has the same clay as the other Mittani letters (letter of Allan Dobel, Dec. 10, 1975; cf. A. Dobel, F. Asaro, and H. V. Michel, Or n.s. 46 [1977] pp. 375ff., and AfO 25 [1974–77] p. 259). It is questionable, therefore, whether they belong to the Mittani archive.

Love and gold

COPY: BB 8.

PHOTOGRAPHS: E. Budge and L. King, A Guide to the Babylonian and Assyrian Antiquities (London, 1900), pl. XXVI; in 2d ed. (1908), pl. XXXIX (obverse).

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Adler, pp. 128–35.

Say to Nimmureya, Great King, the king of Egypt, [my] brother, my son-in-law, who loves me, and whom I lov[e]: Message<sup>1</sup> of Tušratta, Great King, [your] father-in-law, who loves you, the king of Mittani, your brother. For me all goes well. For you may all go well. For your household, for my sister, for the rest of your wives, for your sons, for your chariots, for your horses, for your warriors,<sup>2</sup> for your country, and for whatever else belongs to you, may all go very, very well.

9–16 As far back as the time of your ancestors, they always showed love to my ancestors.<sup>3</sup> You yourself went even further and showed very great love to my father. Now, in keeping with our constant and mutual love,<sup>4</sup> you have made it ten times greater than the love shown my father. May the gods grant it, and may Teššup, my lord, and Aman make flour[ish]<sup>5</sup> for evermore, just as it is now, this mutual love of ours.

17–24 When my brother sent Mane, his messenger, saying, “Send your daughter here to be my wife and the mistress of Egypt,” I caused my brother no distress and immediately<sup>6</sup> I said, "Of course!" The one whom my brother requested I showed to Mane, and he saw her. When he saw her, he praised her greatly. I will l[ea]d her<sup>7</sup> in safety to my brother's country. May Šauška and Aman make her the image of my brother's desire.<sup>8</sup>

25–29 Keliya, my messenger, brou[gh]<sup>9</sup> my brother's words to me, and when I heard (them), they were very pleasing, and I rejoiced very, very much, saying, "Certainly there is this between us: we love each other." Now, with such words let us love (each other) forevermore.

30–33 When I wrote to my brother, I said, "Let us love (each other) very, very much, and between us let there be friendship." I also said to my brother, "May my brother treat me ten times better than he did my father."

34–38 I also asked my brother for much gold, saying, "May my brother grant me more than he did to my father and send it to me. You sent my father much gold. You sent him large gold jars and gold jugs.<sup>10</sup> You se[nt him] gold bricks as if they were (just) the equivalent of copper."<sup>11</sup>

39–42 When I sent Keliya to my brother, I asked for [much] gold, saying, "May my brother treat me [ten times] better than he did my father, and may he send much gold that has not been worked."<sup>12</sup>

43–48 May my brother send me much more than he did to my father. Thus did I say to my brother: "I am going to build a mausoleum for my grandfather."<sup>13</sup> I also said, "In accordance with a favorable answer,<sup>14</sup> I am going to make the paraphernalia." And thus did I also say: "The gold that my brother sends me may he send for the bride-price as well."<sup>15</sup>

49–53 Now my brother has sent the gold. I say, "It may be little or not, not a little but much. Still, it has been worked. But though it has been worked, I rejoiced over it much, and whatever it was my brother sent, I am happy about it."<sup>16</sup>

54–58 I now hereby write to my brother, and may my brother show me much more love than he did to my father. I hereby ask for gold from my brother, and the gold that I ask for from my brother is meant for a double purpose: one, for the mausoleum, and the other, for the bride-price.

59–70 May my brother send me in very great quantities gold that has not been worked, and may my brother send me much more gold than he did to my father. In my brother's country, gold is as plentiful as dirt. May the gods grant that, just as now gold is plentiful in my brother's country, he<sup>17</sup> make it even ten times more plentiful than now. May the gold that I ask for not become a source of distress to my brother, and may my brother not cause me distress. May my brother send me in very large quantities gold that has not been worked. Whatever my brother needs for his house, let him write and take (it). I will give ten times more than what my brother asks for. This country is my brother's country, and this house is my brother's house.

71–79 I herewith send my messenger, Keliya, to my brother, and may my brother not detain him. May he let him go promptly so that he may be on his way and I hear my brother's greeting and rejoice exceedingly. Forevermore may I constantly hear the greeting of my brother. May Teššup, my lord, and Aman grant that these words that we shall be constantly writing achieve their purpose, and may they be, as long as they exist,<sup>18</sup> just as they are now. Just as we love (each other) now, exactly as now, so may we love (each other) forevermore.

80–85 I herewith send as my brother's greeting-gift: 1 gold goblet, with inlays of genuine lapis lazuli in its handle;<sup>19</sup> 1 maninnu-necklace, with a counterweight, 20 pieces of genuine lapis lazuli, and 19 pieces of gold, its centerpiece<sup>20</sup> being of genuine lapis lazuli set in gold; 1 maninnu-necklace, with a counterweight, 42 genuine ḫulalu-stones, and 40 pieces of gold shaped like arzallu-stones,<sup>21</sup> its centerpiece being of genuine ḫulalu-stone set in gold; 10 teams of horses; 10 wooden chariots<sup>22</sup> along with everything belonging to them; and 30 women (and) men.<sup>23</sup>

NOTES

1. On umma, "message," see Introduction, n. 52.
2. ÉRIN.GAL(.MEŠ, EA 20:6): logogram for ḫurādu (CAD, Š, p. 50a)?
3. On lines 9–13, see A. Poebel, AS 9, pp. 29–30.
4. inanna attā kī it-ti-⟨ia⟩ a-ḫa-meš nirtana' amu: if the suffix is retained, the syntax is extremely difficult; besides, in the Amarna letters aḫāmiš is never used independently (except EA 29:48?), but only with a preposition: ana (EA 4, 7, and 9, all Babylonia); itti (EA 6, 8–10, Babylonia; 162, Egypt; 19:28, a line closely parallel to 19:12).
5. li-né-ep-pí-⟨šu⟩: against the reading li-né-eb-bi-⟨ú⟩ (Knudtzon, followed by Adler) are the implicit assumption of an uncontracted form (an Assyrianism? cf. EA 25 ii 41) and the meaning of nubbû, which, except perhaps at Emar, does not mean "to proclaim," but "to lament." nuppušu, "to broaden, expand," seems plausible.
6. ina pānātīm-ma, lit. "among the very first things"; hardly "previously, on an earlier occasion" (Adler), which ill accords with the context; cf. EA 29:22. On the particle -maku (annī-maku), here and elsewhere in EA, I follow Kühne, p. 24, n. 111.

7. lu-ú-x-ši: x = [b]a (Knudtzon; Winckler, KB 5, p. 34); du (BB); is (Adler, is-lim); [r]u (Gordon). The traces are extremely faint; I follow Gordon.

8. Cf. EA 20:25ff.

9. it-ta-š[e-m]a: it-ta-š[a]r (Knudtzon), as if from muššuru, would be an unparalleled form. Against simply it-ta-š[e] (Adler) is the probable trace of a vertical (see VAB 2/I, p. 1001, no. 20, which also argues against it-ta-b[a]]; cf. Kühne, p. 26, n. 117).

10. <sup>818</sup>KIRI<sub>6</sub> is a play-writing for kirrēt (CAD, K, p. 410b; Adler, p. 130, n. 4). A pin or the like (kirissu), a typically female adornment, does not seem a likely gift for a king (against AHw, p. 484).

11. kīma ša erē ma-sú-ú: cf. mašû with the accusative (number of times), "reach, come to." Perhaps ma-sú-ú, "as if they were (only) refined copper" (CAD, M/2, p. 30); "when ones of copper would have sufficed" (Adler) seems much too free.

12. ša šipra lā epšu does not mean "that cannot be counted" (Knudtzon, followed by Zaccagnini, Lo scambio dei doni nel Vicino Oriente durante i secoli XV-XIII (Rome, 1973), p. 85, and Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 148, n. 43); see AHw, pp. 1245f., esp. 1246, 9a. On this passage, see also von Schuler, ZA 53 (1961) pp. 190f., and Kühne, p. 25, n. 115. Note, too, that earlier, at Mari, metals are given ana šiprim, "for working" (Limet, MARI 4, p. 512).

13. On karašku, "mausoleum," see Kühne, p. 25, n. 114. (However, HSS 13, 165, does not refer to cremation; see Diakonoff and Jankowska, AoF 2 [1975] pp. 131f.).

14. Following Kühne, p. 24, n. 111. Against taking a-aš-ni as if from šanû, "to do a second time" (Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 148, n. 45; Adler), is the restriction in the Mittani letters of initial V-VC writings to verbs primae aleph and primae waw (Adler, pp. 10f.).

15. ana verbatim-ma: -ma, "also, likewise"; cf. EA 19:58.

16. For slightly different versions of lines 49-53, see Kühne, p. 24, n. 111, and Adler, who thinks that the entire passage is ironic.

17. The subject in the singular is surprising and probably an error; one expects a plural referring to "the gods" (Adler).

18. adi šunû-ma (independent pronoun).

19. On šakru, "handle," see EA 22 i 33.

20. On qablu in a necklace referring to the centerpiece, the part lying lowest on the breast, see Durand, ARMT 21, p. 242.

21. *sú-ub-sí-d*INANNA: following AHw, p. 1054; for the equivalence, ar-zallu, see also CAD, A/2, p. 324. Cf. ar-zallu as a piece of jewelry in Neo-Babylonian times, when apparently it was also made of gold.

22. See EA 3, n. 17.

23. In HSS 16, 10:75, SAL.NITA.MEŠ means "women (and) men," a usage, as noted by Wilhelm, Das Archiv des Šilwa-Teššup, 2 (Wiesbaden, 1980), p. 73, that seems pertinent here. In Emar 6/3, 217:8 and 256:8, 11, the logogram refers to children, female and male; see Durand, NABU, 1989, no. 55. Perhaps the common denominator was "subordinate members of a household." See also the discussion of SAL.UŠ(NITA) in CAD, S, pp. 216f.

Humiliation and wounded feelings

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Adler, pp. 136-43.

Say [to Nim]mureya, the king of [Egypt], my brother, my son-in-law, [whom I]love and who love[s me: Thus T]ušratta, the king of Mitt[ani], your father-in-law, [who]love[s] you, your brother. [Fo]r me all goes well. For you [may a]ll go well. For your household, for [your] wives, for your [s]ons, for your magnates, [f]or your [ch]ariots, for your horses, for your warriors,<sup>1</sup> [f]or your country and whatever else belongs to you, may all go very, very well.

8-13 In view of friendly relations, Mane, my brother's messenger, came to take my brother's wife to become the mistress of Egypt.<sup>2</sup> I read and reread the tablet that he brought to me, and I listened to its words. Very pleasing indeed were the words of my brother. I rejoiced on that day as if I had seen my brother in person. I made that day and night a [fes]tive occasion.

14-17 I will carry out my brother's eve[ry] word [t]hat Mane brought to me. I will now, t[hi]s year, del[iver] my brother's wife, the mistress of Egypt, and they will bring her to my brother. On t[hat] day shall Ḥanigalbat and Egypt be [one].<sup>3</sup>

18-22 For this reason, Ma[n]e [has been detained be]re a while.<sup>4</sup> [I was going to se]nd Keliya and Mane promptly, but I had not finished. They should be of delicate workmanship.<sup>5</sup> It [th]us (came) to letting the w[or]k go, and I did not do the work, in order to d[o]<sup>6</sup> ten times (more) for my brother's wife. But now I will do the work.

23-27 Within six months, I will send Keliya, my messenger, and Mane my brother's mes[senger]. I will deli[ver] my brother's wife and they will bring her to my brother. May Šauška, my mistress, the mi[stress of all lands and of m]y [brother],<sup>7</sup> and Aman, the god of my brother, make her the ima[ge] of [my brother's desire].

28-32 They will bring [hi]s [wife] to my brother, and whe[n they show her to] my brother, [he will no]te this:<sup>8</sup> she has become very mature, and . . . [ . . . She] has been fashioned according to my brother's desire. And, furthermore, my brother [will note th]at [the greeting-gi]ft that I shall present [is greater] than any before.

33-38 I herewith [send] Ḥaaramašš[i, w]hom my brother [sent] to [me]. I have entrusted him with a tablet. [May my brother read and reread my report] and hear its words. I herewith send [Haaara]mašši to my brother . . . [ . . . ], my brother, did I not tre[at] his troops well? [ . . . ]

39–45 . . .

46–59 [And with regard to the gold] that my brother sent [ . . . ], I gathered together all my [foreign-guests]. [My] brother, before all of them, [the gold that he sent] has now been cut off [ . . . ] of them. They were sealed, but the gold [ . . . ]. They were full of [ . . . ], and they wept very much, saying, “Are all of these gold? They do not lo[ok] (like gold).” They said, “In Egypt, gold is more plentiful than dirt. Besides, my brother<sup>10</sup> loves you very much. (But) if there be someone<sup>11</sup> whom he loves, then he would not give such things to him.<sup>12</sup> [Whatever] is needed is in Egypt more plentiful than dirt, [and] anyone can give anyone<sup>13</sup> (else) so many things [that] they are beyond calculation.” I said, “I cannot say [before] you, as I am used to saying, ‘My [brother], the king of Egypt, loves me very, very much.’”

60–63 My brother will consider whether I was somewhat distressed or not. May he forgive me!<sup>14</sup> Never again may Teššup, my lord, permit me to complain against my brother. Thus have I spoken to my brother that my brother might know.

64–70 I have honored Mane, my brother’s messenger, [and] all my brother’s [tr]oo[ps] who accompanied Mane, and I have treated them with great distinction. Mane will indeed arrive, and my brother should [in]quire carefully from him whether I showed him very great honors. He will tell my brother, and my brother will hear from all of them whether I treated them just as was required. Mane is not dying. Truly, he is just the same, and he is not ill.<sup>15</sup>

71–79 May my brother send me much gold that has not been worked, and may my brother treat me even better than he did my father. May Teššup and Aman grant that my brother show his love for me, that my brother greatly glorify me before my country and before my foreign guests.<sup>16</sup> Forever will I do what my brother wants, and my brother shall do what I want. Just as men love the Sun, so may we as now—may the gods grant us!—forever maintain love [in] our [heart]s.

80–84 [I herewith] send to my brother as my brother’s greeting-gift 1 rope-lock,<sup>17</sup> [the . . . of which is of . . . ] and its base of hiliba-stone set in gold; [ . . . that] holds in its hand [ . . . ]; [ . . . ] with beads of genuine bulalu-stone set in gold, that is meant for the hand [ . . . ] . . .

NOTES

1. See EA 19:7.

2. Tušratta’s daughter was not going to replace Teye (cf. EA 26), and Tušratta certainly knew it; see Kühne, p. 27, n. 120. In line 8, it-ta-[a]l-ka, following Adler.

3. [l-en a-mi]-lu-ú-t[u], lit. “one man(hood),” following Adler.

4. [k-ka-la-a] ú-ba-an: cf. Knudtzon’s [ . . . ]-a; adverbial ubān (see AHw, p. 1399a), if correct, is perhaps better taken with what follows (“I was just about to send . . .”).

5. ‘ú’-[ma-aš-š]ar-šu-nu-ti (Kühne, p. 28, n. 127) ù la aq-ti lu qat-nu: Knudtzon translated as if the text read akalla-šunu; Kühne emends to ak-ta’-lu-šu-nu, but the apparent subjunctive remains unexplained; AHw, p. 918 (hesitantly), and Adler emend to aq-ti-íp’-šu-nu, but neither “I did not trust them” nor “I did not trust (her) to them” (Adler) seems likely in context. Against my version is the absence of any parallel for the use of qatū (uqatti expected) and the failure to indicate the subject of qatnu. On qatnu said of work (dullu, lines 20ff.), cf. EA 14, n. 32.

6. a-na [e-pé-eš].

7. be-el-ti be-l[e-et] KUR.KUR ù 26 [ŠEŠ]-ia: cf. EA 23:13, 31f. Other interpretations: bēlti be-l[e-ti], “mistress of mistresses” (Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 183; Schroeder, OLZ, 1917, col. 105; Kühne, p. 30, n. 136); and bēlti be-l-tu ša 26 [KUR-i]a, “my mistress, the mistress of my land” (Adler, despite VAB 2/1, p. 146, note 3). In line 26, Kühne restores [DINGIR-i]a, “my god(dess),” but as subject and in the nominative case ilī, not ilīya, is expected (cf. EA 23:31, and Adler, p. 26, on pronominal suffixes); cf. also “Teššup, my lord” (bēlti, EA 19:15; 20:61).

8. ki-[i] ú-kál-la-mu-ši 29 [i-im]-ma-ar-šu: on the sequence kullumu-amāru, cf. EA 19:21f., and on the writing of the latter form see Adler, pp. 10f. Free restorations: [ap-pu-na-ma] (line 30), [i-im-ma-ar] (31), [ra-bi] (32).

9. Reading and restoring (freely): 46 [ù aš-šum KÙ.GI] . . . 47 [ú-ba-ru-t]u<sub>4</sub>-ia (cf. lines 73ff.) . . . ŠE[š-ia] KÙ.GI 48 [ša ú-še-bi-lu] . . . is-sal-[tu] (Kühne, p. 28, n. 126).

10. A mistake for “your brother”?

11. awīlūtu, “anyone”?

12. a-na aš-šu: a mistake for ana ša-šu? Adler: ana AŠ (hišēbi)-šu, “for his need.”

13. Cf. use of mannu at Nuzi as indefinite pronoun (Wilhelm, AOAT 9, p. 82). See also the different interpretations by Adler and Kühne of the entire passage.

14. lu-ú pa-aš-ra (naššuru), “to forgive”. For other interpretations, see Adler and Kühne, p. 29, n. 129; also Ugar. 5, p. 73, n. 11.

15. This translation, rather than “he is/will be falling ill,” seems required by context.

16. On ubāru, “foreign guest,” see Kühne, p. 29, n. 128. The verb, ú-bar-ra-ša-an-ni, is probably a mistake for ú-ša-aš-ra-ša-an-ni (CAD, B, p. 101; J. Finkelstein, JAOS 90 [1970] p. 253, n. 48); otherwise, Adler and G. Driver, JSS 12 (1967) p. 106.

17. <sup>g</sup>išÉŠ.SAG.KUL (ebel sikkūri), with Adler; correct CAD, K, p. 56b.

A necklace for 100,000 years

TEXT: VAT 190.

Say to Nimmureya, Great King, king of Egypt, my brother, my son-in-law, whom I love and who loves me: Thus Tušratta, Great King, the king of Mittani, your brother, your father-in-law, and one who loves you. For me all goes well. For my brother and my son-in-law, may all go well. For your household, for your wives, for your sons, for your men, for your chariots, for your horses, for your country, and for whatever else belongs to you, may all go very well.

13–23 I have given him my daughter to be the wife of my brother, whom I love. May Šimige and Šauška go before her. May they m[ake he]r the image of my brother's desire. May my brother rejoice on i[ba]t day. May Šimige and Šau[ška] grant my brother a gre[at] blessing, exquisi[te] joy. M[ay they bless him] and may you, my brother, li[ve] forever.<sup>1</sup>

24–32 Mane, [my brother's] messenger, and Ḫane, my brother's interpre[ter], I have ex[alted] like gods. I have given [them] many presents and treated them very kindly, for their report was excellent. In everything about them, I have never seen men with such an appearance. May my gods and the gods of my brother protect them.

33–41 I herewith dispatch to my brother Naḫramašši to carry out . . . ,<sup>2</sup> and I send 1 maninnu-necklace of genuine lapis lazuli and gold as the greeting-gift of my brother. May it rest on the neck of my brother for 100,000 years.

NOTES

1. 21 . . . I[ik-ru-bu-šu] 22 . . . lu-ú bal-ṭ[á-ta].

2. 34 ša ta am ra: Kühne, p. 31, n. 143, emended the text to read ta-aš<sup>1</sup>-pu<sup>1</sup>-ra ((a-na) x-x) ana epēši, "whom you have sent to me, I have sent to my brother to do (x x)." Did the jargon of diplomacy develop in the periphery a word šatamru, "personal report," from frequently used (introductory) ša ātamru, "what I saw (was . . .)?" Cf. the use of amāru in EA 15. Edel, JNES 7 (1948) p. 24, has questioned the personal name; rather, "1 nabru (made of) mašši."

43-49 It is all of these wedding-gifts,<sup>56</sup> of every sort, that Tušratta, the king of Mittani, gave to Nimmureya, the king of Egypt, his brother and his son-in-law. He gave them at the same time that he gave Tadu-Ḫeba, his daughter, to Egypt and to Nimmureya to be his wife.

NOTES

1. On siḫpu as "cover(ing)," see CAD, S, p. 239.
3. pu-ug-dá-a-ti-šu-nu (AHw, p. 880).
4. Perhaps related to the na-tu-la-te in a letter found at Kumidu; see G. Wilhelm, ZA 63 (1973) p. 19, line 19; see also M. Görg, ZA 76 (1986) p. 303.
5. On a possible earlier form of tašli (ti-sa-la), see M. Civil, in L. Cagni, ed., Ebla, 1975-1985 (Naples, 1987), p. 156.
6. šarmu, "cut," but probably to be understood of sharpening the tips.
7. On ḫabalkinnu, see M. Hoffner, JCS 22 (1968) pp. 42-43; J. Postgate, BSOAS 34 (1971) pp. 13ff. In EA 22 and 25, AN.BAR is perhaps to be read ḫabalkinnu, not parzillu.

8. On gumūru, "guard," see Salonen, StOr 33, p. 57.
9. KIN = šakru, as long established by Knudtzon, VAB 2/1, p. 158, note f, and now made explicit by HAR-ra forerunner, Emar 6/4, p. 77: 437ff.: kin = ša-ak-ru, kin-gír = ša-ka-ri, etc. How šakru (Middle Assyrian, Mittani, Emar)/šikru differs from rettu (AHw, p. 990b), with which it is also found (lines ii 21, 44; iii 16; EA 25 ii 43; etc.), is not clear. Is the rettu the lower part of the handle that fits into the palm? Cf. at Ebla, Sumerian šu-ša, "inside of the hand" = la-'à-tum (raḥatum) (G. Pettinato, Materiali epigrafici di Ebla [Naples, 1982], p. 256:516).
10. BAN (not si<sup>is</sup>BAN; also lines ii 54; iii 45, 48) = qaštu (CAD, A/2, p. 170b)?
11. On the tilpānu-bow, see B. Groneberg, RA 81 (1987) pp. 115–24. On p. 117, n. 21, Groneberg speculates that here the bow may be a musical instrument.
12. sà-di-in-nu; see also EA 266:32.
13. I ŠU pi-ti-in-ka-ak <sup>si<sup>is</sup>HÉ</sup>.ME.TÁ sú-up-pu-ru. On the logogram, see Goetze, JCS 10 (1956) p. 34, n. 19, and Landsberger, JCS 21 (1967) p. 168; on the reading tabarru rather than nabāsu, see CAD, N/1, p. 22a. pitinkak, "glove" (AHw, p. 869), though doubtful, seems more likely, in view of the trimming, than a part of the snaffle (Adler, following A. Salonen, Die Landfahrzeuge des Alten Mesopotamien [Helsinki, 1956], p. 57).
14. Assuming <sup>na</sup>GÍR.ZÚ = <sup>na</sup>GÍR.ZÚ.GAL, šurru; cf. <sup>na</sup>ZU = šurru? (EA 13:17).
15. [I ma-aš]-ba-lu (AHw, p. 625; CAD, M/1, p. 365).
16. Assuming <sup>na</sup>ŠI.TIR = <sup>na</sup>ŠE.TIR. See PRU 3, p. 184:21 and note; AHw, p. 854b, which also refers tentatively to LTBA 1, 71:9 (but cf. MSL 10, p. 13:330).
17. kaballu š[a i-li] (cf. lines ii 32, 34–35), the last term taken as i'lu = <sup>u<sup>is</sup></sup>SIG<sub>4</sub>.ZA; see iv 12. Durand, ARMT 21, p. 423, sees in kaballu a special fabric for sandals or leggings.
18. CAD, K, p. 375a, proposes k[i-in]-ší-šu-nu, "their leggings."
19. I ŠU <sup>u<sup>is</sup></sup>GÚ bur-ri [ša] URU: <sup>u<sup>is</sup></sup>GÚ (also lines ii 39, 41, and iii 24 in this inventory; EA 27:110; and see <sup>u<sup>is</sup></sup>GÚ URU in the next line) is an abbreviated <sup>u<sup>is</sup></sup>GÚ.È(A), nablaptu (cf. EA 14 iii 15, 18, 22). The same abbreviation is found at Boghazköy, and the Hurrian-style nablaptu is known from roughly contemporary documents from Alalakh, Boghazköy, and perhaps Ugarit; see Goetze, Corolla Linguistica (Wiesbaden, 1965), pp. 52ff.; CAD, N/1, p. 139b; ARMT 21, p. 402; S. Dalley et al., The Old Babylonian Tablets from Tell al Rimah, British School of Archaeology in Iraq (Hertford, Eng., 1976), pp. 59f. If the qualification is to be understood as [ša] URU = āli, "for the city" (longer? fuller? more elaborate?), this garment is perhaps opposed to the type of shirt worn by the military (Waetzoldt, RLA 6/1–2, p. 25b). The article of apparel called URU (ālu), if a mural crown (PRU 3, p. 182, note to line 4; ARMT 7, p. 309; Hoffner, IEJ 19 [1969] pp. 178ff.), hardly appears here. alu, a type of jewelry (ARMT 18, p. 169; ARMT 21, p. 250, n. 10), also seems excluded.
20. I <sup>u<sup>is</sup></sup>GÚ URU (also ii 40, 41; iii 24; and EA 27:110) = nablapti āli? (See previous line.) Tukriš (also EA 25 iv 25) was in Luristan and gave its name to metal objects and garments (see tukrišū, AHw, p. 1367).

21. I ŠU <sup>u<sup>is</sup></sup>[B].LÁ (nēbehu) . . . malū: "full" recalls the contrast in Hittite texts of "full-empty," presumably "ornamented, non-ornamented"; see Goetze, Corolla Linguistica, p. 48, n. 2; cf. also ii 27.
22. I <sup>u<sup>is</sup></sup>BAR.DUL = kusītu (also ii 42; iii 25; EA 25 iv 48), which is to be added to the references in AHw and CAD (CAD, K, p. 485b, misreads ii 42 as <sup>u<sup>is</sup></sup>BAR.SI); cf. <sup>u<sup>is</sup></sup>BAR.DUL/DUL, Practical Vocabulary of Assur 237f. (Landsberger and Gurney, AfO 18 [1957–58] p. 330), cited CAD, K, p. 585.
23. ša zubbī kuššudi (AHw, p. 461a; CAD, Z, p. 156a) is not an instrument for catching flies (Knudtzon, Adler). The difference between this whisk (also EA 25 iii 52) and ša zubbī šūlī (i 58) is not clear.
24. ša per<sub>6</sub>-a-zi (also EA 25 i 27; AHw, p. 855): the qualification seems paralleled at Mari by ša pi-(i<sub>h</sub>)-ba-zi(-im), which Durand, AÉM 1/1, p. 120, interprets as "having a mouse" (pi<sub>2</sub>zu, pur'asu), i.e., a part for gnawing, tearing.
25. The garment ša-bá-at-ti (EA 120:21) does not seem likely in this context; cf. PRU 3, p. 183, note to line 11.
26. The reference to a handle favors taking makkasu as a cutting instrument (AHw, p. 589, "an axe"; Adler) rather than as a bowl (CAD, M/1, p. 132). Note also 2 GÍR ma-ka-su (ARMT 21, no. 219:31), which indicates a knifelike makkasu as well as an axe (TÜN).
27. "Helmet" is more probably a designation of shape (also ii 65; iv 16) than a display helmet; see Wilcke, RLA 4/4–5, p. 312.
28. gi<sub>5</sub>-il-tū (also iii 2): see CAD, K, p. 357a.
29. On ištu, "on, around," not "from," see N. Illingworth, Iraq 50 (1988) p. 103.
30. On ALAM as "winged disk" here, in line iii 22, and perhaps in line i 26, see Dalley, Iraq 48 (1986) pp. 94f.
31. pa-aš-(šu)-ru, following Adler, since pasru, "pole," is never found in a gift list.
32. I <sup>si<sup>is</sup></sup>BUGIN.TUR (buginnu šeburu? sussullu?): the difference between BUGIN (LAGABXA) and BÚGIN (LAGABXNINDA) is that the former was used for liquids, the latter for kneading dough; see CAD, B, pp. 306f., and H. Güterbock, Osten Festschrift (see Introduction, n. 37), p. 80.
33. On šusuppu, originally a cloth for wiping and later (as here) a kind of undergarment worn around the hips; see K. Deller and K. Watanabe, ZA 70 (1981) pp. 218f., and M. Mallul, BiOr 43 (1986) p. 29, n. 61.
34. Perhaps šf(ik).KÍL (EA 25 iv 52) is a phonetic writing of Ī.SIKIL, ellu/ullu, "(sesame?) oil." On these oils as cosmetics and their containers, see Helck, Beziehungen, pp. 399ff.
35. Contrary to CAD, B, p. 64, neither here nor in EA 25 iv 51 is the reading ŠIM.BAL; here it is ŠIM.BÚLUG (ballukku), and in the latter, ŠIM.GIG (kanatku).
36. On the sarku, see Ugar. 5, p. 98, n. 1, and I. Singer, Tel Aviv 10 (1983) p. 8, n. 11.
37. On gurpisu, "helmet," see Timothy Kendall, in M. A. Morrison and

D. T. Owen, eds., Studies on the Civilization and Culture of Nuzi and the Hurrians (Winona Lake, Ind., 1981), pp. 201ff. On leather cuirasses for horses, see Edler, Brief, pp. 151f.

38. There is not enough room for <sup>si</sup>[ia-ka]-a-tu<sub>4</sub> (CAD, H, p. 264a, followed by Adler). Lines 51–54 seem to list special types of arrows.

39. pu-ug-<sup>r</sup>da-t<sup>r</sup>[u<sub>4</sub>] (cf. i 16).

40. šu-ku-ú-[du] (Gordon).

41. 10 ŠU.SI (ubānātu) ka-sā-tu<sub>4</sub> ša GUD.MEŠ: obscure (see AHw, p. 1309a). Context seems to argue against interpreting ŠU.SI as šūšī and rendering “600 goblets (in the form of) oxen.”

42. <sup>te</sup><sub>4</sub>-mu-ú; see also EA 25 iv 48, and cf. <sup>túg</sup>GADA <sup>te</sup><sub>4</sub>-me-ta (RS 34.134: 10, Ugar. 7, pl. XV–XVI).

43. 3 <sup>túg</sup>TUNANIBA (SIG<sub>4</sub>.ZA, i’lu).MEŠ (omitted by Adler): on the fabric as hairy or shaggy and the logogram in peripheral texts, see Waetzoldt, RLA 6/1–2, pp. 21f.; Dalley, Iraq 42 (1980) p. 73. The i’lu was highly esteemed (Durand, ARMT 21, p. 407, n. 3).

44. TÚG.GÍD.DA: reading uncertain, but if TÚG = šubātu, then GÍD.DA = arku (not ariktu, Adler). Similarly, in the next line, GUD<sub>x</sub>(PU).DA = kurû, not kurîtu. Cf. perhaps ARMT 22, no. 164 r. 2–3, 1 TÚG GUZ.ZA BU.A, and see comments of J. Kupper, ARMT 22/2, p. 614.

45. AHw, p. 367, and CAD, I/J, p. 46, agree in reading UGUN (U + GUN) ihzetu (a kind of special trimming) here and in EA 25 iv 50 (cf. iv 45ff.). As noted, however, by Knudtzon (VAB 2/1, p. 162, note h), the same sign is found in ii 18, 33, 35, and iii 27, and it is GÚN.A, usually burrumu, “variegated.” On sānu, “hem, trim,” see Landsberger, JCS 21 (1967) p. 160, n. 105; Dalley, Iraq 42 (1980) p. 72; Moran, RA 77 (1983) pp. 93f.

46. ša GIŠ (not IZI [Adler]).

47. Among so many household objects, “spears” must be a kind of poker.

48. Cf. sakku II (AHw, p. 1012); CAD, S, p. 78 (perhaps zakku). Adler interprets ZA.AG.GI as a phonetic writing of SAG.GI = pīḫu, “lock,” but though SAG.GI = peḫû, “to stop up, block,” it is never a logogram for pīḫu, and pīḫu is not a lock.

49. 10 “ŠEN” (ruqqu? šannu? also Gordon).

50. The form (purrusu) and the reduplication in the corresponding Sumerian term (dug-būr-būr-ru) indicates a vessel with many “breaches,” that is, with a strainer or sieve attachment (cf. Adler).

51. Line 33 seems out of place and looks like a heading for 37ff.

53. 10 NÍG.GÍD.DA (mašaddu: AHw, p. 622; CAD, M/1, p. 351; níg-gíd-da apin = ma-ša-ad-du, Emar 6/4, p. 70:166') 10 [<sup>si</sup>]<sup>bu-bu</sup>-[<sup>r</sup>]u<sub>4</sub> GIGIR: there is no reason to read [<sup>n</sup>]<sup>s</sup> (Knudtzon, CAD, B, p. 302; Adler); for the determinative, note especially the Akkadogram at Boghazköy, <sup>si</sup>BU-BU-TÛ/TI. On bubūtu as the main beam on either side of the chariot, not the axle, see Civil, JAOS 88 (1968) p. 10. Cf. also the plural bubātim, along with poles, for a cart (Abb 3, 73:7).

54. If [<sup>r</sup>]imittu is the correct reading, it would refer to a part of the chariot, and it is not clear how it should be distinguished from nīru in the following line. On the difficulty in general of distinguishing the two, see Civil, JAOS 88 (1968) pp. 9f.

55. x-y-z [<sup>si</sup>]<sup>s</sup>? KI.KAL.GIGIR = sassu (AHw, p. 1032; CAD, S, p. 195).

56. The reading of NÍG.BA.MEŠ SAL.UŠ.MEŠ remains uncertain, and terbatu in the sense of “dowry” (Knudtzon, tentatively; Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 149, n. 53) seems excluded by the logogram and the almost exclusively masculine character of the gifts; see Kühne, pp. 34f. Were these gifts originally the bride-price or part of it and then returned to the Egyptian king as a kind of indirect dowry? On the indirect dowry in the Hurrian milieu of Nuzi, see Katarzyna Grosz, in Morrison and Owen, eds., Studies on the Civilization and Culture of Nuzi and the Hurrians (see n. 37), pp. 170ff.

A goddess travels to Egypt

TEXT: BM 29793.

COPY: BB 10.

PHOTOGRAPHS: BB, pl. 23; L. Waterman, Royal Correspondence of the Assyrian Empire, vol. 4 (Ann Arbor, 1930), pl. 4, no. 11; H. Saggs, The Greatness That Was Babylon (paperback; New York and Toronto, 1968), illus. 30 (reverse only).

TRANSLATION: Ebeling, pp. 372–73.

Say to Nimmureya, the king of Egypt, my brother, my son-in-law, whom I love and who loves me: Thus Tušratta, the king of Mittani, who loves you, your father-in-law. For me all goes well. For you may all go well. For your household, for Tadu-Ḫeba, my daughter, your wife, whom you love, may all go well. For your wives, for your sons, for your magnates, for your chariots, for your horses, for your troops, for your country and for whatever else belongs to you, may all go very, very well.

13–17 Thus Šauška of Nineveh, mistress of all lands: “I wish to go<sup>1</sup> to Egypt, a country that I love, and then return.” Now I herewith send her, and she is on her way.<sup>2</sup>

18–25 Now, in the time, too, of my father . . .<sup>3</sup> went to this country, and just as earlier she dwelt there and they honored her, may my brother now honor her 10 times more than before.<sup>4</sup> May my brother honor her, (then) at (his) pleasure let her go so that she may come back.

26–30 May Šauška, the mistress of heaven, protect us, my brother and me, 100,000 years, and may our mistress<sup>5</sup> grant both of us great joy. And let us act as friends.

31–32 Is Šauška for me alone my god(dess), and for my brother not his god(dess)?<sup>6</sup>

NOTES

1. lu-ul-lik-ma-me (Adler, also Gordon).

2. The statue sent by Tušratta need not have been the statue worshipped in the temple in Nineveh; see Kühne, p. 37, nn. 176–77.

One explanation of the goddess's visit is that she was to heal the aged and ailing Egyptian king, but this explanation rests purely on analogy and finds no support in this letter, contrary to what Ilse Wegner, Gestalt und Kult der Ištar-Šawuška in Kleinasien, AOAT 36 (1981) p. 65, declares. More likely, it seems, is a connection with the solemnities associated with the marriage of Tušratta's daughter; cf. the previous visit mentioned in lines 18f., perhaps on the occasion of the marriage of Kelu-Ḫeba (see EA 19:6), and note, too, Šauška's role, along with Aman, of making Tadu-Ḫeba answer to the king's desires (EA 19:24; 20:25ff.; 21:16).

3. A reading 1-en-nu-tu<sub>4</sub>, "the first time" (Adler; cf. EA 1:72), would make perfect sense, but it is not supported by collation, either Gordon's or my own. x-y-BE/nu (possible, against Knudtzon)-tu<sub>4</sub>; x = DINGIR? y = IŠ?

4. pa-na-a-nu (Gordon).

5. NIN-ni<sub>5</sub> (Adler).

6. These lines are hardly an affirmation (so Knudtzon; cf. Weber, VAB 2/2, p. 1050; Adler, p. 173, n. 1) to support Tušratta's request that the statue be returned. It may be doubted that Tušratta would say anything so obvious, or that, if he did, he would say it here and not five lines earlier when the return of the statue is mentioned (lines 24f.). The writing ia-ši-ma-a indicates a question, and the implied negative answer explains why the Pharaoh may expect to share with Tušratta in the protection and blessings of the goddess. She is "our mistress" (line 28) and, therefore, our goddess.

Following lines 31f., there are three lines of Egyptian, written in black ink and the hieratic script, the reading of part of which remains uncertain. This much seems clear: "Year 36, 4th month of winter, day 1. One (the king) was in the southern villa (of) the House of Rejoicing." See Kühne, p. 37, n. 178. It is uncertain whether this letter is referred to as a "copy" (Egyptian myt.t); on the implications of the term, see EA 27, n. 20.

And I did not express 53 ... to Mane, your envoy, 54 ... of the (genitive plural) ... of my brother ... which 55 ... graciously 56 ... everything [ve]ry, very 57 ... all that 58 ... I did graciously.

59 ... Mane, your envoy, 60 ... fine oil(?) for his head, good ... 61 ... fine oil(?) for his head; 62 my brother's [wife], the mistress of the land of Egypt 63–64 (destroyed or unintelligible).

§7

65 ... now my brother has sent. And earlier 66 ... and my entire ... 67 my brother us(?) very, very 68 ... totally, my entire land very, very 69 ... and I did all that totally 70 ... very, very graciously, 71 with my [...] ... (and) with those whom I love. Mane, 72 your envoy, 73 saw all the things that I did.

§8

74 As now my brother loves me, 75 as now I love my brother, 76 so may Teššup, Šauška, Amanu, 77 Šimige, Ea-šarri and all 78 the gods love us in their hearts very, very much. 79 For long years may [w]e(!) with great joy very, very much 80 rejoice. And the things that we wish for ourselves, 81 may one for the other, between us, generously, 82 most graciously do.

§9

83 And Keliya, my(!) envoy, delivered ... message, 84 and he reported as follows: "Your brother Nimmureya, 85 the lord of Egypt, made a ... gift. 86 And from Iḫibe, the city of Šimige, he had it come, 87 and to Šimige, his god, his father, he conducted (it). 88 And all the gifts of his forefathers 89 were very, very delightful, and the pieces of booty left your brother's 90 country amazed. So the gift went off, 91 and your brother himself, in consideration of the gift, was 92 amazed." And Keliya expressly announced the gift's departure, 93 and he reported as follows: "He has ... 10,000 ... the way 94 ... So he has ... that of Šimige ... 95 ... I ... very much." Thus 96 ... did he speak. The ... 97 ... of the land of my brother, 98 which are made for him, the 99 ... objects that my brother 100 made for the gift, these may 101 Šimige and Aman and Ea-šarri 102 for my brother and his land ... in a favorable way, 103 ... 104 The things that my brother in connection with the gift 105 did for Šimige, his god, 106 his father, these will Šimige give to my brother, 107 and all the things that my brother 108 wishes in (his) heart, 109 he will make. So shall it be (lit., so they are).

§10

110 And may my brother not distress himself about that matter. 111 My brother's envoys whom 112 I allowed to depart(?) (and whom) I sent, those ... 113 ..., and may my brother hear them ... 114 Keliya, my envoy, and Mane, your envoy, I have allowed to depart, and they are coming to my brother.

II 1-2 (destroyed) 3 ... 4 And my brother has ... them 5 ... very correctly. And when about all I had not done 6 for my brother's wife 7 I heard from Keliya and Mane, when they left, 8 I was/did ... and ... 9 to the dowry for my brother's wife ... 10 very, very much, in a way according to my brother's heart 11 ... we might ... from our ...

§11

12 And I want just (lit., one thing) to say something to my brother, and may my brother 13 heed it. And Mane, my brother's 14 envoy, comes. When a dowry is brought(?), 15-16 and when earlier Mane brought what my brother had dispatched [as] my gift, 17 I assembled my entire land 18 and my nobles, as many as there are ... And I addressed 19 Mane: "All ... that my brother 20 dispatched, all 21 ... that my brother 22 dispatched are ... 23 ... they may all ..., 24 they may ..., they may be satisfactory ...

§12

25 And he did ... them very much, in ... fashion 26 ... and I addressed (them): "My land 27 will ... me; my nobles will ... me. 28-33 (badly damaged)

§13

34-49 (badly damaged) 50 ... And my brother will inform me ... 51 ..., 52 may the gods not ordain ... distressed ... 53-54 If ... my brother will dispatch a shipment of gold as my gift, and over that 55 I would rejoice in my heart exceedingly, totally. 56 And so I have said them (these words) now to my brother. Know (this)!

§14

57-58 And now may my brother send Mane, my brother's envoy. If the ... 59 four ..., two ... of ivory, ... 60 golden ... Just as I 61 ... over the one large dowry ... 62 rejoiced exceedingly, [I will] in view of 63 what my brother dispatches, 64 [rejoice] exceedingly.

65 And the things which in our midst Teššup and Amanu 66 ... have done, ... Just as ... 67 loves, so shall we together [in ou]r midst ... 68 and we, between us, are one, the Hurrian land 69 and the land of Egypt. From that ... they 70 among them are also of one mind. 71 I am the k[ing] of the land of Egypt, 72 and my brother is the ki[ng] of the Hurrian land (sic). 73 And what both these lands do not want ..., 74 and we together do not want ..., 75 if those great things ... 76 in our marriage alliance our gods ... 77 and(?) we(!) do not(!) guide well the ... of our gods, of Teššup (and) Amanu. 78-79 Whosoever did not carry on a relationship full of love in the manner of my forefathers (and) my own (manner), another matter that ... 80 all things for us ... 81 So shall it be (lit., so they are). ... Land ... 82 For us may they ... 83 all ... other lands, which my brother 84–85 . . . , in view of his/her/its matter, I will have with my brother a relationship full of love. So shall it be (lit., so am I).

§16

86 May my brother send off Mane. If 87 . . . I have properly given, the other 88 lands, all envoys are present, 89 and all other lands, my servants, are present. 90 If I to my head . . . , if 91 Mane is not, . . . 92 the others that I make, where are they? So 93 may my brother carry on with me a relationship full of love. . . . 94 all lands . . .

§17

95 Mane, your envoy, is very good; there does not exist 96 a man(!) like [him] in all the world . . . 97 Thus my brother in my land . . . 98 . . . that I saw . . . 99 . . . in my land . . . that he made . . . does not exist. 100 My brother did . . . Mane . . . From this . . . 101 . . . does not exist. The word that 102 Mane will communicate to my brother is graci[ous] and 103 true. And may my brother . . . it. It is not evil 104 (and) hostile towards my brother. 105 Towards his affairs it is not hostile, and he tells me (that) my affairs . . . 106 . . .

§18

107–8 But now [m]y brother [bas]ent, and it is [M]ane [my bro]ther has sent. And guards has [my] brother . . . 109 sent . . . 110 And he has come . . . and my brother . . . him . . . 111 And Mane . . . my brot[her . . .] land . . . 112 exceedingly . . . 113–15 (badly damaged)

§19

116 The other . . . of my brother, who come with Mane, 117 have . . . in a brilliant way very much . . . 118–24 (badly damaged)
125 Just as . . .

III 1 And my brother wanted a wife . . . 2 and now I have given her, and she has gone [to my] brot[er]. 3 Just as that entire . . . is pleasant, . . . 4 that entire . . . 5 So shall it be (lit., so it is). What the 6 Hurrian land does not want at all, what the 7 land of Egypt does not want at all, all that my brother's wife shows 8 to my brother, is not . . . 9 . . . sees . . . not. So 10 shall it be (lit., so it is), . . . so shall it be (lit., so it is).

11 And now I have given my brother's wife, and she has gone 12 to my brother. When she comes, 13 my brother will see her . . . And she comes 14 to my brother; she is pleasing, according to my brother's heart. 15 And again my brother will see a dowry 16 . . . We . . . from our . . . 17 and we are not . . . 18 (The things) that I have dispatched to my brother I have dispatched, and my brother will see them. 19 They come 20 to my brother, and they are . . . and they are . . .

§21

21 And now when the wife of my brother comes, 22 when she shows herself to my brother, 23 may my . . . belonging to me, . . . and my . . . 24 they may show. And the entire land may my brother 25 assemble, and may all other lands 26 and the nobles (and) all envoys be present. 27 And they may show his dowry to my brother, 28 and they may spread out everything in the view of my brother. 29 If it is spread out in the view of my brother, 30 on/from the earth may . . . And may my brother take 31 all the nobles and all the envoys 32 and all other lands and the war charioteers 33 whom my brother desires, and may my brother go. 34 And may he spread out the dowry and may it be pleasing.

§22

35 And there is . . . my father's daughter, my sister. 36 And the tablet of her dowry is available. 37 And there is . . . my grandfather's daughter, my father's sister. 38 And the tablet of her dowry . . . 39 again is available. May my brother have their tablets given to him 40 and may he hear (the words of) both their (tablets). And the tablet(!) 41 of the dowry from me, which I gave, may he have given to him, 42 and may my brother hear that the dowry is very extensive, 43 that it is splendid, that it is befitting my brother.

§23

44 If . . . the tablets of the dowries of my marriage alliance (through sister and father's sister) are not available, 45—my brother 46 . . . in view of that not(!?), and there is nobody who does not know it. 47 And my brother knows in their regard 48 that they exist(ed), which the kings (also) know.

§24

49 I just (lit., one thing) want to say something to my brother, and may my brother heed it. 50 I have . . . my brother much more than my forefathers. . . . 51 in great love, and so I have . . . And I wish to say: 52–53 The things that Artatama, my grandfather, did for your father are . . . 54 And with just a single dispatch of mine I have done ten times as much. 55–57 Similarly, the things that my father did for you, (well,) with just a single dispatch of mine I have done ten times as much. The gifts that 58–59 my grandfather (and) father dispatched to your father (and) to you, thus they are . . . , 60 and they . . . , in comparison with mine they are not equivalent. 61 And now my brother is going to see (the things) that I 62–63 have dispatched to my brother. Thus I will dispatch to my brother (gifts). So shall it be (lit., so am I). 64 Thus will I deal loyally with my brother, thus 65 will I be most loving. So shall it be (lit., so am I).

§25

66–67 And for the horses my brother did not reward me with gold the way my forefathers (were rewarded). The golden . . . that your father to my grandfather 68 earlier dispatched—what you to my father 69 earlier dispatched was much more than that of your father. 70 And my brother has not given to me the equivalent 71 of what he dispatched to my father. And may my brother 72 make me rich in respect to the kings, my vassals(?) 73 (and) the other lands. With much gold 74 may my brother have me provided. And I . . . And may my brother 75 also . . . carry out my business. And my heart 76 may he not distress. Of my sister, the wife of my brother, 77–78 may m[brother] erect a mo[lt]en gold image . . . 79–85 (badly damaged) And may he not distress my heart! And may my brother give, 86 in the manner desired, accor[ding to] my heart, pleasing (things). 87 And my brother has . . . me much, much more than my forefathers. 88 And may my brother make me rich in respect to my land. 89 And may my brother not distress my heart! For that . . . 90–92 I have requested from my brother a molten gold image of my daughter. I know that my brother loves me exceedingly, from the heart, 93 but I also know that for my brother, in his land, gold . . . 94 much. And in respect to my brother . . . And may my brother 95 not . . . ; may he not distress my heart! And in the measure in which it appears, 96 . . . may my brother give pleasing (things). And next, 97 may my brother give an ivory image. As 98–99 I shall speak to my goddess, Šauška of Niniveh, that a gold image for me might 100 . . . So shall it be (lit., so it is), Before earth 101 (and) before the heavens are the words spoken. As 102 they should be spoken, so shall it be (lit., so they are): “This 103 molten gold image is Tadu-Heba, the daughter of Tušratta, 104 the lord of Mittani, whom he gave as wife of Immureya, 105 the lord of Egypt. 106 And Immureya made a molten gold image, 107 and full of love dispatched it to Tušratta.”

§26

108 And because of all this we both are of one mind and love one another . . . 109 exceedingly. And in our lands 110 peace prevails. If only an enemy of my brother 111 did not exist! But should in the future an enemy 112 invade my brother's land, (then) my brother writes 113 to me, and the Hurrian land, armor, arms, 114 . . . and everything concerning the enemy of my brother 115 will be at his disposition. But should, on the other hand, there be for me an ene[my] 116—if only he did not exist!—I will write to my brother, 117–118 and my brother will dispatch to the land of Egypt, armor, arms, . . . and everything concerning my(!) enemy. 119–124 (unintelligible)

§27

IV 1 And I want to say something (lit., one thing) more to my brother: 2 In my brother's presence there are not many evil words spoken. 3 Those do not come into the presence of the Great . . . lord/king. 4 An evil word . . . to my brother. 5 And for the satisfaction of my person he has spoken to me, 6–7 and with satisfaction have I again heard him. That my brother has made the . . . , my brother has . . . to the great . . . 8 And for (or: among) the people of Awar he has made provision, and he has . . . 9 I heard this and I rejoiced. If, however, 10 my brother had not done them this way, then I would be very distressed. 11 And now again a . . . has reported 12 and Parattu . . . informs me(?). My brother is brotherly (minded). 13 That word comes, that . . . has thus 14 been actually expressed. This word is in . . . way spoken, and may my brother 15 . . . it before his land regarding the great . . . 16–18 . . . they could . . . And evil words are not spoken to my brother. And an evil word that anyone may say about me (or) about my land, 19—may my brother 20 not hear those words if Mane and Keliya 21 do not say them. But the (words) that Mane and Keliya say 22 about me (or) about my land, 23 they are true and right, and may my brother hear them. 24–25 That too that anyone might express to me about my brother (or) about his land, 26–27 those (words) I will not hear if Keliya and Mane do not say them. But what Keliya and Mane will say 28–29 about my brother (or) about his land, they (the words) are true and right, and I will hear them.

§28

30 And now, all the things 31 that my brother has named (and) wants, these 32–33 have I done tenfold. And with not a single word have I distressed my brother's heart. My brother's wife 34 I have given, who is pleasing to my brother's heart. 35–39 I have sent off Mane, my brother's envoy, most magnificently. Now, too, (I have sent off) Keliya and Ar-Teššup and Asali, my envoys—Keliya is a magnate, and Asali is ... as my clay-tablet scribe—to my brother, and my brother will see them.

§29

40 And may my brother not detain my envoys, may he not ... (them).
41 And may my brother not ... me. And my envoys 42 may my brother let go as fast as possible. And I would ... for a word. 43 And I would like to hear (about the) well-being (and the) favorable situation of my brother, 44 and I will rejoice very much over the well-being of my brother.

§30

45 My brother may say: "You yourself have also detained my envoys."
46 No, I have not detained them. And you ... me 47 to the dowry for the wife of my brother, and my brother will see 48 what I have given as the dowry for the wife of my brother. 49 It is ... It is ... And it (the dowry) is coming. 50 In the view of my brother may it be satisfactory.

§31

51 May my brother let my envoys go as soon as possible 52 so they can leave. And may my brother send Mane along, 53 so he can leave together with my envoy! Any other envoy 54 may my brother not send. May he send only Mane. If 55 my brother does not send Mane and sends someone else, 56 I do not want him, and my brother should know it. 57 No! May my brother send Mane!

§32

58 And this wife of my brother whom I have given, this (woman) is pure (a virgin?). 59 And may my brother know it. If she ... 60 ..., she will speak. And she is pure. 61 And ... are available, and as my ... she my ... 62 both of them, and my mother has ... both of them. 63 ... And I have ... them ... And ... threefold 64 ... And may my gods know, 65 and may the gods of my brother know! If 66–68 (unintelligible)

§§33–34

107 to my [brother] it is ... And that is the thing 108 that has [been demanded]. And may my brother know it. As 109 ... speaks in some other way, 110 may [my br]other not hear the (things) that (in reality) are not [said].

§35

111 In my heart I wish to be on the best of terms with my brother 112 and to love one another. And may my brother keep faith 113 perfectly. And we wish to be friendly (to each other), and in our hearts we wish to love one another 114–15 (destroyed or unintelligible) As by Šeri 116 (and) your god our life (and) our fate are determined, 117 may the gods guide both of us together, 118 Teššup and Amanu, our lords, our fathers. 119 And may we be protected. So shall it be (lit., so we are). And may we ..., 120 and may we ... Thus ... us. And between us 121 we wish to love one another in brotherly fashion and close attachment. As 122 man loves Šimige on seeing him, so do we want, between us, 123 to love one another. And in our relationship one will wish for 124 the good fate(!?) of the other. And all the lands that 125 exist on the earth, that Šimige shines upon, 126 ... all for us ... And so ... they 127 ... Tušratta is the Hurrian king, 128 ... Immureya is the Egyptian king, and if they ... 129 ... between them ... they 130 love ... one another exceedingly.

NOTE

[The translation and note for EA 24 are by Gernot Wilhelm.—WLM]

1. The "Mittani letter" is the only document in the Amarna archives written in the Hurrian language, and since this language is quite inadequately understood, the translation must be provisional and tentative. The content is often obscure even where the text is not damaged. The Staatliche Museen zu Berlin very generously made photos available, and these were consulted in numerous instances. The interpretation of the text is associated especially with the names of Messerschmidt, Friedrich, Goetze, Speiser, and Bush; the relevant literature may be found in the extensive bibliography in the appendix to the latest comprehensive grammar of Hurrian, F. W. Bush, "A Grammar of the Hurrian Language" (Ph.D. diss., Brandeis University, 1964). For the grammar also to be noted are I. M. Diakonoff, Hurrisch und Urartäisch (Munich, 1971), and H. J. Thiel, Phonematik und grammatische Struktur des Hurrischen, in V. Haas, H.-J. Thiel et al., Das Hurritologische Archiv ... des Altorientalischen Seminars der Freien Universität Berlin (Berlin, [1975]), pp. 98–239. E. Laroche has published a lexicon, Glossaire de la langue hurrite, RHA 34 (1976) and 35 (1977), reprinted as a monograph in the series Études et Commentaires, 93 (1980). For a new interpretation of several passages, see G. Wilhelm, ZA 73 (1983) pp. 96–113; idem, SMEA 24 (1984) pp. 215–22; idem, Or n.s. 54 (1985) pp. 487–96; and C. Girbal, ZA 78 (1988) pp. 122–36. The Hurrian-Hittite bilinguals discovered at Boghazköy (see H. Otten, Archäologischer Anzeiger [1984] pp. 372–75) have been used for this preliminary translation only to the extent that parts of them have been discussed in various articles of H. Otten and E. Neu prior to July 1990.

NOTES

1. Lines 1–5 are broken; 6–15 have only ends of lines, probably mostly concerning earrings.

2. ša-Za-tu<sub>4</sub>: probably the same as ša-an-Za-[t]i in line iii 57 (Adler, p. 327), and ša-(Za)-a-tu<sub>4</sub>, iii 60. With the second, Landsberger in Gordon tentatively compared šamšāti, "disks."

3. One expects here, as in i 27–32, identification of the material. Was tamlû also the name of a material? See below, ii 21–23.

4. See EA 13:14 and note.

5. Knudtzon read <sup>na</sup>mar-ḫa-lim, the last sign becoming li for Adler. Against marḫallu, however, are the absence of doubling and the apparent genitive; contrast mar-ḫal-lu (EA 22 ii 67, twice) and <sup>na</sup>mar-ḫal-lu (below, ii 49), which is also the regular writing elsewhere. For stones and other objects from the country Marḫaši, see CAD, M/1, p. 281, and note mar-ḫa-šu at Ugarit rather than the usual marḫušu.

6. ka-ma-ru (also i 62) is found at Mari (first pointed out to me by S. J. Lieberman) as a kind of ornamentation on a necklace(?), a chair, and a vase; see the discussion of Durand, ARMT 21, pp. 241–42, and Limet, ARMT 25, p. 279 on 230, and p. 283 on 445.

7. See Civil, Ebla, 1975–1985 (see EA 22, n. 5), p. 149.

8. According to Landsberger in Gordon, ša qāti, "for the hand," means "loose, unattached."

9. See note 3 above.

10. [i]š-ḫu-un-na-tu<sub>4</sub> (Gordon); CAD, S, p. 242, retains Knudtzon's z[i-ḫ]u-[u]n-na-tum. Cf. KUB 22, 70:20, "a bunch of grapes made of precious stones" (CAD, I/J, p. 190).

11. ša šu-ur-k[u<sub>8</sub>-si] (Landsberger in Gordon). From iii 59, 61, however, one would expect a designation of personnel, not of function.

12. The assumption of an uncontracted form, ku<sub>8</sub>-dup-ḫi-a-na (AHw, p. 499, followed by Salonen, Die Fussbekleidung der Alten Mesopotamien [Helsinki, 1969], p. 61, and Adler), is difficult (an Assyrianism?), and there is no other evidence that kuduppānu derives from contraction. I follow CAD, K, p. 494 (reading gumbu or guduppu; relation to kuduppānu unclear).

13. p[u]-ti-in-na-šu-nu (Gordon); cf. EA 22 ii 24, 30.

14. pi-iš-ša-tu (AHw, p. 869).
15. Since in ii 43-44, 47-51, the handle has some sort of a figure, I assume the same feature here.
16. [GAR-nu]: cf. ii 61; similarly in ii 47, [GAR-in].
17. š[i-nu]-un-š[u<sub>4</sub>] (Gordon). On the abašmû-stone, see MSL 10, p. 9:175f. and commentary p. 21.
18. u(h)-bu-[zu] (Adler).
19. The alkali (ubūlu; Sumerian naga) was used for bathing, and hence its mention here with a dipper; cf. iv 62.
20. NA<sub>4</sub> bu-u[š-lu] (CAD, M/2, p. 291a).
21. Cf. the heart-shaped cup at Mari (ARM 9, 268:5) and the Neo-Babylonian "hearts," which are always associated with šulāpu, "knife-blade(s)" (?).
22. Note the writing of angurinnu.
23. See EA 13, note 22.
24. Following VS 12; VAB 2/1, "2 sets" (not collated).
25. "Horn-rhyton" (SI, qarnu) as distinguished from the simple rhyton (bibru, EA 41:39f.).
26. Taking i-ša-as-[su . . .] as an Assyrianism.
27. Probably some kind of a clasp (Reiner, AfO, Beiheft 11, p. 58, on line 57; ARMT 7, p. 320).
28. EME(for ÉME).DA = tārītu; cf. the tārītu, a sort of nurse or governess who accompanies a young woman (nadītu) entering the "cloister" (ARM 10, 43, 92), and the nurse (ummu, lit. "mother") who raised Queen Beltum and accompanied her from Qatna to Mari, where she remained (AÉM 1/2, no. 298:29ff.). The two women are referred to again in iii 62, and since the numbers mentioned elsewhere are large, round numbers (100 in iii 65; 30 in iii 66; 270 in iv 64), these two women are certainly not included in the 270 women in iv 64. They were probably members of a noble family, companions to the princess far from her native land. Cf. the request in AÉM 1/2, no. 298:13ff. for 4 or 5 duennas (pur-šumātum, lit. "old women") familiar with the customs of the palace, to keep Queen Beltum in line.
29. Since reference here is to function rather than to age, šubārī seems the more likely reading (AHw, p. 1089, has šubrūti; Adler, šebberūti). Like the ladies-in-waiting of the previous paragraphs, these men, who are almost certainly not included in the 30 in iv 64, were probably of high social standing (see EA 17, note 7).
30. If in iv 65 mulūgī qualifies udē, and hence all the objects listed in EA 25 are to be understood as m., as the text is generally taken, then the occasional use of m. in the list itself (iii 65; almost certainly iii 66, 30 MUNUS.[MEŠ mu-lu-ki]; iv 64) seems pointless—that is, if it is to be understood, not of the persons immediately preceding, but of the objects named (so AHw, CAD, Adler). The position, too, of m. is definitely, if not decisively, against the latter interpretation. As a designation of persons, m. is attested earlier (Nuzi) and later (Neo-Babylonian).
31. In view of the correspondence between the numbers of objects and those of persons in iii 64 (100) and iii 66 (30), 3]0 seems fairly certain. [LÚ].MEŠ, rather than <sup>14</sup>TUR].MEŠ (Knudtzon, Adler), in view of 30 LÚ.MEŠ in iv 64; cf. MUNUS.MEŠ in iii 64, 66, and iv 64.

32. Cf. the following line, [I GIŠ.DUB-p]u, and EA 22 iii 5. If gištuḫpu is correct, then the kazīru are hardly curls on figurines (CAD, K, p. 310), but more likely the entire object represented, perhaps the kazīru-plant itself.

33. [ . . . ALAM.MEŠ ša ap-sà-a-((ab))sà-ti.MEŠ (Landsberger, Die Fauna des Alten Mesopotamien . . . [Leipzig, 1934], p. 88). R. M. Boehmer, ZA 66 (1975) pp. 18f., proposes "water-buffalo."

34. D<sup>r</sup>AR<sup>r</sup>A.MAŠ.MEŠ (ayalī): also Gordon. I could see less than Knudtzon (VAB 2/1, p. 1001, no. 35) but more than VS 12. Representations of deer (stags) were common.

35. Cf. EA 13, rev. 1-4 and note 14.

36. [ . . . gu<sub>3</sub>-ha]-aš-šī (iv 32); [ . . . ku-ur]-si-i-in-ni, "ankles" (iv 33; Gordon); . . . [h]a-[z]u-[r]a (iv 40, if correct, cf. EA 22 ii 41); 2 TÚG.MEŠ [ša ka-p]i-iz-zu-ub-bu (iv 40; Landsberger in Gordon, and cf. iii 55); 10 pé-ša-[wa-šī] II x [p]é-ša-wa-šī ur-ra-še-na (iv 44; 1100 would not be written II ME; on the last word, AHw, p. 1433, "objects of desire?").

37. Cf. EA 22 iv 14.

38. M. Dietrich and O. Loretz, BiOr 23 (1966) p. 133, explains šušinnu as Egyptian šus, "byssos," plus Hurrian adjectival ending -alenni(lu).

39. Cf. EA 22 iv 11. At the beginning of the line, 41 TÚG.MEŠ [BAR.DUL]? (Cf. EA 22 ii 40.)

40. For iv 49-50, cf. EA 22 iv 12-15.

41. <sup>sim</sup>GIG (kanaktu, kanatku [EA 22 iii 32]; also Gordon: the sign in question is definitely not one of the BULUG-signs. For iv 51-55, cf. EA 22 iii 29-36.

42. NÍĜ.ŠU.L[UĪ.ĪA] (namsū): the apparent middle horizontal may be only a scratch. Cf. the sequence in EA 22 iv 22—namsū and ša NE—and the next entry here.

43. [I ša me-e šu-]i: cf. ii 54-55.

44. I-en, with VS 12.

45. [x <sup>εi</sup>]šDÍLIM.MEŠ (iḫurāti): also Gordon. Despite Knudtzon's autograph (VAB 2/1, p. 1001, no. 43), apparently confirmed by the copy of VS 12, there are traces of only one horizontal followed by only one vertical and possibly a small scratch. My reading yields the same sequence in lines iv 63-64 as in EA 22 iv 34-35. For the assumption of the same number of spoons as troughs, see EA 22 iv 34-35 and note 52.

46. mu-lu-gu<sub>3</sub>. [MEŠ] (cf. iv 65); on the interpretation, see iii 64 and note 30. The numbers seem to be totals. For the 30 men, cf. iii 66. Besides the 100 (130?) women referred to in iii 64ff., either the other 170 (140?) were also mentioned in the breaks, or, as seems more likely, no objects being assigned to them, they were simply added in here.

47. [š]-de<sub>4</sub>-e: following Kühne, p. 35, n. 164; cf. EA 7:81. The usual interpretation of this entry is that mulūgī qualifies udē, which are therefore all designated as m.-gifts. However, within the list itself only people seem to be called m. (see iii 64), and in iv 64 these people seem to form a special category, i.e., personnel as opposed to the objects with which the list had been concerned up to this point. A distinction, therefore, between udē and mulūgī as two separate categories of gifts comprising the dowry seems more probable. It is not clear, as Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 118, maintains, that m., like later Aramaic m<sup>e</sup>lūg in pre- and early-Talmudic times (B. Levine, JAOS 88 [1968] pp. 271ff.), was already at this period distinguished as that part of the dowry over which the wife retained some control.

To the Queen Mother: some missing gold statues

TEXT: BM 29794 (+) A 9356 (Oriental Institute).

COPIES: BB 11 (+) Luckenbill, AJSL 33 (1916) pp. 7f. Earlier copies of A 9356: Abel, ZA 7 (1892) p. 118; Scheil, Mémoires, p. 310.

PHOTOGRAPHS: BB, pl. 9 (BM 29794); E. Chiera, They Wrote on Clay (Chicago, 1938), p. 203 (A 9356).

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Adler, pp. 206–11.

[Say] t[o Teye], the mistress of Egy[pt]: T[hus Tuš]ratta, the king of [Mittani. For me] all goes well. For you may all go well. For your household, for] your son, may all go well. For Tadu-Ḥeba, [my daughter], your daughter-in-law, may all go well. For your countries, fo[r your troops], and for whatever else belongs to you, may all go very, very [well].

7–18 You are the one that knows that I [myself] always showed love [to] Mimmureya, your husband, and that Mimmureya, [your] husba[nd], on the other hand, always showed love to me. A[nd the things] that I wou[ld] write and] say [t]o Mimmureya, your husband, and the things that Mimmureya, your husband, [on the ot]her hand, [would alwa]ys write and say to me, you, [Keli]ya, and Mane know. But you are the on[e, on the other ha]nd, who knows much better than all others the things [that] we said [to one an]other. No one [el]se knows them (as well).

19–29 [And n]ow, you yourself [sai]d to Keliya, “Say to your lord: ‘Mi[m]mureya,<sup>1</sup> my husband, always showed love to yo[ur] father, and maintained (it) for you;<sup>2</sup> he did not forge[t]<sup>3</sup> his love for your father, and he did not cut off<sup>4</sup> the [em]bassies that he had been accustomed to sending, one after the other. And now you are the one that must not forget your [l]ove<sup>5</sup> for Mimmu[reya], your brother. Increase (it) f[or] Naphurre[y]a and maintain (it) for hi[m]. You must keep on send[ing] embassies of joy,<sup>6</sup> one after the other. Do not cut [them] off.’”<sup>7</sup>

30–48 I will [not] fo[r]get<sup>8</sup> the love for Mimmureya, your husband. More than ever be[fo]re,<sup>9</sup> at this very moment, I show 10 times—much, much—more love to Naphurreya, your son. [You are the one who knows] the words of Mimmureya, [your] husb[and, but] you did not s[en]d<sup>10</sup> all of my greeting-gift<sup>11</sup> that [your husband ordered] to [be sent]. I had asked<sup>12</sup> [your husband] for [statues] of sol[id] cast [gold], saying, “[May my brother send me] a[s my greeting-gift,<sup>13</sup> statues of solid cast gold and . . . of gold] and genuine lapis lazuli.” But now Nap[hurreya, your son], has plated [statues] of wood. With gold being the dirt [in your son’s country, w]hy have they been a source of such dist[ress] to your son that he has not given them to me?<sup>14</sup> Furthermore, I asked . . . [. . . t]o give th[is].<sup>15</sup> Is this love? I had sa[id], “Naphurrē[ya, my brother], is going to treat me 10 times better than his father did.” But now he has not [given me] even what his father was accustomed to give.

49–57 Wh[y] have you [no]t exposed before Naph[urreya] the words t[hat you your]self, and with your own mouth, said to [me]? If [you] do not expose them before him, and y[ou keep silent],<sup>16</sup> can anyone [el]se know? Let [Nap]hurreya give me statues of sol[id] gold! He must cause me no [dis]tress whatsoever, nor [. . .]. Let him treat m[e] 10 times better [th]an his father did, [wi]th love and evidence of es[teem].

58–63 May your own messengers g[o] regularly with the messen[gers o]f Naphurreya, with 5 [. . . t]o Yuni, my wife, and may the messen[gers o]f Yuni, my wife, [g]o regula[rly] to [you].

64–66 I [her]ewith [send] as your greeting-gift [x] scent containers<sup>17</sup> [filled] with “sweet oil,” (and) 1 set of stones [set in gold].

NOTES

1. A 9356 begins here (line 21) and would join BM 29794 down through line 53.

2. it-ta-ša-ar-k[a]: so Knudtzon, and correctly; Adler has [-ku]. As the immediately preceding akkāša makes clear, the verbal suffix is dative case, not accusative, and therefore the verb in this instance does not mean “to protect”; similarly, uṣurš[u] in line 27, and here note that rubbi, “increase,” also has no direct object expressed. Artzi, in Durand, La femme dans le Proche-Orient antique (see Introduction, n. 62), p. 24, is of a different opinion.

3. im-š[ē]: so Knudtzon, and correctly; [-šī] in Adler.

4. ip-r[u-us]: so Knudtzon, and correctly; Adler has [-ru-us].

5. [r]a-'a-mu-ut-ka: the small oblique wedge suggesting [r]u or [r]i may be only a scratch (also Gordon).

6. Artzi, in Durand, La femme dans le Proche-Orient antique, p. 26, sees in the (literally) “journey of joy” reference to the royal procession conducting a bride to Egypt. In context, however, where there is no reference to marriage, this seems most unlikely. The joy that qualifies the journey refers to the pleasure at hearing the brother's greeting and at seeing the gifts that accompany it; cf. EA 27:7–8.

7. ta-ḫa-ar-ra-as-[si-(me)]. Kühne, p. 39, n. 190, reads -(ma-a?)-(me) and rejects Knudtson's taparras-[si] on the grounds that the form should be 2d masculine singular—which it is: taparras + suffix referring to ḫarrāna (line 28, feminine). There is room for at least one more sign; simple taparras (Adler) is certainly wrong.

8. ra-'a-mu-ut-t[a la] 32 a-'ma-aš-šī': t[a, “not likely” (Gordon). If there is not enough room for [la], then we must assume a rhetorical question. In line 31, a-r[a-a]m-me (Knudtson, retained by Adler) is certainly wrong; the correct reading was given by Winckler, KB 5, p. 66.

9. Read ḫa-n[a]-nu or ḫa-n[a]-'a'-nu (Gordon).

10. If the subject is second feminine singular, tu-š[e-(e)-bi-li]; if plural, tu-š[e-(e)-bi-la]; cf. Kühne, p. 39, n. 190.

11. šulmānī, “my gift” (Kühne, ibid.), but consisting of more than one piece, as miḫāriš shows; cf. EA 27:41f.

12. e-te-ti (for ri)-iš.

13. a-[na šulmānīya (line 39; line 38 is free restoration).

14. i-na š[ā-šu] 43 ša DUMU-ka im-tar-šū-ma. On the end of line 42, see Kühne, p. 39, n. 190; ina libbi marāšu, see EA 19:64f.; 27:50f.; 29:139.

15. an-ni-t[a] (Adler); not an-ni-'i' (Gordon). 44 . . . x [. . .] y: x, not š[a (so Knudtson); y, probably not n]a (Gordon).

16. ù t[a-sa-ku-ti]: only a guess, but not m[a (Gordon).

17. The number is uncertain, but certainly more than 1: the head of vertical just visible is to the right both of the broken-away [a] above in line 64, and of the “1” just below in line 66 (Gordon: 3 or 5?).

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Adler, pp. 212–25;

Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 21 (lines 13–31).

[Say to Naphurreya, the king of Egy]pt,<sup>1</sup> my brother, my son-in-law, whom [I love and who loves me: Thus T]ušratta, Great King, the king of Mi[ttani, your father-in-law, who loves you, your brother]. For me all goes well. For you m[ay all go well. For Teye, your mother, for] your [house]hold, may all go [well. Fo]r Tadu-Ḫeba, [m]y daug[h]ter, your wife, for the rest of your wives], for [your] sons, [for] your [mag]nates, for your chariots, [for] your [hor]ses, f[or your troops, for your country, and] for [whatever else belongs to you], may all go [ve]ry, very well.

7–8 [Ma]ne, my brother's messenger, [came and]<sup>2</sup> I heard the [gr]eeting of [my brother] and I [r]ejoiced greatly. I saw the goods that my brother [sen]t and I re[jo]iced greatly.

9–12 My brother said this: “Ju[st] as you always showed love to my father, Mimmureya, so now show love [to me.” Af]ter my brother is desirous of my love, shall I not be desirous of my brother's lo[ve]?<sup>3</sup> At this very moment I show you 10 times more l[ov]e than I did to your father!

13–18 And your father, Mimmureya, s[aid] this on his tablet. When Mane brought the bride-price, thus spo[k]e my brother, Mimmureya: “These goods<sup>4</sup> that I have now sent are nothing, and my brother is not to complain. I have sent nothing. These goods that I have now sent to you, I have sent to you with this understanding<sup>5</sup> that, when my brother hands over my wife whom I have asked for, and they bring her here and I see her, then I will send you 10 times more than this.”

19–27 I also asked your father, Mimmureya, for statues of solid cast gold, one of myself and a second statue, a statue of Tadu-Ḫeba, my daughter,<sup>6</sup> and your father said, “Don't talk<sup>7</sup> of giving statues just of solid cast gold. I will give you ones made also of lapis lazuli. I will give you, too, along with the statues, much additional gold and (other) goods beyond measure.” Every one of my messengers that were staying in Egypt saw the gold for the statues with their own eyes. Your father himself recast the statues [i]n the presence of my messengers, and he made them entirely of pure gold.<sup>8</sup> [M]y messengers saw with their own eyes that they were recast, and they saw with their own eyes that they were entirely of pure gold.

28–31 He showed much additional gold, which was beyond measure and which he was sen[d]ing to me. He said to my messengers, “See with your own eyes, here the statues, there much gold and goods beyond measure, which I am sending to my brother.” And my messengers did see with their own eyes!

32–34 But my brother has not sent the solid (gold) statues that your father was going to send. You have sent plated ones of wood. Nor have you sent me the goods that your father was going to send me, but you have reduced (them) greatly.<sup>9</sup>

35–36 Yet there is nothing I know of in which I have failed my brother. Any day that I hear the greetings of my brother, that day I make a festive occasion.

37-40 When [Ḥa]amašši, my brother's messenger, came to me, reported my brother's words, and I heard them, I spoke as follows: "Just as I always showed love to Mimmureya, your father, I will now show 10 times—much—more love to Naphurreya." Thus did I speak to Ḥaamašši, your messenger.<sup>10</sup>

41-42 But now my brother has not sent me the statues of solid gold, nor has my brother sent all the additional goods that your father of[rde]red sent.

43-44 May my brother now give me the statues of solid gold that I a[sk]ed your father for, and may he not hold them back.

45-51 ... And [with gold being the dirt] in [my] brother's country, [why] have [the statues] been a source of such distr[ess] to my brother<sup>11</sup> that he has not [given them to me ...] ...

55-58 [I sent Ḥaamašši] posth[aste t]o [Mimmureya, my brother, and within 3 months] he sent back [Ḥaamašši] po[s]thas[te]. [Your father] sent me [much gold]; there were four sacks [full of gold that he sent me]. May my brother ask [Ḥa]amašši, his messenger.<sup>12</sup>

59-62, 63-68 ...<sup>13</sup>

69-73 [The words] that [I used to speak] t[o your father], and that [your fa]ther [used to speak to m]e, no one [knows. Teye, your mother], K[el]i[y]a, [and Mane know th]em, [but] no one else knows [them. My brother's] mother [knows everythi]ng, how your father [would speak] with me [and did not forget his lo]ve [for my father], and how [I] would speak with your father and [maintained] the lo[ve that he had from my father].<sup>14</sup>

74-78 [And n]ow my brother h[as sai]d: "Ju[st] as you [always showed love] to my fa[th]er, so s[how love t]o me." My brother will see th[at] I sh[all show great love to my brother. I have] said, "My brother m[ust a]s[k]<sup>15</sup> his mother [...]. ... He wi[ll s]ee that [...].

79-82 [M]a[ne, m]y brother's [messenger, ...] ... [I heard] my [bro]ther's words and I rejoy[ced] gre[atly].

83-88 ...<sup>16</sup>

89-92 I herewith [send post]has[te] Piriss[i and Tulubri, with a small escort, and have told them to hurry]. May [m]y brother not [detain them, (but) release them so] they can report back to me, [I may be]ar [my brother's greeting], and re[joice].<sup>17</sup>

93-98 [May] my brother's [messengers] come to me [wi]th Pi-rissi, [according] to the custom [of kings],<sup>18</sup> posthaste [...]. ... [... the messengers of each] one will turn ba[ck]. Accordingly, I will let [Mane], my [brothe]r's [messenger], go, and m[y] mes[seng]ers [my brother shall let go]. Gladly shall I send Mane to ... [...] of my brother.

99-103 [W]h[en] my brother's [mes]sengers [arrive] a[long wi]th [Pirissi ... I shall invite them] t[o celebrate] a great feast, the kimru-feast. [So] may they arrive [...], and if they do so [arri]v[e] f[or ...], then h]ow will I treat them! ... the feast.<sup>19</sup>

104-109 May my bro[ther] send me much gold. [At] the kim[ru]-feast, ... [...] with] many goods [may my] brother [honor me. I]n my brother's [countr]y g[ol]d is as plen[tiful a]s dirt. [May] my brother [cause me no dis]tress. May he send me [m]uch [gold in or]der that my brother, [with the gold and m]any [good]s, may honor me. [May] my [bro]ther [...] more than his father did. May they bring back to me [muc]h [gold].

110-111 [Herewith, as your greeting-gift: 1] shirt, Hurrian-style; 1 [c]ity-shirt; 1 r[ob]e; 1 [...] -stone; [...] pair(s?) fo[r the h]and; "eye-stones" of genuine hulalu-stone, 5 per string, mount[ed] on gold.

112 [1 scent container] fil[led] with "sweet [o]il"; 1 set of stones mount[ed] on gold—for Teye, your mother.

113 I send [1 scent container fil]led [with "sweet oil"]; 1 s[et] of stones [mounted] on gold—[for] Tadu-Ḥeba, [my daughter, y]our wife.<sup>20</sup>

NOTES

1. Following Knudtzon, because of considerations of space, I do not restore LUGAL GAL, "Great King," and in the omission see no implications of hostility (see EA 1, n. 2); Adler argues otherwise.

2. [it-tal-ka ù]: following Kühne, p. 39, n. 191.

3. Or: "[Af]ter my brother is desirous of friendship with me, shall I not be desirous of friend[ship] with my brother?"

4. an-nu-ù ù-nu-t' a' (also line 6): in view of mala annî, "as much as this" (line 18), annû seems to be the demonstrative pronoun rather than an interjection or adverb, as Kühne, ibid., has suggested.

5. On the division of clauses, see Ungnad, OLZ 1916, col. 183, followed by Kühne, p. 39, n. 191, and Adler. For a different opinion see Knudtzon, followed by Zaccagnini, Lo scambio dei doni durante i secoli XV-XIII (EA 19, n. 12), p. 24, n. 56, and Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 21. Against the latter, šūbulu does not mean "to send back."

6. Both statues were for Tušratta's possession (cf. the plated ones in lines 32ff.), and therefore ana iyāšî hardly means "for me." If the second statue were for Tadu-Ḥeba, the scribe would hardly have written ana šalam Taduḥeba. Cf. EA 14 ii 11-15; EA 24, §25 (end).

7. On muššer, lit. "let go," see Kühne, p. 38, n. 181.

8. See AHw, p. 277a, and CAD, Z, pp. 24b, 31b. Pintore, Matrimonio, p.

150, n. 66, took zukkû to mean “to (re)polish (after casting),” but this meaning is otherwise unattested, and it does not fit the context well.

9. tultemîš: this reading is certain (add to CAD, M/1, p. 350), and cf. šulmānāti . . . mīšā, “the greeting-gifts . . . were meager” (RS 34.136:8, 11; Ugar. 7, pl. XVIII).

10. For the correction of the copy in VS 11, see Schroeder, OLZ 1917, col. 105.

11. [. . . i-na ŠA-šu ſ]a ŠEŠ-[ia ALAM.MEŠ] im-tar-ša-a-ma, and see EA 26:42f. For the feminine gender of šalmu, note šanītu šalmu in line 19, probably šapikta uppuqta in line 21.

12. On lines 55–58, see Kühne, p. 31, n. 145 (end).

13. Mention of Keliya (line 59) and Tulubri (line 60); reference to a shipment of gold (line 63).

14. Lines 69–73, cf. EA 26:7–18, 22–27.

15. [u-(ú) i-š]a-’a-[al-(š*i*) . . .]: [i-iš-t]a-’-[*al-š*i] (Adler) is certainly wrong.

16. Mention of Mane (line 83), probably about letting him go (cf. lines 93–98); the detention of his own messengers in Egypt (line 84); perhaps a festival (line 87, cf. lines 99–109); and Teššup and Amon (line 87).

17. On lines 89–92, see Adler, but in line 92 [. . . lu-uš]-me-e-ma [’lu]-[uḥ-du] seems more probable.

18. Cf. paršu ša šarrānī, KBo 1, 14, rev. 6.

19. Lines 99–103 are free restorations. The festival is to be understood as celebrated in the Mittani capital, not in Egypt, and it has nothing to do with funeral rites for Amenophis III or with sd-festivals, as D. Redford, The Akhenaten Temple Project, 1 (Warminster, 1976), p. 86, n. 80, has proposed; see Kühne, pp. 43f., n. 205.

20. On the left edge, beginning at the bottom of the tablet, a hieratic docket: “[ye]ar 2, first month of winter, [day . . .], when one was in the southern city, in the castle of H<sup>c</sup>-m-’bt; copy of the Naharin letter that the messenger Pirissi and the messenger [Tulubri] brought.” See the Introduction, sect. 6 and note 135.

Messengers detained and a protest

TEXT: BM 37645.

COPY: Scheil, Mémoires, p. 302.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Adler, pp. 226–29.

Say to Naphurereya,<sup>1</sup> the king of Egyp[t], my brother, my son-in-law, who lo[ves me] and whom I love: Thus Tušratta, the king of Mittan[i], your father-in-law, who loves you, your brother. For me all goes well. For you may all go well. For your household, for Teye, your mother, the mistress of Egypt, for Tadu-Ḥeba, my daughter,<sup>2</sup> your wife, for the rest of your wives, for your sons, for your magnates, for your chariots, for your horses, for your troops, for your country, and for whatever else belongs to you, may all go very, very well.

12–19 Pirissi and Tulubri, [m]y messengers, I sent posthaste to my brother, and having told them<sup>3</sup> to hurry very, very much, I sent them<sup>4</sup> with a very small escort.<sup>5</sup> Earlier, I had said this to my brother: “I am going to detain Mane, [my brother’s] messenger, until [my] brother lets my messengers go and they come to m[e].”

20–28 And now my brother has absolutely<sup>6</sup> refused to let them go, and he has put them under very strict detention. What are messengers? Unless they are birds, are they going to fly and go away? Why does my brother suffer so<sup>7</sup> about the messengers? Why can’t one [sim]ply go<sup>8</sup> into the presence of the other and hea[r] [the ot]her’s greeting, [and] both of us rejoice very, very much every day?<sup>9</sup>

29–36 May my [brother] let my messengers go promptly so I [m]ay hear the greeting [of] my [broth]er . . .

37–41 I want to let [Mane] go<sup>10</sup> and I want to send [my] mess[en]gers to m[y] [brother] as in the past, [that] I may b[ear] my brother’s former [. . .] . . . He went to my brother, and may my brother do absolutely everything I want and not cause me dist[ress].<sup>11</sup>

42–49 Teye, your mother, knows all the words that I spoke with yo[ur] father. No one else knows them. You must ask Teye, your mother, about them so she can tell you. Just as your father always showed love to me, so now may my brother always show love to me. And may my brother listen to nothing from anyone else.

NOTES

1. Determinative omitted in copy; similarly, an omitted in mi-it-ta-a-an-n[i] (line 4).

2. Written I.MUNUS (Gordon).

3. aq-ta-bá-a-šu-nu-t[i] (Gordon).

4. altaparšun[ū-ti]?

5. mīšūtamma: since (m)*īš*u most often refers to numbers, with Adler I follow Knudtzon. Other renderings: “at least” (Tušratta sends messengers, whereas the Egyptian king remains completely silent; Kühne, p. 45, n. 210); “at once” (CAD, M/2, p. 116).

6. ana gamwātamma: following Kühne, p. 45, n. 210; Artzi, Actes du XXIX<sup>e</sup> Congrès international des Orientalistes, Section organisée par Daniel Arnaud (Paris, 1975), p. 3, “finally, after all.”

7. libbašu ikkalšu, lit. “his heart eats him.” The expression, which Adler misunderstood, is elsewhere used of abdominal pains, but here clearly is figurative; cf. CAD, A/1, p. 255a; AHu, p. 549a.

8. [e-še]-ru or [ne-šu]-ru lā innešer: following Kühne, p. 45, n. 210, who understands the expression to mean “to be successful,” i.e., why can’t one have success with (lit. "before") the other. The notion, however, of easy access to each other (through one's messengers), with its implication of the quick dismissal and return of the messengers, perhaps fits the context better.

9.  $u_4$ -mi-ša[m-ma] (Gordon).

10. [...] *l*u-meš-š[è]r-šu: Adler's reading, *a-ra-am-š*u, following Scheil's copy, is disproved by collation.

A long review of Mittanian-Egyptian relations

[Say to Naphureya, the king of Egypt, m[y] [brother], my son-in-law, whom I [lo]ve and who lo[ves me: Message of] Tušratta], Great [King], kin[g of Mittan]i, your brother, your father-in-law, who loves you. For me all goes we[ll. For you may all go well. For] Teye ma[y all go w]el[l. F]or Tadu-Ḥeba, [m]y daughter, may all go we[ll. For the r]est [of your wives] may all go well. For your sons, for your magnates, for your chariots, for [your] hors[es, for your troops, for] your [country], and for whatever else belongs to you, may all go very, very well.

6–10 [From the beginning] of my [king]ship on,<sup>2</sup> as long as Nimmureya, your father, went on writing to me, [he wrote over and over] about peace. There was nothing el[se]<sup>3</sup> whatsoever that he wrote about over and over to me. T[ey]e, the principal [and favorite] wife of Nimmureya, your father, knows all the words of Nimmureya, your father, tha[t] he would write [to] me over and (ov)er.<sup>4</sup> It is Teye, your mother, whom you must ask about all of them: [what] your father [would write over and over],<sup>5</sup> the words that he would speak with me over and over.

11–15 [My love for] my [brother]<sup>6</sup> is 10 times greater than what we always had with Nimmureya, your father. [But whatever] Nimmureya, your father, would constantly discuss with me, in absolutely not[hing] did he ever cause me distress. Whatever I might say, on that very day [he did]<sup>7</sup> it. I, too, in absolutely nothing did I ever cause him distress, and what[ever he might say] to me, on that very day I di[d] it.

16–27 When [...],<sup>8</sup> the father of Nimmureya, wrote to Artatama, my grandfather, he asked for the daughter of [my grandfather, the sister] of my father. He wrote 5, 6 times, but he did not give her. When he wrote my grandfather 7 times, then only under such pressure did he g[iv]e her. When Nimmureya, your father, [wro]te to Šut[arna], m[y] father, and asked for my father's daughter, my own sister, he wr[ote] 3, 4 times, but [he did not giv]e her. When he wrote 5, 6 times, only under such pressure did he g[iv]e [her].<sup>9</sup> W[hen] Nimmureya, [yo]ur [fa]ther, wrote to me and asked for my daughter, I did [not] say n[o].<sup>10</sup> The [very] first ti[me] I said [to] his messenger, "Of course I will give her." [When] your messenger came the sec[ond time],<sup>11</sup> o[il] was poured [on]<sup>12</sup> her head, and when I received her bride-price, I ga[ve] her.<sup>13</sup> And the br[ide-price] that Nimmur[e]ya, your [father, sen]t, was beyond measure, ri[v]alling in height heaven and earth. I did not [say], "I will [no]t give her." I sent posthaste Ḥaamašš[i], m[y] brother's [...] to Nimmureya, [and with]in 3 months, [w]ith extreme promptness, [he sen]t [him back]. He se[nt along] 4 sac[ks]<sup>15</sup> full [of] gol[d, not to me]ntion<sup>16</sup> the jewelry [...] . . . , which he se[nt] separately.

28–54 [Wh]en I gave my [daug]hter and she was brought<sup>17</sup> and Nimmureya, your father, saw her, [he] re[joiced]. [Was there anything]<sup>18</sup> he did [no]t rejoice about? He rejoiced v[er]y, very much! My brother spoke as follows: "[My brother g]ave [his daughter] in perfect fait[h]."<sup>19</sup> He made that day a festive occasion along, too, with his country. Because of my messenger (32–37) [...] Just as when one sees [his] pee[r], he shows him respect, so Nimmureya showed respect to [my messengers as p]leers and as [f]rie[nds].<sup>20</sup> He sent back all my messengers that were in residence in (to?) the quarters that [were established] for Tadu-Ḥeba, and there was not [a single one] among them who went in and [to whom he did not g]ive [something].<sup>21</sup> He gave Keliya's [in]got of gold weighing 1000 shekels, and Nimmureya gave [...] sacks full of [gold] to Tadu-Ḥeba.<sup>22</sup> Tadu-Ḥeba lai[d] them [all] out [before] my [messengers]. As fa[r as] my [messe]ngers [were concerned], Nimmureya showed them respect with love [and evidence of esteem].<sup>23</sup> (37–44) [Nimm]ureya sent Niyu, his messenger, [...], which belonged to me, and he br[ought them] post[haste].<sup>24</sup> Before me [he laid out] 7 sacks [full of] gold, [and 1 i]ngot<sup>25</sup> of gold [weigh]ing [1000 shekels] for Keliya. And thus<sup>26</sup> [Nimmureya, your father], made [...] . . . exceed, [out of l]ove. Before my messengers [...] . . . he had that brought to me posthaste [...] and he instructed [him], "Like [...] you shall eat."<sup>27</sup> Because he sent him posthaste, he did not have [the statues] brought to me, but every[thing] else, *whate*ver he did have brought, was limitless. And thus [Nimmu]reya, your father, did not permit that in any mat[ter, *even o*ne, distress be caused. (45–50) [And with regard to] all [the things] that I say, I call no one [el]se<sup>28</sup> as witness. It is Teye—she is your [mother]!<sup>29</sup>—that I call. Inquire carefully of Teye, your [mother], if in the things that I say there is [ev]en a single word of [un]truth; i[f there is a wo]rd that is not that of Nimmureya, your father; if [Ni]mmureya, your father, together with me, did not make [mutual love fl]ourish;<sup>30</sup> if Nimmureya, your father, [did n]ot say: “When I see to it that there is sufficient [Eg]yptian gold in Hanigalbat, I certainly will not send [...] . . .” (50–54) I asked for [2] statues of so(l)id chased gold from Nimmureya, your [father], and Nimmureya, [your] fat[her], said: “[W]hat are statues of just gold with nothing else [that] my [brot]her has asked for? Don’t talk of just go[ld] ones! I will make o[n]es with genu]ine lapis lazuli (too), and send them to you.”<sup>31</sup> [And] thus Nimmureya, your [fat]her, in no matter whatsoever, ever rejected what I said, [or] in any matter whatsoever caused me distress.

55–60 When [m]y [brother], Nimmureya, went to his fate it was reported. [When I heard] what was reported, [nothing] was allowed to be cooked in a pot.<sup>32</sup> On that day I myself wept, [and I] sat [. . .]. On that day I t[ook] neither food nor water. I grieved, [saying, “Let ev]en me [be dead],<sup>33</sup> or let 10,000 be dead in my country, and in my [brother]’s [country] 10,000 as well, [but] let [my brother, whom I lov]e and who loves me, be alive as long as heaven and ear[th.”] *T*hat we love [. . .] that [love] was in our hearts, [and] we indeed did make (it) last.

61–64 [But when they said, “Na]p[h]ureya, the oldest son of Nimmureya and Teye, his [principal] wife, is exercising the [king]ship [in his place], then I spoke as follows: “Nimmureya, [my brother], is not dead. [Naph]ureya, his oldest son, [now exercises the kingship] in his place. Not[hing whatso]ever is going to be cha[ng]ed<sup>34</sup> from the way it was before.”

65–68 [Now I went o]n reflecting, thinking, “Naphureya is my brother. That we love, [that] is in our hearts. It is going to become 10 times gr[ea]ter [th]an what there was with Nimmureya, his father, for Teye, his mother, the [prin]cipal and favorite wife of [Nimmureya], is alive, and she will expose before Naphureya, [the son of Nim]mureya, her husband, the fact that we always loved (each other) very, very much.”

69–79 [But at the time] when [my brother] first wrote [to me], when he let Keliya go and [my brother] sent Mane, my brother sent me statues

(made) of wood. W[hen I sa]w the gold [that Nimmure]ya himself [had promised,<sup>35</sup> that it was not gold and that it was not solid, that [. . .] . . . , then I w[as in] even greater [pai]n<sup>36</sup> than befo[re]. [. . .] Moreover, [the goods] that Nimmur[e]ya, my brother, gave me, my brother [greatly reduced]. So I became angry, [as was] [only r]ight. I became extremely hostile. [. . .] . . . As to what was from Naphureya, my [br]other, he added nothi[ng] more to [it]. [. . .] . . . {<He ca>}used me [dis]tress. [. . .] . . . Before Mane came, [I caus]ed [you] no distress [what]soever.

80–90 . . . [I addressed] my magnates as f[oll]ows: “With my brother, in perfect [faith, . . .]. My [anc]estors, moreover, [always showed great love] to his ancestors.” [. . .] The presents that my brother sent to me and [. . .] we rejoiced greatly and we in[de]ed made the day a festive occasion. [. . .] He was delaying, and I rejoiced on that day [. . .] with the foreign guests.<sup>37</sup> Mane, too, my brother’s messenger, [greatly] rejoiced. Let him tell [you] (about it).

108–118 [. . .] . . . And ri[ght] now [inquire carefully of your mother about] the words that your mother [spo]ke to Keli[ya]. I asked for [statues] of solid chased gold, and the obj[ects of] my desire [that I asked your father for, you have not sent. Should I be confident?] My brother has not let my messengers go, and [he] has not [. . .]. He has not sent him back, and he has not informed me. The statues o[f solid chased gold that I asked Nimmureya fo]r, I have now asked [y]ou for, but you have not given them. And the objects of [my desire] . . . you have not [infor]med me. My messengers, since 4 years ago, . . .

119–135 . . .<sup>39</sup> One must not change another’s words. [Whatever be the things that I say], my brother [should] do, and whatever the things be that my brother [says, I will do]. One [shall not cause] distress to the ot[her] in anything whatsoever. [. . .] We [must] love and we must rejoice as long as we live. It will make [o]ur [countries] happier [than all other countries], and they will say, “How [the kings of Hanigalbat and Egypt love (one another)].” If in this way [it makes our countries so very] much [more happy] than all other countries, all other countries [will see this, and] they will speak of y[ou].

136–147 [. . .] . . . [Sta]tues of s(o)lid chased gold I asked for from Nimmureya, your father, and I most urgently asked for much [go]ld that had [not] been work[ed]. Now, may my brother give me the statues of [solid ch]ased [gold]; [may] my brother [give me] promptly much gold that has not been [wo]rked. Your father himself *granted me sta*tues of gold. [W]hy is it for [you] a source of distress,<sup>40</sup> and (why) has he not inquired if [I did not] ask [your father] and if, moreover, your father did not grant them to me. [...] . . . They (the words?) are not at all true. If not, (say that) your father also gave me the statues I asked for and now [I] have asked [my brother for other ones]. Would my brother not make other ones? Would he not give them to me? Would he cause me distress? [...] . . . of the entire matter. (143–147) Teye is your mother, and it is of Teye, your mother, that you must inquire, [if I did not ask for [statues of gold] and] much other [gold] from [your] father, and if your father did not grant them to me. May my brother give me [statues of] solid [ch]ased [gold] and [much] other gold, and may my brother not cause me dis[tress]. In my brother's country gold is as plentiful as [dir]t, and I have not caused [my brother dis]tress. If I cannot build a mausoleum [for my ancestors], what can I do for them?

148–154 [I reflected],<sup>41</sup> “Keliya should return to my brother. Shall I cause [my] brother distress? I will send Keliya back to him!” [I spoke to my brother as] follows: “My brother, I would like to send back [your] messengers promptly, but as long as my brother [has detained] my messengers, I have detained these men her[e].” I also s[ai]d:<sup>42</sup> “As soon as he lets my messengers go, [...] . . . and present their report to me, I will let Ma[ne] go and [I will send] Keliya [back] to my brother as before. As long as my brother detains m[y] messengers like something for]gotten, I [will do] as I have planned.” Furthermore, the affair of my brother has now become a matter for some kind of de[nuncia]tion.<sup>43</sup> For what reason [has] my brother's [. . .]. He is a man, and he has taken his seat on the throne of his father now become a god. Let my brother do as he pleases.

155–161 I [bereby] declare: “My brother has indeed not let my messengers go, and he inde[ed] detains them a long time. I certainly de[noun]ce [this],<sup>44</sup> my brother, I indeed de[nou]nce (it). [I sent] Masi-badli, my messenger, (who is) also Keliya's uncle, to [my] brot[her], and I sent him [to] my [brot]her with friendly intentions. My brother must not complain that I have not se[nt] Keliya, or have not s[en]t him [with friendly intentio]ns. That other messenger of mine whom I sent to my brother is the brother of Keliya, son of the same mother, [. . . and] I sent him posthaste to my brother. Because my brother has not let him go promptly so he might return here, and because my brother has given me no information [with regard to the re]quests that I have made, for this reason I have not sent Keliya. [Nor is my brother] to tur[n] this into a matter of complaint or anything else.

162–165 [Masiba]dli, whom I sent to my brother, is Keliya's uncle. [May my brother give] the statues of solid ch[as]ed gold, and may my brother give me much gold that has not been worked for the mausoleum, as I have requested of my brother. May [my brother not] cause me [dis]tress and not hold back, for in my [bro]ther's country go[ld] is as plentiful as dirt. [Nor will I myself] cause my brother [dis]tress.

166–172 May [my brother] treat me with 10 times greater love and brotherliness than his father did, and we will al[ways sh]ow very, very much love t[o] my [brother]. May my brother let [m]y [mes]sengers go pr[omp]tly, and may he send Mane along with my messengers so that they may co[me . . .] . . . If my brother grants this, then I will send Keliya to my [brothe]r, (and) [I will provide<sup>45</sup> a large expedition f[or] my [brothe]r. I will do absolutely [every]thing that my brother says. [...] . . . I will do [an]d they are done. I have not written as before. It is like this (now) s[o I can write] and my brother understand me. My brother is not to complain. [I will send] a lar[ge] mission. [I will se]nd Keliya, and I will send a large mission to my [bro]ther.

173–181 [My brother] spoke [about Art]ašuba and Asali, declaring, “They broke the law in your brother's country.” They were br[oug]ht in [before] their [. . .], and the rest of my servants who had been living in Egypt were brought in. Ma[ne, too, en]tered my presence, and they were convicted in [m]y pre[sence]. Mane spoke [of their reputation], and I said in their presence, “Why [. . .] . . . your reputation?” [My brother, ask [Mane] how I treated them. I p[ut them] in chains and [fetter]s.<sup>46</sup> I had [both of] them, one alongside the other, tra[n]spor]ted to a town of mine on the border. But [my brother had said nothing] more, and for this reason I did not execute them. My brother, how [was I to know t]heir [crime? Since] my [brother] did not say, [I, for my part], did not ask. Now, may my brother esta[bl]ish the natu[re of their crime],<sup>47</sup> and I will treat [them] j[ust as] my brother wants them treated.

182–185 [A]s [my brother's] greeting-gift: 1 gold comb, inlaid with . . . , with the head of a yak; 1 buppalu-mace<sup>48</sup> [. . .]; [. . .] lapis lazuli [. . .], 1 pair for the hands, of šada[nu]-stone; 1 . . .<sup>49</sup> overlaid with gold; 3 garments; 3 pairs of [. . .]-garments; [. . .] city-shirts; {3} bows; 3 quivers overlaid with gold; 9[0 ar]rows of bronze;<sup>50</sup> . . . [. . .]; [. . .] fine [. . .]; 3 ma[ces]—I [herewith] send [as] my brother's greeting-gift.

186–187 [. . .] of gold; 1 pair for the hands, of šada[nu]-stone; [1 pair] of earrings of [. . .]-stone; [. . .]; 2 garments—I [herewith] send as the greeting-gift of Te]ye, your mother.

188–189 [...]; 1 pair for the hands of [šadanu-sto]ne; [1 pair of e]arrings [of ...stone; ...]; 4 garments—[I herewith] se[nd] a[s the gre]teting-gift of [Tadu-Ḥeba], my [dau]ghter.

NOTES

1. On umma, “message,” see the Introduction, n. 52.
2. [i]štu rēš LUG]AL-ru-ti-ia: following Kühne, p. 46, n. 212.
3. mimma ša-n[u-ú]: following Kühne, ibid.
4. il-ta-nap-(pa)-ru: following Adler.
5. [ša il-ta-nap-pa-ru].
6. [ra-'a-mu-ti ša it-ti ŠEŠ]-ia.
7. As lines 12–15 make clear, the subject here must be “he,” and therefore 14 [i-te-pu-uš]; cf. EA 17:13; EA 29:30.
8. The praenomen of Thutmose IV (mn-ḥprw-r<sup>c</sup>) may have appeared in the break. Extended negotiations seem to have been the rule in interdynastic marriages (Pintore, Matrimonio, pp. 16, 54), and therefore one may not infer a certain hostility towards Thutmose IV (so D. Lorton, The Juridical Terminology of International Relations in Egyptian Texts through Dynasty XVIII [Baltimore, 1974], p. 172, n. 11).
9. Cf. EA 17:26ff.
10. ù ú-[ul-la] 22 [la-a] aq-bi. Kühne, p. 24, n. 111, proposed ù ú-[ul] 22 [ul-la] aq-bi, but this yields an unusual position for the negative and does not adequately fill the space at the end of line 21. The writing ú-ul-la could be due to the influence of ú-ul and perhaps a-an-na (cf. EA 19:20).
11. ina ma-ab-[ri-im-ma a-na (lú)] ... ina ša (text: bi)-nu-ut-ti[im-ma]: following Landsberger, Symbolae ... Martino David dedicatae (see EA 11, n. 7), pp. 79f., n. 4; so also Adler in Kühne, p. 30, n. 138, but Adler retracted this reading in AOAT 201, pp. 232f. Cf. EA 19:58.
12. it-ta-ab-k[u]: following Landsberger, Symbolae ... Martino David dedicatae, pp. 79f., n. 4.
13. at-ta-d[in-šī]: see VAB 2/2, p. 1588.
14. [NIM]GIR: very dubious. Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 150, n. 71, takes it as susapinnu, “attendant to the groom,” “garçon d'honneur” (PRU 3, p. 147:15).
15. 4 K[UŠ.MEŠ]: following Kühne, p. 31, n. 145.
16. [muš-š]ir (cf. line 52) would maintain the rhetorical tone of the passage better than “I/he sent” (Kühne, p. 32, n. 146).
17. Grammar unclear, but hardly “I brought her.” Subject omitted?
18. [mi-im-ma ú-ul].
19. ina ku-ú-ul libbīšu, lit. “with all his heart,” i.e., without duplicity, keeping his part of the agreement perfectly. Other opinions: (1) Knudtzon, followed by Adler, “joy,” comparing Hebrew (and Ugaritic) gyl, but there is no evidence for this word elsewhere in (peripheral) Akkadian, and a Canaanitism in Tušratta's language is not likely; (2) AHw, p. 927b, “quiet, peace,” but this does not make very good sense here, and as said of soldiers fighting (see Boghazköy references) it makes no sense at all. For fighting with all one's heart, i.e., undivided loyalty, cf. ina gammurti libbi in Assyrian treaties (Wiseman, Iraq 20 [1958] p. 41 iii 169; ibid., p. 51 v 10; cf. ibid., p. 33 i 52–53).

20. 31 [... kī]mē amēlūtu me-ḥé-e[r-šu] ... 32 [l<sup>u</sup>DUMU.MEŠ KIN-ia kī-i] mebrūti u kī [i]t-ba-a-ru-ti: following Kühne, p. 46, n. 212. Instead of itbarūti, AHw, p. 1399b, reads ubarūti.

21. The entrance probably is to the Pharaoh's presence (cf. “residing,” ašābu, and “entering, erēbu,” in line 174), though perhaps entering Egypt is meant (cf. EA 30:9f.).

22. Cf. lines 27 and 38f.

23. Cf. EA 26:57.

24. it-t[a-bal-šu-nu a-n]a (cf. line 41).

25. [ma-lu-ú it-ta-ta-ad-di ù 1 l]i-ša-nu (cf. line 36).

26. ù 'a'-ka-an-na: following Adler; only two heads of verticals are visible.

27. takkal: hardly from ekēlu, “to become dark” (Knudtzon, followed by Ebeling, VAB 2/2, p. 1365), and akālu does not mean “to be angry” (Adler, who correctly rejects a derivation from nagālu).

28. mam[ma ša-na]-am-ma: following Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 184.

29. Teyēma [umma]k[a] šīi: Adler in Kühne, p. 46, n. 212, correctly identified šīi as the personal pronoun, but in AOAT 201, p. 271, he returns to the proposal of Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 184, šī-i-it < šī-i-de, “she knows.”

30. a-ḥa-m[iš ra-a-ma ú-ul ú]-ne-ep-pi-iš (cf. EA 19, note 5).

31. Cf. EA 27:21.

32. [lā mimma] (Berger in Kühne, p. 40, n. 194) or the like seems required by context.

33. [um-ma-a lu-ú mi-ta-ku a]-na-ku-ma. On the rest of the passage see Kühne, p. 40, n. 194, who suggests that the second number be read as 60 (×) 10,000. Perhaps, as he also suggests, the direct quotation extends through line 60.

34. ú-še-en<sup>7</sup>-nu-ú: following Adler.

35. 71 [ša <sup>m</sup>nimmur]eya-[m]a [iq-b]u-[šu-nu] k[i-i a-ta-m]a[r]-šu-[nu] ... (not confirmed by collation). On lines 69–79, cf. EA 26:30ff.; EA 27:32ff. Tušratta seems to say that though offended and very angry, he did not show it in the presence of the Egyptian messenger.

36. am-[ta-ra-aš]: following Adler.

37. [l<sup>u</sup>meš[ú]-ba-r[u-t]i]: following Kühne, p. 46, n. 212; confirmed by collation.

38. On line 106, see VAB 2/2, p. 1588.

39. Line 122 refers to an oath by “my brother” (Amenophis III or IV?).

40. [im]-mar-ša (cf. EA 19:65?).

41. On lines 148–53, see Kühne, p. 24, n. 111; p. 41, n. 199.

42. u[m-ma l]u-ú anākū-ma: following Adler.

43. a-na k[a-ar-š]i: see line 156.

44. [ka-ar/kar-šī-(šu)]: on the following u, after a direct object, see Wilhelm, AOAT 9, pp. 54f.

45. [lu-ú ú-ki]-il.

46. ù [i]z-[š]U.[MEŠ] (izqātī) aš-[ta-ka-an-šu-nu].

47. né-e-pé-el-t[i ḥīṭīšunu]: following Kühne, p. 46, n. 212.

48. 1 <sup>g</sup>išTUKUL SAG NA<sub>4</sub>: following Adler.

49. 1 ŠU (pair) ru-ub-tu<sub>4</sub> or šuruḫtu (AHw, p. 1287?)

TEXT: BM 29841.

COPY: BB 58.

PHOTOGRAPH: BB, pl. 15.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Adler, pp. 252–53.

TRANSLITERATION: Artzi, Actes (see EA 28, n. 6), p. 7.TRANSLATION: Oppenheim, LFM, p. 134.

To the kings of Canaan, servants of my brother: Thus the king.<sup>1</sup> I herewith send Akiya, my messenger, to speed posthaste to the king of Egypt, my brother. No one is to hold him up. Provide him with safe entry into Egypt and hand (him) over<sup>2</sup> to the fortress commander of Egypt.<sup>3</sup> Let [him] go on<sup>4</sup> immediately, and as far as his pre(sents) are concerned,<sup>5</sup> he is to owe nothing.

NOTES

1. The “brother” is the Egyptian king, and the “king” is almost certainly the ruler of Mittani, probably Tušratta. Similar passports, though directed to one place, are EA 39–40; PRU 3, pp. 12–13, 15–16; PRU 4, pp. 193, 196–97.

2. id-na-x (Gordon): x is certainly not šu, perhaps ni.

3. G. del Monte, OA 22 (1983) p. 309, thinks that ḫalzublu, “fortress commander,” refers to the highest Egyptian official, usually called rābiṣu (see Introduction, n. 70), but Elmar Edel, Festschrift Alt: Geschichte und Altes Testament Beiträge zur historischen Theologie (Tübingen, 1953), p. 51, is certainly right in identifying him with the “fortress commander of Silu” (Egyptian mr ḫtm n tr), at the Egyptian frontier.

4. li-il-l' i' -[i]k (also Gordon).

5. kad-(ru)-sú: for the confusion of sú and šu in Mittani letters, see Kühne, p. 28, n. 126. For the sense, cf. the request for freedom from various taxes and tolls in ARM 5, 11; EA 39–40; PRU 3, pp. 15–16; PRU 4, pp. 196–97; Ugar. 5, no. 26. That “hand” should be written qāt (so Oppenheim and Artzi) does not seem likely. Gordon thought that the first sign might be ši-ib rather than ù, the next sign possibly erased or ma[r]. ši-ib-sú = šibšu?

On the seal impression on this tablet, see E. Porada, AfO 25 (1974–77) pp. 132ff.

Marriage negotiations, in Hittite

TEXT: C 4741 (12208).

Nimuwa(r)eya,<sup>1</sup> Great King, king of Egypt, (speaks) as follows: Say to Tarḫundaradu, the king of Arzawa:<sup>2</sup> By me all is well. For my houses, my wives, my children, my magnates, my troops, my chariot-fighters, all my property<sup>3</sup> in my countries, all is well. . .

7–10 By you (too) may all be well. For your houses, your wives, your children, your magnates, your troops, your chariot-fighters, your property in your countries, may all be very well.

11–16 Behold, I have sent to you Iršappa,<sup>4</sup> my messenger, (with the instruction): “Let us see the daughter whom they will offer to my majesty in marriage.” And he will pour oil on her head.<sup>5</sup> Behold, I have sent to you a sack<sup>6</sup> of gold; it is (of) excellent (quality).

17–21 As to the things to be done that you wrote me about (with the words), “Send it here to me!”—now, I will send it (soon) to you, (but) later. (First) send back quickly your messenger and the messenger from me, and they must come.

22–26 Then they will come (back) to you (and) bring along the bride-price for the daughter. My messenger and your messenger who came, who . . .<sup>7</sup> And send to me too . . . people of the country Kaška. I have heard that everything is finished, 27–38 and that the country Ḫattuša is shattered.<sup>8</sup> And behold, I have sent to you as a greeting-gift a consignment in the charge of my messenger, Iršappa:<sup>9</sup> a sack of gold, weighing 20 minas of gold; 3 light linen garments; 3 light linen (ma)ntles;<sup>10</sup> 3 linen ḫuzzi; 8 linen kušitti; 100 linen šawalga; 100 linen ḫapp[a . . .]; 100 linen mutalliyašša;<sup>11</sup> 4 large kukkubu-containers of “sweet oil”; 6 [small] kukkubu-containers of “sweet oil”; 3 chairs of ebony overlaid with beautiful šarpa [and gol];<sup>12</sup> 10 chairs of ebony [inlaid] with ivory; 100 (beams of) ebony, as a greeting-gift.

NOTES

[The translations and notes for EA 31–32 are by Volkert Haas. — WLM]

1. Reading ni-mu-wa-(r)e-ia, with Albright, JEA 23 (1937) p. 195, n. 1, and Edel, Studien zur Altägyptischen Kultur 1 (1974) p. 135; cf. VAB 2/1, p. 270, note e. The horizontal wedge that is missing is that of the re, not of the wa (Gordon). On paleographic and linguistic grounds, this and the following letter are to be dated in the period between the Hittite kings Arnuwanda I and Šuppiluliuma I. According to the paleographic criteria elaborated in StBoT 21 and 22, they approximate the script of the chancery of Arnuwanda I; cf. the signs AK, AL, DU, LI, and ŠAR. This fits too with the correct distinction between the plural determinatives MEŠ and HI.A, the frequent use of enclitic pronouns (note especially the use of the enclitic pronominal stem of the plural, -e, EA 31:18), the verb form a-ú-ma-ni (otherwise, in Old Hittite, ú-me-ni, StBoT 8, p. 78), and the plene writings such as bu-u-da-a-ak (EA 31:20) and aš-šu-ú-li (EA 32:18, 20, 21); cf. also CHD 3, pp. 254, 268 MH/MS.

2. On the location of Arzawa somewhere to the west of Cilicia, its history, and EA 31–32, see Heinhold-Krahmer, Arzawa: Untersuchungen zu seiner Geschichte nach den hethitischen Quellen, THeth 8 (1977) pp. 3–4, 50–55. Through a marriage with a daughter of the most powerful ruler among the various principalities that were found in Arzawa before Šuppiluliuma I, Egypt believed that it could assure the loyalty of the country and thus help impede the resurgence of the Hittites. Arzawa's previous isolation may be reflected in the fact that correspondence with it was carried on in Hittite and not, as was customary, in Akkadian. (The view of J. Friedrich, Or n.s. 8 [1939] p. 310, n. 1, that in this letter are to be found several "violations of normal Hittite speech" may be questioned. The position, however, of EGIRanda at the end of a sentence, after the verb, is a difficulty; cf. L. Rost, MIO 4 [1956] p. 336.)

3. The term pippit, "all of one's possessions," is attested only here, and it is certain that similar forms—pí-pí-it-bi <sup>d</sup>a-dam-ma (KBo XVII 103 rev. i 18'); pí-pí-pí-tar <sup>STARJ</sup> KBo XIII 248 rev. i 9')—have nothing to do with pippit. H. Kronasser, "Hethitisch pippit existiert nicht," Die Sprache 7 (1961) pp. 168–69, believes that it is a mistake for upessar to be equated with Akkadian šūbultu.

4. The name of the Egyptian messenger appears with the same writing among Hurrian gods: see KUB XXXIV 102 ii 13 (<sup>d</sup>ir-ša-ap-ša dam-ki-ra-a-ši), and KUB XXVII 1 rev. ii 23 (ir-šap-pí-ni-iš DAM.GAR-ra-a-ši). He is, therefore, a god of commerce; on tamgar-(š)še, "commerce," see I. M. Diakonoff, Hurrisch und Urartäisch (Munich, 1971), p. 69. The god Iršappa is the Canaanite Resheph; see E. Laroche, RHA 34 (1976) pp. 124f.; Or n.s. 45 (1976) p. 97; Ugar 5, p. 521. Note, too, at Emar Nergal, the Babylonian Resheph as EN KI.LAM, bēl mahīri, "lord of the marketplace, commerce," Emar 6/3 373:74'; 378:10.

5. On lines 11–14, see Güterbock in Landsberger, Symbolae ... Martino David dedicatae (see EA 11, n. 7), pp. 79f., n. 4. On the rite, see EA 11, n. 7.

6. On the noun zubalaliya, see Otten, StBoT 15 (1971) p. 1, and Haas, Kratylos 16 (1973) p. 162. According to Gordon, here and in line 30 the first sign is SU and not ZU. See also Frank Starke, "Ein Amarna Beleg für nbw nfr 'gutes Gold,'" GM 53 (1981) pp. 55ff.

7. On the verb aggaš, of obscure meaning (perhaps "he is dead"), see Kühne, pp. 96f., n. 481.

8. Starke, "Zur Deutung der Arzawa-Briefstelle VBoT I, 25–27," ZA 71 (1981) pp. 221–31, interprets differently: "I have heard all that you said. And also the land of Ḫattuša is at peace." This ingenious interpretation is based on an Egyptian parallel(?), but if one takes into consideration the historical implications, it falls short of conviction; see A. Hagenbucher, THeth 16 (1989) pp. 362f.

9. On lines 28–29, with their parallels in the letters of Ramesses II, see Edel, Studien zur Altägyptischen Kultur 1 (1974) p. 135.

10. With Edel, ibid., pp. 135–37, I read 3 GADA SIG (see EA 14 iii 11) 3 GADA (GÚ).È.A S[IG].

11. Gordon: either B/Pu over an erasure, or else AŠ-B/Pu, but not MU-AŠ (cf. MU in lines 1, 17, 18, 25).

12. The occurrences of šarpa-, šarpašši, have been collected by Rost, MIO 4 (1956) pp. 338ff. (Gordon: GIŠ.KAL clear; [KŪ.G]I GAR.RA.)

Behold, (concerning the fact) that Kalbaya has spoken this word to me, "Let us establish a blood-relationship,"<sup>1</sup>

4–6 in this matter I do not trust Kalbaya. He has (indeed) spoken it as a word, but it was not confirmed on the tablet.

7–9 If you really desire my daughter, (how) should I not give her to you? I give her to you!

10–13 See to it now that Kalbaya returns quickly with my messenger, and write back to me on a tablet concerning this matter.

14–20 May Nabu, the king of wisdom, (and) Ištanuš of the Gateway graciously protect the scribe who reads this tablet, and around you may they graciously hold the(ir) hands.<sup>2</sup>

21–23 You, scribe, write well to me; put down, moreover, your name.

24–25 The tablets that are brought here always write in Hittite!

NOTES

1. This tablet is the end of a longer but only partially preserved communication replying to EA 31.

2. Before line 14 there is a double dividing-line. On lines 14–23, which are directed to the scribe at the Egyptian court, see Otten, MIO 4 (1956) pp. 179ff., esp. p. 185. See also the Introduction, sect. 4.

NOTES

1. The king addressed was probably Amenophis IV, but neither Smenkhkare nor Tutankhamun may be excluded; see Kühne, p. 86. Perhaps, too, the entire Alašia correspondence is to be put in the reign of Amenophis IV, over a period of about a decade or so; for opinions, see Hellbing, Alasia Problems (see headnote), p. 47, n. 19, and EA 34, n. 11.

2. There is no plural marker with “chariots” or the three preceding nouns (also EA 37:6; 39:6), but plurals are the rule in the various forms of the formulaic greeting, and the unmarked logogram is also used for the plural in EA 34:44–45; 39:10–20; 40:16–28; perhaps 37:39 and 38:25.

3. In lines 1–8 the left margin moves inward, to the right (see photo), whereas Knudtzon's restorations [šá]-ni-ta<sub>5</sub> and [a-n]u-ma at the beginning of lines 9–10, respectively, assume the margin of line 8. On the other hand, the assumption of a broken sign seems inescapable. In line 10 [e/i-n]u-ma seems preferable (Kühne, p. 86, n. 427).

4. A change of rulers required allies to restate their expressions of friendship; cf. EA 6:8ff.; 8:8ff.; 9:7ff.; 17:5iff.; 41:7ff. See also Goetze, Kleinasien<sup>2</sup> (Munich, 1957), p. 98; Otten, AfO, Beiheft 12, p. 65.

The following restoration of lines 12–13 is most uncertain: [nu-u]š-te-bi-ri-mi 13 [NÍG.BA š]a-la-mi. The first word, as if from ebēru (also line 17), is regularly used of crossing bodies of water and would be appropriate in a letter from an island; for overhanging i-vowel, cf. li-li-ki, lines 29, 32; for the form, probably Š-perfect, cf. ultebilakku, EA 35:10; -mi is a mark of direct quotation.

5. End of line 16: [šu-bi-ra-(mi)]. The measure is also absent in EA 35:10; 36:6; 40:7, 13; understand “talent(s)” or perhaps “bars, ingots” (Kühne, p. 86, n. 422). On the Cypriote talent of 28.2 kg or 35.25 kg, roughly the same weight of the ingots found at Cyprus, see Arnaud, RA 61 (1967) p. 168. Neither the gift requested nor the one sent is necessarily a coronation gift (Redford, History and Chronology of the Eighteenth Dynasty of Egypt [see Introduction, n. 119], p. 126).

6. Line 17: [ù u]š-te-bi-ra-ku x [x x]. What was actually sent seems to have been less than what was asked for, but the difference was perhaps compensated for by adding (line 18), [x-x]-AM 10 GÚ.UN [URUDU DÜG]; cf. EA 40:13.

7. Lines 19–22: [ù DUM]U š-i-ip-r[i-šu] 20 [ša AD-ka i]š-ta-n[a-pa-ar] 21 [a]-na mu-bi-[ia ki-ma] 22 ar-bi-iš'ú'-[wa-aš-ši-ir-(šu)]. Comparison of previous relations with the addressee's predecessor is frequent; cf. EA 8:8ff.; 9:6ff.; 10:8ff.; 15:7ff.; 17:2iff.; 27–29 passim.

8. Line 25: ú-[u]h-har/ha-ar-(šu); with the exception of EA 108:48, the D-conjugation of kalû (Knudtzon) is unattested in EA.

9. On the apparent la of the copy, see Schroeder, OLZ, 1917, col. 105.

10. ip-p[a-ni-ka]; cf. i-pa-ni-ia in the following line. That in(a) should mean both “from” and “to” in the same sentence, in the same expression, is not very likely. ip-p[a-ti-ka], “from your territory”?

Message of the king of Alašiya to the king of Egypt, my brother:<sup>1</sup> Be informed that I prosper and my country prospers. And as to your own prosperity, may your prosperity and the prosperity of your household, your sons, your wives, your horses, your chariots, your country, be very great. 7–15 Look, yo(u) are my brother. As to your having written me, “Why did you not send your messenger to me?”, the fact is that I had not heard that you were going to perform a sacrifice.<sup>2</sup> Do not ta[k]e this at all seriously.<sup>3</sup> Since I have (now) heard (about it), I herewith send my messenger to you. 16–25 And behold, I (also) send to you with my messen(g)er 100 talents of copper. Moreover, may your messengers now bring some goods: 1 ebony bed, gold-(trimmed), . . . ;<sup>4</sup> and a chariot, šubītu,<sup>5</sup> with gold; 2 horses; 2 pieces of linen; 50 linen shawls;<sup>6</sup> 2 linen robes; 14 (beams of) ebony;<sup>7</sup> 17 habannatu-jars of "sweet oil." [And] as to byssos,<sup>8</sup> 4 pieces and 4 shawls. 26–31 [And as] to goods that are not available [in your country], I am sending [in the charge of] my [mess]enger a donkey-hide [. . .] of a bed, and [hab]annatu-jars that are not available [. . .] 32–41 . . .<sup>9</sup> 42–49 So an alliance should [be ma]de between the two of us, and my messen(g)ers should go to you and your messengers should come to me. Moreover, why have you not sent me oil and linen? As far as I am [concer]ned,<sup>10</sup> what you yourself request I will give. 50–53 I herewith send a habannatu-jar [that] is full of "sweet oil" to be poured on your head, seeing that you have sat down on your royal throne.<sup>11</sup>

1. On the writer's referring to himself first, see the Introduction, n. 53.
2. The festival cannot be identified (Campbell, Chronology, p. 42); for possibilities within the reign of Amenophis IV, see Kühne, pp. 86f. Cf. the coronation referred to in lines 50–53.
3. The reading ti-š' a'-kán is certain. The expression (mimma) ina libbi šakānu occurs also in EA 35:12, 15, 35 (all passive); 38:30; 170:7f.
4. š-u-x-a: x is neither hi (BB, but rejected in VAB 2/1, p. 281, note d), nor ha (Ungnad, OLZ, 1916, col. 183); u over an erasure (or nu, Gordon) is possible. š'u a, "provided with mattress(es)"? Cf. š' u ša erši; on the disagreement in gender, cf. šalim in line 4.
5. Mayer, UF 8 (1976) pp. 212f., compares Nuzi šukītu, (a type of) chariot.
6. GÜ.GADA (also line 25), to be added to kišadu (CAD, K, p. 449b, "scarf worn around the neck"; AHW, p. 490a, "Halstuch").
7. See EA 31:38, where Edel, Brief, p. 152, assumes <GIŠ>, "<beams>," but perhaps repetition of logogram/determinative avoided.
8. See EA 14 iii 11.
9. At the end of line 32, ŠE.MEŠ (Gordon). Lines 39–40: "... my merchants and 20 merchants of yours" ('ū 20', Gordon).
10. a-na-ku-[t]: on the enclitic, see Krahmalkov, JSS 14 (1969) pp. 203f.; for the construction anāku . . . anāku (line 49?), cf. EA 35:21–22, 50–52. The assumption of a West Semitism is especially plausible in this letter. Among the Alašia letters it is the most strongly influenced by the West Semitic language found elsewhere in the Amarna letters from southern Syria and further south; see Kühne, p. 11, n. 47. To his observations add the use of the Akkadian subjunctive as West Semitic indicative: tinaqqu (line 12), tuwašširuni (line 48), tērišu (terrišu?) (line 49), iddinu (line 49). Note, too, the anomalous form of the dual pronominal suffix in bi-ri-ku-ni (line 48), paralleled only by be-ri-ku-ni in EA 113:18 and 116:33, both letters from Byblos (see EA 113, n. 5).

11. In a different context, "when you sit . . ." would also be possible. The language seems to imply a recent enthronement, and in both this and the arrangement for the exchange of messengers (lines 42–46) this letter is much like EA 33. It may be doubted that two such letters would be sent to the same king.

The hand of Nergal

TEXT: BM 29788.

PHOTOGRAPH: Hellbing, Alasia Problems, p. 100 (obverse only, illegible).TRANSLATION: Oppenheim, LFM, pp. 122f.

S[ay to the k]ing of Egypt, my brother: [Message] of the king of Alašiya, your brother. [F]or me all goes well. For my household, my wives,<sup>1</sup> my sons, my magnates, my horses, my chariots, and in my country, all goes very well. For my brother

6–9 may all go well. For your household, your wives, your sons, your magnates, your horses, your chariots, and in your country, may all go very well. My brother, I herewith send my messenger with your messenger to Egypt.

10–15 I herewith send to you 500 (talents) of copper.<sup>2</sup> As my brother's greeting-gift I send it to you. My brother, do not be concerned that the amount of copper is small. Behold, the hand of Nergal<sup>3</sup> is now in my country; he has slain all the men of my country, and there is not a (single) copper-worker.<sup>4</sup> So, my brother, do not be concerned.

16–18 Send your messenger with my messenger immediately, and I will send you whatever copper you, my brother, request.

19–22 You are my brother. May he send me silver in very great quantities. My brother, give me the very best silver, and then I will send you, my brother, whatever you, my brother, request.

23–26 Moreover, my brother, give me the ox that my messenger requests,<sup>5</sup> my brother, and send me, my brother, 2 kukkubu-containers of "sweet oil," my brother, and send me one of the experts in vulture augury.<sup>6</sup>

27–29 Moreover, my brother, men of my country keep speaking with m[e] about my timber that the king of Egypt receives from me. My brother, [give me] the payment due.<sup>7</sup>

30–34 Moreover, here is the situation: a man from [Alašiya] has died in Egypt, and [his] thing[s] are in your country, though his son and wife are with me. So, my brother, loo[k to]<sup>8</sup> the things of the Alašiya people and hand them over, my brother, to the charge of my messenger.

35–39 My brother, do not be concerned that your messenger has stayed 3 years in my country, for the hand of Nergal is in my country and in my own house. There was a young wife of mine that now, my brother, is dead.<sup>9</sup>

40–42 Send your messenger immediately along with my messenger, with safe passage, and then I will send my brother's greeting-gift to you.

43–48 Moreover, may my brother send to me in very great quantities the silver that I have asked you for. Send, my brother, the things that I asked you for. My brother should do quite everything, and then whatever things you say I will do.

49–53 You have not been put (on the same level) with the king of Ḫatti or the king of Šanḫar.<sup>10</sup> Whatever greeting-gift he (my brother) sends me, I for my part send back to you double.

54–55 May your messenger come to me as of o[ld, and] may my messenger go to you as of ol[d].<sup>11</sup>

NOTES

1. On the absence of the plural marker, see EA 33, n. 2.
2. enūma, as if anumma (cf. EA 38:10; 40:12; and see the comments of Huehnergard, Akkadian, pp. 196f.). To apologize for sending only 500 talents (?—see EA 33, n. 5), the largest amount mentioned in the entire correspondence, is somewhat curious. Oppenheim (“pounds,” “minas” understood?) reduces the amount, but consistency is required, and this solution alleviates only somewhat the difficulty. Georgiou, Levant 11 (1979) p. 96, thinks of irony and (more plausibly) suggests a prior request from the Pharaoh for much more. The amount would support the claim of lines 49–53. On Egyptian-Alašian trade relations in this period, see Y. Holmes, AOAT 22, pp. 96ff.

3. Whether <sup>d</sup>MAŠ.MAŠ is here to be read Nergal, or West Semitic Rašpu (Resheph; see EA 31, n. 4), or even the name of a native Cypriote god of pestilence, remains uncertain; see Hellbing, pp. 21ff. On šumma, “behold,” see JCS 7 (1953) pp. 79ff.; also AbB 9, 253:13 and comment. Rainey, Particles, rejects this meaning of šumma, pointing to parallels where inūma replaces šumma. Note also in line 37 aššum. It does not follow, however, that šumma means “since, because,” which would otherwise be without parallel and without explanation. As a deictic particle reflecting West Semitic 'imlhm, šumma stresses the here-and-nowness of the situation.

4. Whether the “worker” (ēpiš) is here to be understood as merely mining the copper (AHu, p. 227a, “acquire”), or also refining, etc., is not clear; cf. EA 36:5, 12, 14.

5. te-ri-iš-šu, mistake for e-ri-iš-šu (VAB 2/1, p. 285). The ox is probably an ox-shaped object or figurine; live bovines are unattested among the gifts of this period.

6. Or “eagle-augury.” The sudden request for a very specialized diviner, along with an ox and “sweet oil,” is surprising, the more so since nothing is known of such a form of divination in Egypt (Brunner, GM, 25 [1977] pp. 45f.). Ornithomancy, as Artzi, BiOr 41 (1984) p. 212 has stressed, is of western origin; for the Mari evidence, see Durand, AÉM 1/1, pp. 38, 386f. McEwan, ZA 70 (1981) p. 62, n. 29, has suggested that erû refers here to the Neophron percnopterus (Egyptian vulture), which flies over Cyprus (Alašia) on migrations to and from Egypt. He sees the request as reflecting the cosmopolitan character of the Egyptian court, not as evidence of a native tradition.

7. ŠAM.MEŠ (šimāti), rather than ŠAM, as not infrequently in Middle Assyrian and at Ugarit (AHu, p. 1240; Huehnergard, Akkadian, p. 373, no. 178aa).

8. Certainly MAŠK[IM], but the reading is unknown.

9. This interpretation assumes mīr for correct mīrat; cf. EA 34, n. 4. The alternative, “a son or child has died,” has other grammatical difficulties.

10. I agree with Vincentelli, RSO 46 (1973) pp. 143ff., that the usual version of these lines, “Do not make an alliance with . . .,” does not fit the context, and that such a request, if made, would require explanation. However, her own version, “Do not compare (me) with . . .,” has its own difficulties: taššakin is in form passive, and the alleged object—the crucial word—is unexpressed. Cf. iššakin (line 12) alternating with stative šakin (lines 15, 35).

11. qad-mi-i[š] (line 54), qad-mi-'is' (line 55): ŠU-mi-'e'-[iš] (Knutdزون) is extremely doubtful, because for e there is no trace of a second vertical, and spacing favors only one sign. Interpretation is also extremely doubtful (Maynard, JSOR 8 [1924] p. 76). For illik as injunctive, cf. the injunctive use of the Š-perfect (ulṭēbilanni, line 20), Š-preterite (uṣēbila, line 44), and N-preterite (iššakin, line 12).

NOTE

1. EA 36 is the middle of a rather large tablet concerned with the exchange of goods. There are several references to “doing” copper (lines 4?, 5, 12, 14; see EA 35, n. 4). Line 6: “[Now] I am sending (sent?) to my brother 120 (+ x?, Gordon) (talents) [of cop]per; 70 (talents) remain . . .” Lines 9–10: “[. . .] . . . what I sent you was little. Now I have looked for (more) [and] I will se(n)d you [as much a] your heart desires. [And w]hat I ask [yo]u for (e-ri-šu-[k]a) send me." In line 6 (end), AŠ G[Ú.N], "I ta[lent]"; the conventional use of the horizontal wedge for the numbers 1-9 with biltu is also found in EA 37:9. In line 15, p]i-ba-ti, while paleographically possible, is questionable because of considerations of syllabary and perhaps history (Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 2*, n. 19). Also dubious: ki-na-bi = Canaan.

[Sa]y [t]o the k[in]g [of Egypt], m[y brother]: Message [of the king] of Alašiya,<sup>1</sup> your [bro]ther. For me all goes well. [F]or my brother may all go well. For his household, for his wives, [f]or his sons, for the horses, his chariots,<sup>2</sup> and in his country, may all go ve⟨ry⟩<sup>3</sup> well. 8-12 [I have be]ard the greeting of my brother. May my brother dispatch my messenger without delay.<sup>9</sup> 21-29 Pa-x-tum-x-e, <sup>m</sup>Ku-ni-e-a, <sup>m</sup>E-tel-lu-na may the cit[y] expel, and then may my brother let go x-uš-bar-ra (and) <sup>m</sup>[B]e-[e]l-x-y-z, wh[o] with . . .<sup>10</sup>

NOTES

1. Written a-la-si-ia.
2. On the absence of the plural marker, see EA 33, n. 2.
3. dan (over an erasure)-⟨nīš⟩.
4. If the 5 talents are of copper, then of course the gift is for the Egyptian king, not from him. A gift of 5 talents of gold or silver (Weber, VAB 2/2, p. 1083; Georgiou, Levant 11 [1979] p. 97) seems out of the question, and if horses are also part of the gift—the reading cannot be confirmed—then this also argues against the gift's coming from Egypt; see Zaccagnini, Lo scambio dei doni durante i secoli XV-XIII (see Introduction, n. 60), p. 122, n. 1.
5. ŠEŠ-ia x-y-ia (Gordon). Note that ŠEŠ is never used alone in this letter.
6. šulmāna ša'ālu = šulma ša'ālu.
7. ba-<sup>r</sup>āš<sup>r</sup>-b[a-t]a (also Gordon); see VAB 2/1, p. 291, note g.
8. lu-še-bil-<sup>r</sup>ak-ku<sup>r</sup> (Gordon).

9. lā ikalla li-iš-pur (completely visible), hendiadys (cf. CAD, K, p. 102b).

10. The names in lines 21ff. have been studied to determine the ethnic composition of Alašiya, but with little evident awareness of the epigraphic difficulties; see Astour, JAOS 84 (1964) pp. 24off.; Carruba, Studi classici e orientali 17 (1968) pp. 25ff. Line 21: probably no personal name determinative; second sign, pa more likely than āš; fourth sign, ni more likely than me. Line 23: last sign, na unlikely, UR[U] more likely (?—possible?). Line 24: 'li-iš-ru-d' am-ma (Gordon); if correct and not an archaism, tarādu must at this period mean "drive off, expel." Line 25: x-uš-bar(pa?)-ra; x may be a personal name determinative; Gordon has Ku-uš-par/pa-ra. Line 26: <sup>m</sup>B/Pel-x = ša or ta; the next two signs are illegible.

A brotherly quarrel

TEXT: VAT 153.

COPIES: WA 11; VS 11, 14.

PHOTOGRAPH: Hellbing, Alasia Problems, p. 100 (obverse only).

Say to the king of Egypt, my brother: Message of the king of Alašiya, your brother. For me all goes well, and for you may all go well. For your household, your chief wives,<sup>1</sup> your sons, your horses, your chariots, among your numerous troops, in your country, among your magnates, may all go very well.

7-12 Why, my brother, do you say such a thing to me, "Does my brother not know this?" As far as I am concerned, I have done nothing of the sort. Indeed,<sup>2</sup> men of Lukki, year by year, seize villages in my own country.

13-18 My brother, you say to me, "Men from your country were with them." My brother, I myself do not know that they were with them. If men from my country were (with them), send (them back) and I will act as I see fit.

19-22 You yourself do not know men from my country. They would not do such a thing.<sup>3</sup> But if men from my country did do this, then you yourself do as you see fit.

23-26 Now, my brother, since you have not sent back my messenger, for this tablet it is the king's brother (as messenger). L[et] him write. Your messengers must tell me what I am to do.<sup>4</sup>

27-30 Furthermore, which ancestors of yours did such a thin⟨g⟩ to my ancestors? So no, my brother, do not be concerned.

NOTES

1. NÍTLAM (SAL.UŠ), distinguished from DAM (aššatu) in EA 39:6-7 and also at Alalakh (Goetze, JCS 13 [1959] p. 98); see also PRU 3, p. 4:6; ibid., p. 5:6; PRU 4, p. 232:11 (?—cf. EA 19:85?); Ugar. 5, no. 21:4, and no. 24:7. The reading is hīrtu or marhītu (CAD, M/1, p. 281); sekretu (CAD, S, pp. 216f.) seems less likely. See also EA 49, n. 2.

2. enūma for anumma; see EA 35, n. 2.

3. Against copy, read la-a e-pu-uš (Schroeder, OLZ, 1917, col. 105). The context favors understanding the subject as the accused Alašians. A singular verb with a plural subject is not without parallel (EA 170:23; Ugar. 5, p. 128, n. 1).

4. The writing is so inept in this paragraph that my version is only one of several possibilities.

12-15 I herewith<sup>6</sup> send as your greeting-gift 5 (talents) of copper, 3 talents of fine copper, 1 piece of ivory, 1 (beam) of boxwood, 1 (beam) for a ship.

16-20 [Mo]reover, my brother, these men<sup>7</sup> [and] this ship belong to the king, my lord. So send [me] (back) the ship [of the king, my lord], promptly and [saf]ely.

21-23 [And as for y]ou, my brother, [wh]atever you ask for according to [your fancy], I will give it to y[ou].

24-28 These men are servants of the king, [my] lo[rd], and no one making a claim in your name is to approach them. My brother, send (them back) to me safely and promptly.

NOTES

1. This letter was written by the same scribe as that of EA 39, probably one after the other, and probably delivered at the same time, perhaps by the same messenger. (On messengers carrying several letters, see Edelman, Brief, pp. 145f.) MAŠKIM (rābišu), as here said of the Egyptian official, probably refers to the high office of vizier (Helck, Beziehungen<sup>2</sup>, p. 248), and as probably said of the Alašian official it is to be compared with LÚ.MAŠKIM.GAL, the title of the official in Alašia who sent Ugar. 5, no. 22, perhaps native pidduri (Steiner, Kadmos 1 [1963] pp. 130f.; Otten, MDOG 94 [1963] p. 15; Ugar. 5, p. 341, n. 2).

2. Traces fit neither i[yāši] nor m[abrīya] nor U[GU-ia]. In the next line, ana [UGU-ka]; cf. EA 39:5.

3. Reading ana [p]a-n[i] (Knudtzon), but perhaps ana [m]aḥ-r[i] (Gordon). The name, which is not Egyptian, is restored on the basis of EA 57:13; cf. also Ugar. 5, no. 20:2.

4. i-din-n[a] seems the most likely reading (Gordon).

5. t[a]-aš-pu-ra-am-ma (Gordon).

6. See EA 35, n. 2 (read i/e-nu-ma?).

7. On the plural, see EA 33, n. 2, and VAB 2/1, p. 297, note ***.

Of Egyptian-Hittite relations

TEXT: C 4747 (122-7).

COPY: WA 18.

4-6 [For me all goes w]ell. For you may all go well. For yo[ur] [wives], your sons, your household, your troops, your chario[ts, and i]n your country, may all go very well.

7-13 Neither my messengers, whom I sent to your father, nor the request that your father made, saying, "Let us establish only the most friendly relations between us," did I indeed re[fus]e.<sup>3</sup> Whatsoever your father said to me, I indeed did absolutely eve[ry]thing. And my own request, indeed, that I made to your father, he never refused; he gave me absolutely everything.

14-15 Why, my brother, have you held back the presents that your father made to me when he was al[iv]e?

16-22 Now, my brother, [yo]u have ascended the throne of your father, and just as your father and I were desirous of peace between us, so now too should you and I be friendly with one another. The request [that] I<sup>4</sup> expressed to your father [I shall express] to my brother, too. Let us be helpful to each other.<sup>5</sup>

23-28 My brother, do not hold back anything that [I asked] of your father. [As to the 2 st]atues of gold, one [should be standing], one should be seated. And, my brother, [send me]<sup>6</sup> the 2 [silve]r statues of women, and a large piece of lapis lazuli, and a large stand for [...].

29-38 [...] ... If my brother [wants to give them], let my [broth]er give the[m].<sup>7</sup> But i]f my brother does not want to give them,<sup>8</sup> when my chariots ha[ve been r]eadied for ... linen ḫuzzi,<sup>9</sup> I will return them to my brother. Whatever you want, my brother, write to me so I can send it to you.

39-43 I herewith send you as your greeting-gift:<sup>10</sup> 1 silver rhyton, a stag,<sup>11</sup> 5 minas its weight; 1 silver rhyton, a young ram,<sup>12</sup> 3 minas its weight; 2 silver disks, 10 minas their weight, as<sup>13</sup> 2 large nikiptu-trees.

NOTES

1. [um-ma dUTU-šī]: cf. umma dŠamšī RN Šarru rabū introducing Hittite letters and decrees (PRU 4, passim). On the form of introduction, see the Introduction, sect. 4.

2. The Egyptian king could be either Amenophis IV, Tutankhamun, or Smenkhkare; see the Introduction, sect. 6, nn. 125 and 138. Philologically, the arguments of Wilhelm and Boese in favor of the last named are very strong.

4. a-na-<sup>r</sup>ku<sup>r</sup>: virtually certain (Gordon).

5. 22 [a-qab-bi] us-sà-ta (usātu): favoring aqabbi is the enclitic -ma, "my brother, too." Gordon also restored a-ḫu]-uz-za-ta, "let's make a marriage between us," but a break of five signs seems excluded. Whether a proposal of marriage would be made so laconically may also be doubted.

6. [šū-bi-la], at the end of line 28.

7. li-it-ti-in-šū-nu-ti-(ma) (also Gordon).

8. Suffix is -šunu, not šunūti. Line 34: [la]-<sup>r</sup>a<sup>r</sup> [ḫ]a-šīḫ.

9. The reading i-gam-ma-ru-ma is very questionable. Gordon read GADA ḫu-uz-ḫu-še.

10. On lines 30-41, see Ehelolf, ZA 45 (1939) pp. 71f.

11. See CAD, A/1, p. 375a (LU.LIM<sub>4</sub> = lulīmu). Cf., at Mari, rhytons in animal form, the head being specified (vessel, "head of a gazelle," etc.); see ARMT 25, p. 275 on no. 82.

12. UDU.DAG + KISIM<sub>x</sub>IR(?), followed by a "Glossenkeil," which is not attached to the previous wedge (against VAB 2/1, p. 1003, no. 60).

13. Either -ma over an erasure (meaning?), or ŠÈ = ana, as elsewhere at Boghazköy. The matching numbers suggest the possibility that the nikiptu-tree was depicted on the disks.

NOTES

1. The Hittite provenience of EA 42 is virtually certain; see the remarks of Knudtzon, VAB 2/2, p. 1093f. Note, too, KUR URU before geographical names (KUR URU hu[r-ri, line 10]), typical of Hittite scribes. If the restoration in line 2 is correct, it is possible we should render by "chariot-fighters" rather than "horses"; see the Introduction, n. 54.

2. The addressee is asked, it seems, to recall the history of the two countries, going back to the time of their grandfathers. Perhaps a defense is offered of Hittite attacks on "Hurri-country" (line 10), i.e., Mittani.

3. This is usually understood of the form of the introduction to letters between equals or from superior to inferior, according to which the addressor names himself first (Introduction, sect. 4); thus VAB 2/2, p. 1094; Edel, Jahrbuch für kleinasiatische Forschung 2 (1952-53) p. 265; Helck, Beziehungen, p. 475, n. 3. If this interpretation is correct, we must assume an addressee quite unfamiliar with standard Hittite practice. Perhaps we should think rather of a list of names in hierarchical order; cf. the list of names at the end and the possible threat not to put the Hittite on the list at all.

4. Cf. EA 27, n. 18.

5. 19 ŠEŠ-ia aš-šum-ma sū-lum-me-e [a-na ia-ši] 20 ta-aš-pu-u-ra-a ù šum-ma [ŠEŠ-ia at-ta šum-ka] 21 am-mi-nim tu-ra-ab-bi ù a-[na-ku ki-ma] 22 [n]a-bu-ul-tim ki-a-am ha-as-[sa-ku šu-mi ša] 23 [m(x)]-x-SAR <sup>m</sup>ru-mi-in-x [...]. 24 [aš]-tur ù šum-ka [...]. 25 [a-pa-a]š-ši-iṭ ù ... Lines 21-22, perhaps better: "I am like a corpse (and) thus am I thought of."

6. [um-ma]-a. If correct, a message from the scribe of EA 42.

NOTE

1. The correspondents are of equal rank ("brothers"), probably kings, and Hittite provenience of the letter is virtually certain because of the sign-forms of NI, UŠ, DAM, LA, AZ; see also VAB 2/2, p. 1094. The letter refers to malicious men and someone's murder.

From a Hittite prince

TEXT: VAT 1656.

COPIES: WA 29; VS 11, 16.

Say to the lord, the king of Egypt, my father: Thus Zi[t]a, the king's son, your son.<sup>1</sup>

5-6 May all go well with the lord, my father.

7-13 On an earlier embassy of any of your messengers, they came to Hatti, and when they went back to you, then it was I that sent greetings to you and had a present brought to you.

14-17 ...<sup>2</sup>

18-24 [...]<sup>3</sup> Herewith [I send on] to you your messengers (coming) [from] Hatti,<sup>4</sup> and I also send to my father my own messengers along with your messengers, and I send as your greeting-gift a present of 16 men.

25-29 I myself am desirous of gold. [M]y father, send me gold. Whatever you, the lord, my father, are desirous of, write me so I can send it to you.

NOTES

1. If the title "father" implies difference of age, Amenophis III would be the addressee of this letter (Kühne, p. 102, n. 508). The writer seems not to have been in the Hittite capital at the time of writing, but his scribe was either trained there or under its influence (cf. forms of AK, AZ, and, to some extent, NI).

2. Perhaps Zita wrote in this paragraph about his new station.

3. New paragraph uncertain.

4. On lines 18-20, see Kühne, p. 103, n. 512.

NOTES

1. EA 45 and 49, and almost certainly 46–48, are from Ugarit (Albright, BASOR 95 [1944] pp. 30ff.); the king addressed in EA 45 is probably Amenophis III (H. Klengel, Geschichte Syriens, pt. 2, p. 340; M. Drower, CAH<sup>3</sup>, 2/2, p. 133). On Ugarit's relationship with Egypt, see A. Altman, Bar Ilan, Annual of Bar Ilan University, Judaica and Humanities Series, 13 (1976) pp. 1ff. (in Hebrew; English summary, p. 17). Egyptian and, through borrowing, Hittite kings were called, literally, “My Sun,” as the embodiments of royalty, which was also symbolized by the winged sun-disk (I. Winter, Iraq 38 [1976] p. 4f.).

2. 2 [um-ma <sup>m</sup>alam-m]i-is-tam-[ri IR-ka] (Nougayrol, PRU 3, p. xxxvii).

3. 3 [a-na GIR.MEŠ]-ka 7 [ù 7 am-qut 4 lu-ú šul-mu a-na] UG[U . . .] 6 [ÉRIN.MEŠ pí-tá-i]-[ka . . .] (cf. EA 49:6). 7 [. . .] [ù-ú . . .]

4. [ù (a)-kán<sup>an</sup>-na-am (perhaps -(ma)) a-na-ku [aq-bi]: cf. kán-na-am-ma in EA 46:5 and (a)-kán<sup>an</sup>-na-ma at Boghazköy (CAD, A/1, p. 262).

5. Whether this was the Hittite king, as is usually held, remains uncertain (Klengel, Geschichte Syriens, pt. 2, p. 340 and p. 480, n. 6).

6. tu-še-bá-[al . . .] (Huehnergard, Akkadian, p. 254, n. 199).

NOTES

1. In view of EA 46:1, 9, 23, probably AB.BA.MEŠ = abbā'ē (all cases, Assyrianism).

2. On this clause see Huehnergard, Akkadian, p. 203; in the enclitic of ardum-ma, however, I see the meaning “also” rather than a marker of the predicate (ibid., p. 205).

3. Line 13: [al-ta-p]ar (ibid., p. 218, n. 31). Line 15: tanandin, not lū tanandin (Knudtzon).

4. [ša-nu-ti]: enough room? Huehnergard, ibid., p. 219, [ÉR.MEŠ-ka], “your servants,” has the same problem.

5. Since we must read ia in line 20 (see copy), and very probably [it-ti-i]a, ittišunu probably means, not “with them” (the messengers), but “to them” (the kings). This West Semitism, attested elsewhere (see EA 167:31), is otherwise unknown at Ugarit.

6. [ep-še-ku-ú ki]-ma ki-it-[ti?]. . . Huehnergard, ibid., p. 95 and n. 216, sees the short form kit as a possible option.

7. [gab-ba a]-wa-te.MEŠ, following Huehnergard, ibid., p. 219.

8. [. . .] x ša-al le-'a; certainly not y[šāš], the preformative y being unknown at Ugarit.

NOTES

1. Probably from the queen of Ugarit to the queen of Egypt. Liverani, Storia di Ugarit (see Introduction, n. 128), pp. 51f., has proposed to identify the former as the Pudu-Ḫeba (Pdgb) who wrote to king Niqmadda of Ugarit, thereby implying that this letter belongs in the time of Niqmadda II.

2. On the form of the gloss, see Huehnergard, Ugaritic, pp. 131f.; on the meaning, see M. Stol, On Trees, Mountains, and Millstones in the Ancient Near East, (Leiden, 1979), pp. 50ff.

Look, ask [Ḫa]ramassa.<sup>6</sup> And here[with] (I send)<sup>7</sup> as your greeting-[gift . . .] and one-hundred [. . .].

NOTES

1. <sup>m</sup>niq-ma-<sup>d</sup>IM, following Albright, BASOR 95 (1944) pp. 31f. Undoubtedly, Niqm-Adda II, the successor of Ammistamru I (EA 45), writing probably to Amenophis IV (Klengel, Geschichte Syriens, pt. 2, p. 344).

2. s[AL.UŠ]-š<sup>u</sup>: K[UR.MEŠ] (Knudtzon) is excluded, since if it occurs at all in the greeting, it does so towards the end; cf. EA 38. Note that in the other letters of the kings of Ugarit in which they wish well to the correspondent's wives, NÍTLAM (see EA 38, n. 1), never DAM, is used; cf. PRU 3, p. 4:7f.; Ugar. 5, no. 21:6'f.; no. 24:8f.; no. 28:7f.; no. 29:5f.; note also PRU 3, p. 5:7f. This seems to be a later practice; cf. Huehnergard, Akkadian, p. 329.

3. [gáb-bi mim-mu-ú ša LUGAL]: see the letters referred to in n. 2.

4. 2 DUMU šú-ḫa-[ri] 20 <sup>l(á)</sup>(DUMU) É.GAL (cf. line 22): at the beginning of line 20, the head of one horizontal is visible, and this is not compatible with D[UMU] (AHu, p. 616a).

5. On the fame of Egyptian medicine, see Edel, Ägyptische Ärzte und ägyptische Medizin am bethitischen Königshof: Neue Funde von Keilschriftbriefen Ramses' II aus Boğazköy (Opladen, 1976). According to Homer (Odyssey IV 231f.), Egypt was so rich in medicines that everyone was a physician, wise above all others.

6. [<sup>m</sup>ḫa]-ra-ma-sa: in line 26, sa-al-m[i] (-mi is not confined to direct discourse; see Huehnergard, Akkadian, p. 210), or simply sa-al (according to Gordon, probably only erasures follow), "ask" (on the confusion of sibilants, see Huehnergard, ibid., pp. 111ff.). This fits the context—i.e., a statement about the local situation, then an appeal to testimony (cf. EA 69:28f.; 89:41f.; 256:16ff.; 264:11f.; etc.). It follows, almost necessarily, that ]-ra-ma-sa is a personal name; assuming the confusion of sibilants again, cf. the Egyptian messenger in EA 20:33ff.

7. The scribe seems to have erased the verb, probably to correct an error, and then to have forgotten to restore it; cf. VAB 2/1, p. 318, note a.

1. Perhaps the queen, <sup>m</sup>t[a-ḫa-mu-un-š<sup>u</sup>], "The King's Wife"; on this title and its appearance in cuneiform, see Federn, JCS 14 (1960) p. 33. [And] may our lord come forth<sup>4</sup> (this) year.<sup>5</sup> Do not be negligent. You will see that they are loyal to the service of the king, my lord. And if my lord is not [w]illing to come forth himself, may my lord send one of his advisors<sup>6</sup> [to]gether with his troops and chariots. [ . . . ] . . .

NOTES

1. Since Thutmose III (Manahpiya) was not the grandfather of any of the kings possibly addressed in this letter, Akkadian ab(i) abi, "grandfather," must have here a more general meaning, undoubtedly through the influence of Hurrian ammati, "grandfather, ancestor" (Laroche, RHA 34 [1976] p. 47); see EA 59:11 and Campbell, Chronology, pp. 68f. Nougayrol, PRU 4, p. 33, n. 1, held to "grandfather."

2. tuppāte u ri-ik-[sa-te . . .]: cf. tuppi riksilrikilti, etc., at Alalakh, Boghazköy, and Ugarit (AHu, pp. 984f.); in view of the plural, probably riksāte. The Hittite king (Šuppiluliumaš) hardly sent the tablets (so Altman, Sbnoton, Annual for Biblical and Ancient Near Eastern Studies, 2 [1977] p. 30); he would have done so only as a final formality of the alliance, perhaps as a reward for demonstrated loyalty (PRU 4, p. 37:51f.). The rest of the restorations in this paragraph are free.

3. The shift to the first plural, "our lord," is perhaps because the writer thinks of his allies. Cf. below: "they are loyal."

4. li-iš-šf-'ma': cf. rev. 13, ana a-ši-i-im, but note ši, not šf.

5. I assume otiose MEŠ.

6. Perhaps "advisor" (milku) refers to one of the commissioners (rābišū) of Syro-Palestine; cf. EA 131:15, where "commissioners" is glossed by ma-lik. MEŠ.

The loyalty of Qatna

TEXT: C 4759 (12197, with join to former VAT 1596).

COPY: WA 196 (before join; no published copy of join).

Say<sup>1</sup> to the king of Egypt: Message of Akizzi, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Storm-god,<sup>2</sup> 7 times.

5-7 Inspect, my lord, his tablets.<sup>3</sup> [Hel you will find] the houses of Qatna belong to my lord a[lone].<sup>4</sup>

8-26, 27-31, 32-35 . . .<sup>5</sup>

36-41 [Fo]r 3 years,<sup>6</sup> my lord, when I wanted [to set out]<sup>7</sup> for my lord, the messengers did not know of a caravan (going to Egypt). They did not know of: am-mu-li(?) . . . to my [Jo]rd. Le[t them] come in [your] caravan.

42-43 Come, my [ . . . ] has abandoned me. : pu-ru x nu la-aš-ti-na-an.

44-46 I will [cert]ainly not rebel again[nst] the . . . of my lord or against Bir[u]aza.<sup>8</sup>

NOTES

1. qi-bi-ma, at the end of line 1, is omitted in the copy and overlooked by Knudtzon.

2. <sup>d</sup>IM: reading certain, and cf. <sup>d</sup>IM-<sup>d</sup>IM, also written Ad-di-<sup>d</sup>IM, "My Addu is Addu" (D. Charpin, AÉM 1/2, no. 303, note b). In this instance we perhaps have an adaptation, in local terms, of the usual title or epithet "My Sun" (EA 45, n. 1); cf. EA 53:6.

3. An unusually abrupt shift from second to third person in addressing the Pharaoh.

4. Interpreting the u as "resumptive" after direct object; see Wilhelm, AOAT 9 pp. 54ff. In É.HI.A the plural marker is probably otiose, and "house" is to be understood of the ruling dynasty; cf. EA 74:10; 89:48. End of line 6: [ . . . im/ta-am-ma]r.

5. At the end of line 31, išriqšunu, "he stole them," is probably a charge against the Hittite king (cf. EA 55:53ff.?).

6. [š]a KAM.3.MU?

7. a[t]-ta-nam-[mu-uš]: instead of at, ta or x-na is also possible (Gordon). In the rest of the paragraph, the language is most obscure. Glosses are Hurrian; word division is uncertain.

8. 46 [lu]-<sup>r</sup>u<sup>7</sup> lā ipattar (Gordon).

TEXT: BM 29820.

COPY: BB 37.

To N[am]h[ury]a, so[n] of the Sun, my lord: Me[ssa]ge of [A]k[i]zz[i], your servant. I fall [a]t the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and [7 times].

4-10 [My] lor[d, . . .] . . . has survived, and I will not de[ser]t.<sup>1</sup> [I belong] to my lord.<sup>2</sup> [And n]ow, m[y] lo[r]d, of my lord alone [am I the serv]ant in the place, the l[and of] Te[ššup]. [ . . . ] . . . now [in] the place of the god . . . [ . . . ]. And now, the king of Ḫat[ti] (<has> [s]ent<sup>3</sup> Aitukama out [against] me, and he seeks [my] li[fe].

11-16 And now [Aitukam]a has written me and said, “[Come] with me to the king of Ḫa[tti].” I said, “How could [I go<sup>4</sup> to the ki]ng of Ḫatti? I am [a ser]vant of the king, my lord, the king of Egypt.” I wrote and [ . . . ] to the king of Ḫatti.

17-23 . . . May my lord send him (it?) . . . [ . . . ] that he (it?) may come ag[ainst] Ai[tukama] so that my lord [ . . . ] he may fear your presence.

24-34 . . . My lord, Aitukama came and [he sent Up]u, the land of [m]y lord, [up] i[n flames]. He took the (ruler’s) house [ . . . ], and he took 200 d[isk]s . . ., and he took 3 [d]is[ks . . .], and he took [1 d]isk [ . . . ] from the house o[f] Birwaza.

35-39 My [l]ord, Teu[w]atti of L[apa]na and [A]rsawuya of Ruḫizzi place themselves at the disposition of Aitukama, and he sends [U]pu, the land of my lord, up in flames.

40-44 My lord, just as I love the king, m[y] lord, so too the king of Nuḫašše, the king of Nii, the king of Zinzar, and the king of Tunanab; all of these kings are my lord’s servants.

45-51 As far as the king, my lord, can, he co[m]es forth. But] it is being said, “The king, my lord, will not come forth.” [And so] may the king, my lord, send archers [that] they may co[m]e to this country. [Si]nce, my lord, these kings are ones who l[ov]e him, let a magnate of the king, my lord, just name their gifts so they can give them.

52-55 My lord, if he makes this land a matter of concern to my lord, then may my lord send archers that they may come here. (Only) messengers of my lord have arrived here.

56-62 My lord, if Arsawuya of Ruḫizzi and Teuwatti of Lapana remain in Upu, and Tašša remains in the Am[q], my lord should also know about them that Upu will not belong to my lord. Daily they write to Aitukama and say as follows: "Come, tak[e] Upu in its entirety."

63–70 My lord, just as Dimaški in Upu : ka<sub>4</sub>-di-bi (falls) at your feet, so may Qaṭna : ka<sub>4</sub>-di-bu-li-eš (fall) at your feet.<sup>5</sup> My lord, one asks for life before my messenger.<sup>6</sup> I do not fear [at al]l<sup>7</sup> in the presence of the archers of my lord, since the archers belong to my lord. If he sends (them) to me, they will en[ter] Qaṭna.

NOTES

1. la a-paṭ-[ṭar-(me)]: cf. EA 55:6. If Knudtzon's "not dead" is correct, a syllabic writing is unlikely; read, rather, la-a UG<sub>6</sub> [(:) mi-it].

The obverse of this tablet is extremely difficult, the traces are very faint, and therefore the translations are often extremely dubious.

2. [a-na-ku] a-na [š]a be-lī-ia: cf. EA 55:9.

3. ⟨ú⟩-š[e]-eš-ší: the West Semitic preformative is not used in this dialect, and therefore y[i]-iš-ší (Knudtzon) is excluded; besides, the form would be yušší (see EA 362:30).

4. ki-i a-[na-ku al-la-ak ...].

5. On the Hurrian glosses, see Goetze, RHA 5 (1939) pp. 109f., and Friedrich, WZKM 47 (1951) p. 213.

6. Obscure; perhaps "life" is the favorable reply of the king, declared in the messenger's presence or leading him, as it were, back to Qaṭna.

7. [mi-nu-m]e-e.

Too badly preserved for translation.<sup>1</sup>

NOTE

1. This letter is over 50 lines but, except for the greeting, very poorly preserved. Akizzi seems to repeat the charges of EA 53 against Aitukama and his allies, Teuwatti and Arsawuya. In line 51, perhaps Carchemish is mentioned.

A plea for troops

TEXT: BM 29819.

COPY: BB 36.

Say to Namḥurya,<sup>1</sup> the son of the Sun, my lord: Message of Akizzi, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord 7 times.

4–6 My lord, I am your servant in this place. I seek the path to my lord. I do not desert my lord.

7–9 From the time my ancestors were your servants, this country has been your country, Qaṭna has been your city, (and) I belong to my lord.

10–15 My lord, when the troops and chariots of my lord have come here, food, strong drink, oxen, sheep, and goats,<sup>2</sup> honey and oil, were produced for the troops and chariots of my lord. Look, there are my lord's magnates; my lord should ask them.

16–24 My lord, the whole country is in fear<sup>3</sup> of your troops and chariots. If my lord would take this country for his own country, then let my lord send this year his troops and his chariots so that they may come out here and all of Nuḥašše belong to my lord. If, my lord, the troops [c]ome [out], stay for 6 days in ... [...], then they would certainly take Aziru.<sup>4</sup>

25–27 If the troops and chariots of my lord do not come forth this year and do not fi[ght],<sup>5</sup> it (the country) will be in fear of Aziru.

28–37 ...

38–43 My lord knows it. My lord [...] his ancestors [...]. But now the king of Ḥa[tti] has sent them up in flames. The king of Ḥatti has taken his gods and the fighting men of Qaṭna.<sup>6</sup>

44–52 My lord, Aziru took men of Qaṭna, my servants, and has le[d] them away<sup>7</sup> out of the country of my lord. They now d[wel]l outside of the country of my lord. If it ple[ases] him, may my lord send [(the ransom) money] for the men of Qaṭna, and may my lord ransom them. ... [...], my lord, the money for their ransom, as much as it may be, so I can hand over the money.

53–66 My lord, your ancestors made (a statue of) Šimigi, the god of my father, and because of him became famous.<sup>8</sup> Now the king of Ḥatti has taken<sup>9</sup> (the statue of) Šimigi, the god of my father. My lord knows what the fashioning of divine statues is like. Now that Šimigi, the god of my father, has been reconciled to me, if, my lord, it pleases him, may he give (me) a sack of gold,<sup>10</sup> just as much as is needed,<sup>11</sup> for (the statue of) Šimigi, the god of my father, so they can fashion it for me. Then my lord will become, because of Šimigi, more famous than before.

NOTES

1. Despite the form (more like EN.ĤÉ), nam must be the sign intended.
2. Read ŪZ: so also, independently, Gordon and Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 54*, n. 47. Since it regularly follows "oxen" (GUD.MEŠ: see EA 124:50; 125:20; 161:21; 324:14; 325:16), it seems to be a replacive of "sheep and goats" (UDU.MEŠ = šenu; cf. EA 193:20). In comparable Egyptian texts the sequence is oxen, goats, sheep, with an alternative "sheep and goats" ("Kleinvieh"); see Edel, Geschichte und Altes Testament (see EA 30, n. 3), p. 52, n. 1.
3. i-pal-la-ḫé.
4. The reading in the break is most uncertain. The context seems to require that here there be a promise of victory over Aziru, followed in the next paragraph by a threat of the consequences if troops are not forthcoming. If so, then the construction is under Hurrian influence, ilteqe understood as passive, the subject Aziru, with the suffix -šunu expressive of ergative; see Kilmer, JAOS 94 (1974) p. 179; cf. lines 53ff.
5. iq-[te-ri-ib].
6. Perhaps "the god" (otiose MEŠ), since the next paragraphs seem to take up, in reverse order, the missing men and the missing god.
7. ip-<sup>r</sup>pa<sup>r</sup>-šū-nu: from nepū, "to restrain"?
8. On the syntax of the passage, see above, n. 4.
9. il-te-qè-šū-⟨nu⟩ (influence of line 43).
10. KUŠ? Cf. EA 29:26.
11. Von Soden, OLZ, 1968, col. 458, reads ba-aš-ši-im-ma, "like the very sand," but the ma- is certain and kī mašī(mma) is well attested (CAD, M/1, p. 347a).

NOTES

1. Provenience unknown, but lines 36-42 = EA 54:38-43, and therefore EA 56 must be closely associated with the Akizzi correspondence; see VAB 2/2, p. 1121.

NOTES

1. Perhaps addressed to an official ("magnate"; cf. EA 95, 238), but the "Great King" is more likely (VAB 2/1, p. 341, note h). Besides the script and the clay, this would indicate a northern provenience, for only EA 160-61 (Amurru), 260, and 317-18 (see below) begin with this title.

2. For Knudtzon's Qatihušupa, which rests partly on a misunderstanding of the glosses in EA 53:64-65, there is not sufficient space.

3. ÉRIN.MEŠ KASKAL + ?.[BAD?]; see EA 106, n. 10.

4. a-na-mi (-mi is a marker of direct discourse) me-e [ . . . ].

5. Rev. 3: reference to 'Abdi-Aširta or his son. Line 6: perhaps [iq-b]i ḥa-ia-mi lu x, "he (the king) said, 'Alive . . .'" (Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 17*, n. 49).

From the citizens of Tunip

TEXT: BM 29824.

COPY: BB 41.

To the king of Egypt, our lord: Message of the citizens of Tunip, your servant.<sup>1</sup> For you may all go well. And we fall at the feet of my lord.

5-8 My lord, thus says Tunip, your servant: Tunip—who ruled it in the past?<sup>2</sup> Did not Manahpirya : am-ma-ti-wu-uš (your ancestor) rule it?<sup>3</sup>

9-12 The gods and the . . . : na-ab-ri-il-la-an (?)<sup>4</sup> of the king of Egypt, our lord, dwell in Tunip, and he should inquire of his ancients : am-ma-ti (ancient) when we did not belong to our lord, the king of Egypt.

13-17 And now, for 20 years,<sup>5</sup> we have gone on writing to the king, our lord, but our messengers have stayed on with the king, our lord. And now, our lord, we ask for the son of Aki-Teššup from the king, our lord.<sup>6</sup> May our lord give him.

18-20 My lord, if the king of Egypt has given the son of Aki-Teššup, why does the king, our lord, call him back from the journey?

21-24 And now Aziru is going to hear that in Hittite territory a hostile fate has overtaken your servant, a ruler (and) your gardener.<sup>7</sup>

25-28 Should his (the king's) troops and his chariots be delayed, Aziru will do to us just as he did to Nii.

29-33 If we ourselves are negligent and the king of Egypt does nothing about these things that Aziru is doing, then he will surely direct his hand against our lord.

34-38 When Aziru entered Šumur, he did to them as he pleased, in the house of the king, our lord. But our lord did nothing about the(s)e things.

39-42 And now Tunip, your city, weeps, and its tears flow, and there is no grasping of our hand.

43-46 We have gone on writing to the king, our lord, the king of Egypt, for 20 years, and not a single word of our lord has reached us.<sup>8</sup>

NOTES

1. Probably, just as the city Irqata and its elders wrote to the king because their own king had been killed (EA 100; 75:25f.), so too Tunip (see lines 13-20). If one may speak of its "republican" organization (Landsberger, JCS 8 [1954] p. 61, n. 134), the temporary character of this arrangement should also be recognized.

2. The verb is not clear; it is taken here as ašābu, "to sit, dwell," but as said of kings, with the implication of occupying as sovereign, as in Northwest Semitic languages (O'Connor, BASOR 226 [1977] p. 22) and in the Old Syrian koine (ARMT 13, 144:5 and note; 14, 69:25 and note).

3. Thutmose III (see EA 51:4) took Tunip in his forty-second year.

4. The Hurrian gloss is unexplained; the word glossed is equally uncertain.

5. The 20 years here and in line 44 are round numbers meaning nothing more than "a long/considerable time" (Liverani, OA 10 [1971] p. 254, n. 2, also in Three Amarna Essays, p. 3; Wilhelm and Boese, High, Middle, or Low? pp. 90f.).

6. Aki-Teššup, probably the last king of Tunip, now dead, whose son had been taken to the Egyptian court for the training given to vassal princes; see Helck, Beziehungen, p. 155.

7. 24 NAM (šimtu) sar-ra-tu<sub>4</sub>: apparently a reference to a recent Egyptian defeat. What follows is very obscure. Ruler and gardener, high and low? one and all?

8. Note the framing of the complaint, "20 years . . . 20 years" (lines 13, 44), after the declaration of loyalty (lines 5-12). Lines 13-46 encompass four sections, each introduced by u inanna: the complaint (13-14); the request (15-20); the grounds for the request, the danger of Aziru (21-38); the complaint (39-46).

Loyal 'Abdi-Aširta

TEXT: VAT 343.

COPIES: WA 93; VS 11, 27.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Izre'el, Amurru, pp. 7ff.

[T]o the king, the Sun, my lord: [Mess]age of 'Abdi-Aširta,<sup>1</sup> your [ser]vant, the dirt under your feet. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord,

7 times and 7 times. 6–9 As I am a servant of the king and a dog of his house, I guard all Amurru for the king, my lord.<sup>2</sup> 10–13 I have repeatedly said to Paḥanate, my commissioner, “Take auxiliary forces to guard the lan[ds] of the king.”<sup>3</sup> 13–19 Indeed, all the [k]ing[s] under the king of the Hurri forces<sup>4</sup> seek to wrest the lands from my [. . .] and . . . [. . . o]f<sup>5</sup> the king, [my] lord, [but I g]uard th[em]. 19–29 [Look],<sup>6</sup> there is [Pa]ḥanate, [my] commissioner. May the king, the [Su]n, ask him if I do not guard Şumur and Ullassa. When my commissioner is on a mission of the king, the Sun, then I am the one who guards the harvest of the grain of Şumur and all the lands for the king, my Sun, my lord.<sup>7</sup> 30–32 May the king, [m]y lord, know me and entrust [m]e to the charge of Paḥanate, my commissioner.<sup>8</sup>

NOTES

1. The name of the goddess appears more frequently as Aširti/a; for a comparable fluctuation in the Old Babylonian period, see Küpper, L'iconographie du dieu Amurru dans la glyptique de la I<sup>re</sup> dynastie babylonienne (Bruxelles, 1961), p. 62, n. 1. In Ugar. 5, no. 9:20, read <sup>m</sup>IR-a-šir<sub>9</sub>-ti. Note, too, the fluctuation in the same letter (EA 137).

2. With Izre'el, Amurru, “zero-forms” (see the Introduction, n. 50) are not taken as preterites, though context does not rule out such an interpretation (Rainey, UF 7 [1975] p. 41of.).

3. The quotation may extend into the following lines.

4. The king of Mittani; on the expression, see Carruba, Or n.s. 40 (1971) pp. 212f.

5. [Š]U (qāti)-ia at the beginning of line 17 is improbable; space requires one large or two small signs. At the end of line 16, traces of ‘lib’-[b]i? Restore ù at the end of line 18? According to AHu, p. 1557, not ḥa-ba-lim, but ḥa-ba-ši = ḥabāši. Izre'el, Amurru, compares ḥābal in Ezekiel 18:16.

6. [a-n]a-ša-ar-š{u-(nu) a-mur}: following Rainey, UF 7 (1975) p. 411, n. 133.

7. Since logograms of verbs are extremely rare in EA, it is better to read the logogram as noun (infinitive) ešēd, and therefore as object (CAD, E, p. 340; Rainey, UF 7 [1975] p. 411). Despite the singular suffix on the verb, “all the lands” is perhaps also the object of the verb. The temporal clause “when my commissioner . . .” Izre'el, Amurru, joins with what precedes.

8. “Knowing” here and in similar passages implies taking cognizance of, showing concern for, someone, much as gods know their clients (CAD, I/J, pp. 27f., sects. 1e and 2a 2'; Dalley et al., The Old Babylonian Tablets from Tell Al Rimah (see EA 22, n. 19), no. 118:11, “the god who knows the house of your father”; see also Whiting, Old Babylonian Letters from Tell Asmar (see EA 14, n. 9), no. 11:54 and commentary, p. 51; in Old Assyrian, cf. Veenhof, JCS 30 [1978] p. 188). For a different view, according to which “to know” means “to acknowledge as a vassal,” see Campbell, in Frank Moore Cross et al., eds., The Mighty Acts of God: In Memoriam G. Ernest Wright (Garden City, 1976), p. 50, and the literature cited there. On the Hittite evidence, see Goetze, JCS 22 (1968) pp. 7f. With the request to be turned over to a commissioner, cf. EA 253:32ff.; it is perhaps a formulaic expression of loyalty, a renunciation of autonomy.

[. . .] my lord, [you sp]eak [like th]is: “Y[ou are an enemy of E]gypt, [and] you [committed a crime against E]gyptians.”<sup>1</sup> [May my lord listen. There were n]o men in Şumur [to gua]rd it [as he had ord]ered,<sup>2</sup> 10–20 and [Şum]ur [was afraid of]<sup>3</sup> the tr[oo]ps of Šeḥl[al]; there were no m[en i]n it to [gua]rd it. [So] I myself [has]tened to the rescue from Ir[qat], and I myself [c]ame [before] Şumur<sup>4</sup> and . . . your [. . .] from the hand of the troops of Š[eh]l[al]. If I had not been staying in [Irqat], if I had been staying where life was peaceful, then the troops of Šeḥl[al] [would certainly have s]ent Şumur and the palace up in fl[am]es.<sup>5</sup> 21–34 When I myself hastened to the rescue from Irqat and arrived in Şumur, there were no men that had stayed on in the palace. Here are the (only) ones that had stayed on in the palace: Šab-Ilu, Bišitanu, Maya, Arsawa.<sup>6</sup> There were (only) 4 men that had stayed on in the palace, and they said to me, "Save us from the hand of the troops of Šehlal." And so I sav[ed t]hem from the hand of the troops of Šehlal. [Of 4 per]sons I saved the lives.<sup>7</sup> 25 (was the number of those) whom [the troops of Še]h[la]l killed. 34–36 And when . . . [ . . . ] 37–45 [t]hey [fl]ed<sup>8</sup> from Šu-mur. I did not expel (them) [ . . . ] . . .<sup>9</sup> the mayors lie to you, [and y]ou keep on listening to them? [And Y]amaya,<sup>10</sup> when he writes [ . . . ], lies [t]o you, and you keep on listening [to] his [wor]ds. 45–55 As for Yamaya, (the troops) of Šehlal [came wi]th him. [They cam]e to seize [Šumu]r. He too[k . . . t]o seize the city itself . . .<sup>11</sup>

1. Free restoration: [at-t]a-[mi LÚ.KÚR] 7 [ša KUR mi]-iš-r[<sup>k</sup>]i te-[pu-uš lum-na] 8 [a-na LÚ].MEŠ . . . (cf. EA 106:32).
2. [li-iš-me] 9 [be-li ia]-nu . . . 10 [a-na na-š]a-ri-š[i ki-ma qa]-be-šu. Cf. kīma qabê šarri (EA 144:21, etc.); kīma qabêka (193:22); kīma ša qabêšu (302:18; 329:20).
3. [pal-ḥa-at] (beginning of line 12).
4. [i/a-pan-ni-m]a (BAN clear to Knudtzon); cf. panû (AHw, p. 822). An image of 'Abdi-Aširta placing himself between the troops of Šehlal and the besieged city? For a different reading and interpretation, see Izre'el, Amurru.
5. 'i-na' [I]rZI<sup>1</sup>-te.MEŠ: contrary to Knudtzon (VAB 2/2, p. 351, note c), i-na fits the traces very well (na like the na at the end of line 50 and on line 52), but the writing of išāti is unparalleled.
6. Reading of the first two names uncertain.
7. ú-wi(wa?)-i-mi: following Izre'el, Amurru.
8. [x-x in-na]-be-t[u-m]a.
9. Beginning of line 40: traces do not favor [mi-ni]m.
10. [ū mi]a-ma-a-ia (Albright, JNES 5 [1946] p. 13, no. 15). In line 45, collation is not decisive, but I could not see the vertical nor the heads of all three horizontals, all of which are so clear in VS 11 and would confirm Knudtzon's TUR.
11. Lines 50–55: very poorly preserved, with several very obscure forms.

NOTES

1. Na'aman, UF 11 (1979) pp. 676f., has demonstrated that EA 63–65 and 335 were all sent by 'Abdi-Ašarti, and all from the same place where Šuwardata resided. Schroeder, OLZ, 1915, cols. 293f., linked EA 65 and 335, and Na'aman shows the common scribal background of EA 63–65, 282–84, and 335: cf. VS 12, p. 74. Note also: the form of TU in EA 283:24 as well as 65 and 335; the form of GİR in 63–65 and 283; the writing da-na-at in 63:13; 64:9; 283:22, 31 (elsewhere: 144:23, 178:9; 271:10); the writing I GİR.MEŠ in 63:5; 64:3; 65:4. Na'aman makes 'Abdi-Ašarti the successor of Šuwardata.

Women for the king

TEXT: BM 29816.

COPY: BB 33.

PHOTOGRAPH: BB, pl. 11.

Say to the king, my lord: Message of 'Abdi-Ašarti, servant of the king. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times ((the feet of the king, my lord)) and 7 times, here and now,<sup>1</sup> both on the stomach and on the back. 8–13 May the king, my lord, be informed that the war against me is severe, and may it seem good to the king, my lord, to send a magnate to protect me. 14–23 Moreover, the king, my lord, has sent orders to me and I am heeding (them). I heed all the orders of the king, my lord. I herewith : ia-pa-aq-ti (send on) 10 women . . .<sup>2</sup>

NOTES

1. The meaning of mila (mili, milanna—or mila anna?), which with only two exceptions (EA 225:6; 330:7) is confined to EA 64–65, 282–84, is proposed on the basis of 283:15.
2. Things requested by the king, as the ten women seem to have been, are either readied (šūšuru: EA 99, 316, 325), brought (abālu: EA 327), sent (uššuru: EA 314), or given (nadānu: EA 242, 301), and hence the meaning assigned to yapaqtī (Krahmalkov, JNES 30 [1971] pp. 22f.; idem, BASOR 223 [1976] pp. 78f.; Rainey, UF 6 [1974] p. 300). The meaning of mi-Ki-tu remains obscure. If an adjective, then it should refer to some favorable quality of the women (Loretz and Mayer, UF 6 [1974] pp. 493f.), but the gloss marker in front of it may simply be an indication of a runover line (cf. the marker before EN at the end of line 16).

{Sa}ly [to the king, my lord]: Me[ssage of 'Ab]di-Aštarti,<sup>1</sup> your ser-va[nt]. I fall at the feet of my lord 7 times and 7 times, here and now, both on the stomach and on the back, at the feet of the king, my lord. 7-10 Since the king, my lord, has sent me orders, I am heeding (them). All the orders of {m}y king I h[ee]d. The cities of the king by {me} I guard, 11-15 and {I} prepare before the arrival of the arch[ers] of the kin]g, my lord, { . . . }.<sup>2</sup>

NOTES

1. Whatever the explanation of the writing, the sender of the letter must be the 'Abdi-Aštarti of EA 63-64. Instead of m[a]d-[r]a-INANNA, m'ab'-[d]i + d'INANNA; for the assumed ligature of di and dingir, cf. the extraordinary ligature of LUGAL + ri in line 6.

2. Only one line missing. Line 11: {i}-šu-ši-ru, a well-attested form, rather than an otherwise unattested infinitive šu-ši-ru (VAB 2/2, p. 1383). Line 12: {a}-na pa-ni . . . (see Introduction, n. 100).

NOTES

1. Free restoration. Line 8: {ù i-na-an-na d'UTU-š*i* li-iš]-al-mi.

2. The subject of the verb is not clear; it could even be first person. Most likely, it seems, is Aziru of Amurru; then the ruler of Byblos would be the perfidious brother of Rib-Hadda (cf. EA 137-38; see VAB 2/2, pp. 1144 ff.; Greenberg, Ḥab/piru, p. 41). The identity of the writer of the letter cannot be determined. The designation ḥalzuḥlu, "fortress commander," and the epithet "(my) Sun," written d'UTU-š*i* (elsewhere in EA, only in letters from Ugarit, EA 45, 46, 49, and from Nuḥašše, EA 51; regularly at Boghazköy), give the language and writing a northern cast.

3. DÜG.GA-nim = ṭābūni (see Introduction, n. 59).

4. Of the obverse there are preserved only three fragmentary lines; the entire reverse, except for a few signs and traces, is completely lost.

1. [mri]-ib-ḥa-ad-d[a]: last sign, d[u] possible, but not d[i]. On iqbi, see EA 74, n. 1.
2. la-a (i)a-qūl-me: a written over an erased i.
3. Gloss (read ma-na-rū?) unexplained (cf. ARMT 7, p. 320); the first sign is more like IZ than in the copy of VS. Youngblood, p. 37, proposes West Semitic mānaš < ma’naš (‘nš), “trouble,” which leaves the bound form before ša unexplained.

NOTES

1. Addressed to an Egyptian official.
2. gā[b-bu a-wa-ti]: for gabbu, cf. EA 82:32; 102:25; 106:49; 114:14. For the expression awata leqū, see EA 116:51.
3. dannū elīya, perhaps “are stronger than I,” or “are too strong for me.”
4. i-pi-iš 17 [SIG<sub>3</sub>]-q[a]: cf. line 39. If this is the correct reading, then the context argues that dumqa epēšu (itti) is “to make friendship”; cf. damqātu, “friendly relations,” and bēl dumqildamiqtī, “friend” (as political terms, see JNES 22 [1963] p. 175; Weinfeld, JAOS 93 [1973] pp. 191ff.).
5. Syntax obscure; reading ti-ul<sub>11</sub>-qé as third singular feminine passive (gender from nuḥuštu), since the context suggests no other singular subject, and note also nuḥuštu, nominative case.

1. Lines 1–7 (greeting): only a few signs preserved. Lines 8–16: reference to Magdalu (?—line 9), “to his son [ . . . ] . . . between the two of us” (15f.; be-ri-ku-ni, see EA 113:18).
2. “Meluḥḥa” designated Nubia, and Nubians and Nubian troops are mentioned frequently as part of the Egyptian army (EA 95:39f.; 108:67; 112:20; 117:81ff.; 132:56). They are also called men or troops of Kaši (Cush), and Meluḥḥa is probably identified as Kaši (EA 127:36; 132:56; 133:17). On the evidence of the Amarna letters, see Pintore, OA 11 (1972) p. 105; for other evidence on Nubians in the Egyptian army, see Schulman, Military Rank, Titles, and Organization in the Egyptian New Kingdom, Münchener ägyptologische Studien 6 (Berlin, 1964), pp. 22ff., 127ff.

Why have you been negligent, not speaking to the king so he will send archers to take Šumur? 16-22 What is 'Abdi-Aširta, servant and dog, that he takes the land of the king for himself? What is his auxiliary force that it is strong? Through the 'Apiru his auxiliary force is strong!<sup>4</sup> 23-27 So send me 50 pairs of horses and 200 infantry<sup>5</sup> that I may resist him in Šigata until the coming forth of the archers. 28-35 Let him not gather together all the 'Apiru so he can take Šigat[a] and Ampī, and [seize . . .] . . .<sup>6</sup> What shall I be able to d[o]? ## Of ambivalent Amurru

COPY: BB 15.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Youngblood, Amarna Correspondence, pp. 106ff.

To Amanappa, my father: Message of Rib-Hadda, your son. I fall at the feet of my father. May the Lady of Gubla establish your honor in the presence of the king, your lord. 6-11 Why have you been negligent, not speaking to the king, your lord, so that you may come out together with archers and fall upon the land of Amurru? 11-16 If they hear of archers coming out, they will abandon their cities and desert. Do not you yourself know that the land of Amurru follows the stronger party? 17-25 Look, they are not now being friendly to 'Abdi-Aširta. What will he do to them?<sup>1</sup> [And so] they are longing<sup>2</sup> day and night for the coming out of the archers, and (they say), "Let us join them!" All the mayors long for this to be done to 'Abdi-Aširta,<sup>3</sup> 26-33 since he sent a message to the men of Ammiya, "Kill your lord and join the 'Apiru."<sup>4</sup> Accordingly, the mayors say, "He will do the same thing to us, and all the lands will be joined to the 'Apiru." 33-38 Report this matter in the presence of the king, your lord, for you are father and lord to me, and to you I have turned. 39-45 You know my conduct when you were in [Š]umur; I am your [l]oyal servant. So speak to the king, [your] lord, that an auxiliary force be [s]en(t)<sup>5</sup> t[o] me with all speed.

NOTES

1. Perhaps "they are not friendly to (lit., love) 'Abdi-Aširta (because of) what he does to them."

2. tu-'ba-'ú-na: following Rainey, UF 6 (1974) p. 302. Traces of only one horizontal are visible, but ba fits the space better, and bu"ú is rather common in the Byblos letters (cf. esp. EA 70:26f.), whereas qu"ú, "to wait for," is otherwise unattested.

3. Though the language, ipēš (ipiš?) annūtu, "to do/the doing of these things," is ambiguous, the mayors need not be the agents of the actions longed for, and the passage hardly speaks of their joining 'Abdi-Aširta (Weber, VAB 2/2, p. 1158; Greenberg, Ḥabšpiru, p. 34; Liverani, RSO 40 [1965] p. 274, as if synonymous with nenpušu ana, "to be joined to"). Neither here nor in EA 74:26ff., 36ff.—a letter probably sent at the same time as EA 73 (note the reference to Amanappa in EA 74:51)—is there any suggestion that the local rulers had or foresaw any alternative to their death or expulsion. Recognizing, rather, that 'Abdi-Aširta had the same designs on them as on the ruler of Ammiya, they too desired a show of force by the Egyptians and an insurrection in Amurru.

4. Or "Kill your lord," and then they were joined to the 'Apiru." See also EA 74:26 and note.

Rib-Hadda says<sup>1</sup> to [his] lord, king of all countries, Great King, King of Battle:<sup>2</sup> May [the Lady] of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 5-10 May the king, the lord, know that Gubla, the loyal maidservant of the king since the days of his ancestors, is safe and sound. The king, however, has now withdrawn his support of his loyal city. 10-12 May the king inspect the tablets of his father's house (for the time) when the ruler in Gubla was not a loyal servant.<sup>3</sup> 13-19 Do not be negligent of your servant. Behold,<sup>4</sup> the war of the 'Apiru against (me) is severe and, as the gods of y[our] land [are alive], our sons and daughters (as well as we ourselves)<sup>5</sup> are gone since they have been sold in the land of Yarimuta for provisions to keep us alive. "For lack of a cultivator, my field is like a woman without a husband."<sup>6</sup> 19-22 All my villages that are in the mountains : ḥa-ar-ri or along the sea have been joined to the 'Apiru. Left to me are Gubla and two towns. 23-30 After taking Šigata for himself, 'Abdi-Aširta said to the men of Ammiya, "Kill your leader<sup>7</sup> and then you will be like us and at peace." They were won over, following his message, and they are like 'Apiru.<sup>8</sup> 30-38 So now 'Abdi-Aširta has written to the troops:<sup>9</sup> "Assemble in the temple of NINURTA,<sup>10</sup> and then let us fall upon Gubla. Look,<sup>11</sup> there is no one that will save it from u[s]. Then let us drive out the mayors from the country that the entire country be joined to the 'Apiru, . . .<sup>12</sup> to the entire country. Then will (our) sons and daughters be at peace forever. 39-45 Should even so the king come out, the entire country will be against him and what will he do to us?" Accordingly, they have made an alliance<sup>13</sup> among themselves and, accordingly, I am very, very afraid, since [in] fact there is no one who will save me from them. 45-50 Like a bird in a trap : ki-lu-bi (cage), so am I in Gubla. Why have you neglected your country? I have written like this to the palace, but you do not heed my words. 51-57 Look, Amanappa is with you. Ask him. He is the one that knows and has experienced the straits I am in. May the king heed the words of his servant. May he grant provisions for his servant and keep his servant alive so I may guard his [lo]yal [city], along with our L[ad]y (and) our gods, f[or you].<sup>14</sup> 57-62 May [the king] vis[it] his [land] and [his servant].<sup>15</sup> [May he] give thought to his land. Pac[ify yo]ur [land]! May it seem go[od] in the sight of the k[ing], my [lo]rd. May he send a [ma]n of his to stay this time so I may arri[ve] in the presence of the king, my lord. 62-65 It is good for me to be with you. What can I do by [my]self? This is what I long for day and night.

NOTES

1. On iqbi (ištappar, ištappar) as "Koinzidenzfall," see Introduction, sect. 5 and n. 81.

2. This epithet of the Egyptian king is confined to the letters of Rib-Hadda and appears only with the introductory form "Rib-Hadda speaks/writes." It was probably drawn from the epic, known by this name and attested at Amarna (EA 359), about the legendary Sargon of Akkad; see M.-J. Seux, Épithètes royales akkadiennes et sumériennes (see EA 1, n. 2), pp. 319f.

3. Or "whether the ruler in Gubla has not been a loyal servant."

4. šumma; see EA 35, n. 3.

5. qa-du-nu, meaning uncertain. If the preposition qadu, then it occurs only here in EA with a pronominal suffix (D. O. Edzard, in B. Hruška and G. Komoróczy, eds., Festschrift L. Matouš [Budapest, 1978], p. 86, n. 17); perhaps "together with some of our number" (the older generation; cf. Weber, VAB 2/2, p. 1159, "fellow-citizens")? In the parallel passages (EA 75:12; 81:39; 85:12; 90:37), the sequence is sons-daughters-wood (furnishings) of houses. Is qad(d)u the corresponding Canaanite word? S. Smith's idiosyncratic version of EA 74:13-17 (The Statue of Idri-mi [London, 1949], p. 34) is, as the parallels make perfectly clear, wrong. ARMT 22, 143:2, perhaps attests to a noun qadu (i-mi-iG qa-di-im), but its meaning is quite unclear.

6. On this proverb (also EA 75:15-17; 81:37f.; 90:42f.), with Mesopotamian and other parallels, see D. Marcus, JNES 5 (1973) pp. 281ff.; see also Lieberman, Hebrew Union College Annual 58 (1987) p. 162, nn. 20-21. On "plowing the field" in Sumerian literature see Sjöberg, JCS 29 (1977) p. 24, and on ittû, "seeder-plow," as a metaphor for father see Lambert, RA 76 (1982) p. 84. Later, in Greece, the metaphor belonged not only to literature (J. M. Edmonds, Elegy and Iambus, vol. 1, Loeb Classical Library, p. 427) but also to legal language (see the dictionaries under arotos, aroura, speirō).

7. The use of eṭlu, "(young, adult) male," if it is the correct reading ([E]N -la-ku-nu?), is without parallel in related or similar passages. It appears elsewhere in EA letters only in 29:154, probably as a distinction of age (cf. Ugaritic babḥūru = eṭlu, Ugar. 5, no. 137 ii 24'); for the reading, see Rainey, IEJ 19 (1969) p. 107, and Blau and Greenfield, BASOR 200 (1970) p. 17. Undoubtedly there is reference here to the murder of the ruler of Ammiya, who in EA 73:27 and 75:34 is called bēlu, "lord" (EN; cf. also EA 81:12), and, probably, in 140:11 is called šarru, "king." Unless, therefore, eṭlu implies here a certain sarcasm ("your young fellow"), it is probably meant to suggest authority. There is no evidence that the term could be used as a collective ("princes," Knudtzon; "chiefs," Greenberg, Ḥabḥpiru, p. 34, and Liverani, Rivista Storica Italiana 57 [1965] p. 324; "seigneurs" [also of EA 73:27; 81:12], Liverani, in Garelli, ed., Le Palais et la Royauté, p. 354).

8. With the possible exception of EA 67:16f., "like an/the 'Apiru," does not occur elsewhere. It is the narrative version of "like us" in 'Abdi-Aširta's speech, and it implies that, for Rib-Hadda, the followers of 'Abdi-Aširta and the 'Apiru were virtually indistinguishable (Greenberg, Ḥabḥpiru, p. 34).

9. On lines 30-41, see G. Mendenhall, JNES 6 (1947) pp. 123f.; see also JCS 7 (1953) p. 78, n. 4.

10. The absence of URU (ālu), "city, town," before É NIN.URTA, or of the determinative KI after it, argues against a place-name Bīt-NIN.URTA (cf. EA 290:16). The temple was presumably the scene of the oath mentioned in line 42. The Canaanite god referred to by Sumero-Akkadian NIN.URTA is not known; at Ugarit, Ninurta = Gašaru (JCS 31 [1979] p. 72, n. 23).

11. See n. 4.

12. ù [k]i-tu ti-in-(ni-pu-uš)-ma, "and let an alliance be made (for all the lands)": Albright in Mendenhall (see n. 9).

13. Lit. "placed an oath." NAM.RU, māmītu, "oath" (JCS 7 [1953] p. 78, n. 5), but perhaps not a mistake for NAM.(NE).RU; cf. NAM.RU.MA., PBS 1/2, 72:25; Nougayrol, JCS 1 (1947) p. 334, n. 28; Falkenstein, Das Sumerische (Leiden, 1964), p. 26, 4.b; Krecher, AOAT 1, pp. 193f.

14. a-[na ka-ta,]; following Rainey, UF 7 (1975) p. 414. Note that adi in the meaning "(along) with" occurs elsewhere in EA only in the Jerusalem letters (but see EA 92:42 and note).

15. yi-da-ga[l LUGAL] 58 [KUR]-šu ù [IR-šu]: cf. EA 85:61ff.; 116:62f. The form yidaggalu (Knudtzon) may not serve as an injunctive, which would be yidaggal or yidaggala.

Rib-Hadda [says t]o his lord, k[ing of all countries]: May the Lady of [Gubla] grant power t[o my lord]. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, [7] times and 7 times. 6-14 [May]<sup>1</sup> the king, my lord, know th[at] Gubla, the maidservant [of the king] from ancient times, is safe and sound. The war, however, of the 'Apiru agai[nst] me is severe. (Our) sons and daughters and the furnishings of the houses are gone, since they have been sold [in] the land of Yarimuta for ou[r] provisions to keep us alive. 15-21 "For the lack of a cultivator, my field is like a woman without a husband." I have written repeatedly to the palace because of the illness<sup>2</sup> afflicting me, [but there is no one] who has looked at the words that [keep arriving].<sup>3</sup> [May the king] give heed [to] the words of [his] servant. 22-25 ... 25-29 The 'Apiru killed<sup>4</sup> Ad[una], the king of Irqata, but there was no one who (s)aid<sup>5</sup> anything to 'Abdi-Aširta, and so they go on tak[ing]g (territory for themselves).<sup>6</sup> 30-34 Miya, the ruler of Arašni, seized Ar[d]ata, and just now the men of Ammiya have killed the(ir) lord. I am afraid. 35-48 May the king be informed that the king of Ḥatti has seized all the countries that were vassals<sup>7</sup> of the king of Mitta(ni).<sup>8</sup> Behold, [he] is king of Naḥ(ri)ma [and] the land of the Gre[at] Kings, [and] 'Abdi-Aširta, [the servant] and dog, is tak[ing the land of the king]. Send arc[bers]. Severe is ... 49-50 [and sen]d a man to [Gubla] that I may [...] ... his word[s].

2. Perhaps "the distress"; cf. mariš (ana) iyāši (EA 103:7; 362:59), maršāku (EA 106:23), and EA 95, n. 4.
3. 19 [ia-nu]; 20 [ti-ik-šu]-du-na. Cf. kašādu said of words (EA 59:46; 136:22; 221:14), of requests (EA 82:16), of the breath of the king (EA 100:40; 145:19; 146:12), and of tablets (EA 100:24; 155:55?).
4. [L]Ú.MEŠ GA<sup>7</sup>Z<sup>7</sup>(?).ZA(?).ME[Š] (cf. EA 67:17); i-du-ku-š[u], last sign either šu or na, but a preterite is expected (cf. VAB 2/I, p. 1519).

7. The context requires that the lands be associated in some way with Mittani(?); cf. Goetze, CAH 2/2, p. 8, "all the lands affiliated(?) with the king of the Mita(nni) land." Very hesitantly, it is proposed that KU.TI.TI is a syllabic writing for GÚ.(UN).DI<sub>6</sub>.DI<sub>6</sub>, ābilāt bilti, lit. "bearers of tribute."
8. If KUR mi-it-ta refers to Mittani, note not only the omission of ⟨na⟩ or ⟨ni⟩, but also the writing with double t, unparalleled in nine other writings of the name in the Byblos letters. See Wilhelm, ZA 63 (1973) p. 71, line 16, KUR me-[a.K]I, and commentary pp. 73f.; Görg, ZA 76 (1986) p. 308.

Of ambition and arrogance

TEXT: VAT 324.

COPIES: WA 74; VS 11, 35.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Youngblood, Amarna Correspondence, pp. 168ff.

Rib-Hadda says to the king of all countries, Great King, King of Battle: May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 7-16 May the king, my lord, know that the war of 'Abdi-Aširta against me is severe. [H]e wants to take [for himself]<sup>1</sup> the two cities that have remained to me. [Mo]reover, what is 'A[bd]i-Aš[ir]ta, the dog, that he strives to [ta]ke all the cities of the king, the Sun, [fo]r himself? Is he the king of Mittana, or the king of Kaššu, that [h]e strives to take the land of the king for himself? 17-29 He has just gathered together all the 'Apiru against Šigata [and] Ampī, and [h]e himself has taken these two cities. [I s]aid, "There is no place where [me]<sup>n2</sup> can enter against him. He has seized [...] . . . ,<sup>3</sup> [so] send me [a garris]on of 400 men a[nd] x pairs of h[or]ses [with all speed]." It is [thus that I keep writing to the pal]ace, but [you do not rep]ly [to me].<sup>4</sup> 30-37 [...] . . . For years archers would come out to inspect [the coun]try, and yet now that the land of the king and Šumur, your<sup>5</sup> garrison-city, have been joined to the 'Apiru, you have done nothing. 38-46 Send a large force of archers that it<sup>6</sup> may drive out the king's enemies and all lands be joined to the king. Moreover, you are a great lord. You must not neglect this message.

NOTES

1. [a-na ša-a-šu]: contrary to Knudtzon (VAB 2/I, p. 380, note h) and Schroeder's copy, I could see no certain traces of signs that exclude this obvious restoration (lines 14, 16; EA 71:19; 74:24; 81:9; etc.).
2. [LÚ.MEŠ]-tu<sub>4</sub>: for this writing see EA 106:39.
3. [x-S]AG : ša PI-x-Za: x = BAR, not at all certain. Is this the name of a hill or mountain ([HUR.S]AG) the capture of which has made 'Abdi-Aširta inaccessible? Cf. also EA 71:31ff.
4. [ki-ma ar-ḫi-iš a-n]u-ma [ki-a-ma] 28 [aš-tap-ru a-na] 'É'. [GA]L ù [la-a] 29 [tu-te-ru-n]a [a]-wa(text:UD)-t[a, a-na ia]-šī: for the restorations, see the following: kīma arḫiš—EA 73:45; 88:25; 112:22f.; etc.; anumma . . . ana ekalli—EA 74:49f.; 85:6; 89:7f.; 118:8f.; 122:53f.; 132:51; u lā tuerruna . . .—EA 81:22f.; 83:7f., 47f. See also Youngblood, Amarna Correspondence, pp. 174f.
5. The pronominal suffix is -kunu, probably a plural of majesty.
6. I assume that ÉRIN.MEŠ pišāti is the subject, construed as third feminine singular (cf. EA 103:55f.; 127:38f.; 129:33ff.; 131:40; see also JCS 6 [1952] p. 78), with a shift from masculine singular (rabā, line 39; cf. also EA 77:27). Also possible is "that you may drive out," the writer shifting between second and third person in addressing the king.

1. 3 amqut d[a-ma-na DINGIR ša LUGAL] 4 EN-ka ù dN[IN ša URU g]ub<sup>b</sup>-[la] 5 ti-di-(nu)-mi: cf. EA 71:4f.; 87:5f.; 95:3ff. The clear gub-la of Schroeder's copy agrees neither with Knudtzon's collation nor with mine.

2. sinnu, despite šinnu in lines 10 and 13, is hardly ivory (SSDB, p. 154; Or n.s. 29 [1960] p. 17; Youngblood, p. 183, followed by Rainey, UF 5 [1973] p. 243, n. 49). Ivory was readily available in Egypt from the south and was not likely to have been the object of a special request. Besides, if at the end of line 11 the correct reading is [UR]UDU (erû), "copper," then ivory is excluded. For sinnu, see AHu, p. 1048.

3. x-[(ti)]-i-de: x, not mi (see VAB 2/1, p. 385, note d), and not ul (Rainey, UF 5 [1973] p. 243; besides, the negative ul is always written ú-ul in the Byblos letters); lut, (LID), for lū tīde?

NOTES

1. Whatever the meaning of the expression "to do/make a city" elsewhere, here "to fortify" seems clearly excluded.

NOTES

1. Paleographically, [URU gub-l]a is the more probable reading; see Knudtzon's remarks, VAB 2/1, p. 393, note d). Certainly the "lord" to be killed is Rib-Hadda; cf. EA 74:26 and n. 7.

2. ar-<nu>, or perhaps an abbreviation (CAD, A/2, p. 299). For arnu, "traitor, criminal," cf. LÚ-lu ar-nu (EA 138:104), ar-<na>? LUGAL (EA 138:21), and ar-<nu>? LUGAL (EA 139:40). The translation follows Rainey, UF 5 (1973) p. 252.

A threat to abandon Byblos

TEXT: BM 37648.

COPY: Scheil, Mémoires, p. 306.TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: JCS 2 (1948) pp. 241f.; Youngblood, Amarna Correspondence, pp. 224ff.

Say to Am[a]nappa, my father: Message of Rib-Hadda, your son. I fall at the feet of my father. 5–13 I have said to you again and again, “Are you unable to rescue me from ‘Abdi-Aširta? All the ‘Apiru are on his side, and as soon as the mayors hear anything, they write to him. Accordingly, he is strong.” 14–22 You ordered me again and again, “Send your man to me at the palace, and as soon as the request arrives, I will send him along with an auxiliary force, until the archers come out, to protect your life.” But I told you, “I am unable to send (him). 23–30 Let not ‘Abdi-Aši[rta] hear<sup>1</sup> about it, or who would rescue m[e] from him?” You sa[id]<sup>2</sup> to me, “Do not fea[r]!” You ordered me again and again, “Send a ship to the land of Yarimuta so silver and clothing can get out<sup>3</sup> to you from them.” 31–41 All the men whom you gave me have run off. The (legal) violence done to me is your responsibility,<sup>4</sup> if you neglect me. Now I have obeyed. Is it not a fact that I sent my man to the palace, and he gave orders to a man and he attacked me with a bronze dagger. I was stabbed 9 times!<sup>5</sup> He is strong through this crime, and from another crime what could rescue me? 41–46 If within two months there are no archers, then I will abandon the city, go off, and my life will be safe while I do what I want to do. 47–52 Moreover, do not you yourself know that the land of Amurru longs day and night for the archers? Has it not been distressed<sup>6</sup> : na-aq-ša-pu (have they not been angry)? So tell the king, “Come with all haste.”

NOTES

1. On the form yi-iš-ma, see Or n.s. 29 (1960) p. 4, n. 4.
2. Perhaps ta-a[q-bu], “you keep saying to me.”
3. Otherwise, JCS 2 (1948) p. 247.
4. ḫabālīya elīka is very reminiscent of Sarah’s reproach to Abraham, br’mašî ‘alēkā (Gen. 16:5), of which it could be the literal translation. Perhaps Rib-Hadda used an expression of contemporary customary law.
5. See EA 81:24. Rib-Hadda thinks that it is self-evident that ‘Abdi-Aširta is the villain; cf. EA 85:8 and n. 1.
6. The reading ú-ul ta-ša-aš must be retained, and ú-ul-ta-ša-aš (CAD, A/2, p. 424b) rejected for three reasons: (1) there is not a single instance of the first syllable in polysyllabic words written V-VC in the Byblos letters; (2) there are only two quite dubious examples of št > lt in the Byblos letters (EA 92:39; 130:41); (3) if māt amurri is singular, then it is feminine and the form would be tu-ul-ta-ša-aš.

[R]ib-[Hadda sa]ys to his [lord], king of all countries, Great King: May the [L]ady of Gubla grant p[owe]r to the king, my lord. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 7–14 Why do you not send back word to me that I may know what I should d[o]? I sent a man of mine to my lord, and both his horses were taken. A second man—a man of his—was taken, [and] a tablet of the king was not put [i]n my man’s hand. Listen t[o m]e! 15–20 Wh(y) are you negligent so that your land is being taken? Let it not be said in the days of the commissioners, “The ‘Apiru have taken the entire country!” Not so shall it be said in the days (of the commissioners), or you will not be able to take it back.<sup>1</sup> 21–29 Moreover, I have written for a garrison and horses, but they are not given. Send back word to me, or like Yapaḫ-Hadda and Zimredda I will make an alliance with ‘Abdi-Aširta and stay alive. Moreover, now that over and above everything else Šumur and Bit-Arḫa have defected, 30–37 may {yo}u put me<sup>2</sup> in Yanḫamu’s charge so he will give me grain to eat th(at)<sup>3</sup> I may guard for him the king’s city. May the king also give the order and release my man. His family are very upset with me, (saying) day and night, “You gave our son to the king.” So release him, especially him.<sup>4</sup> 38–42 (The other is a citizen of Ibirta.) He is, I assure you,<sup>5</sup> in Yanḫamu’s house. Moreover, tell Ya(n)ḫamu, “I declare Rib-Hadda to be in your charge and whatever (ha)ppens<sup>6</sup> to him to be yo[ur] responsibility.” 43–51 May the troops on campaign not fall upon me. And so I write, “If you do not tell him this,<sup>7</sup> I will abandon the city and go off. Moreover, if you do not send word back to me, I will abandon the city and go off, together with the men who are loyal to me.”<sup>8</sup> 51–57 Also for your information:

Ummaḥnu (along with Milkuru, her husband), the maidservant of the Lady [of] Gu[bl]a, . . . p[ow]erful [pray]s [t]o the L[ady of Gubla for the king, my lord].<sup>9</sup>

NOTES

1. Perhaps the quotation begins with "in the days of the commissioners" (Knudtzon; Greenberg, Ḥab/piru, p. 36). The context seems to require that with the second "in the days" we supply "of the commissioners" (lost by vertical haplography?) or perhaps "in (their) days." There is no evidence that the phrase of itself might mean "in (future) days" (Knudtzon, followed by Greenberg). Line 20: ū, "or," as in line 24; ti-li-ū, second singular (Knudtzon), not third plural (Or n.s. 29 [1960] p. 4, as if ti-li-ū-na).

2. [t]a<sub>3</sub>-din-ni: very probable reading; certainly not [t]a (Or n.s. 29 [1960] p. 6, n. 3). Considerations of form (cf. ta-di-en, EA 91:17) and the Byblos syllabary rule out [t]ū.

3. Read ana a-ka-li-ia ŠI (beginning of a partially written ū): cf. the pronominal suffixes in EA 79:33; 105:85; 109:41; 125:18, 26, 30.

4. šūi emphasizes the pronominal suffix of ušširašu (SSDB, p. 22). Perhaps "release him, too," for if I understand the following lines, reference is to the man whose detention is mentioned in line 12 and who has made his way to Yanḥamu's house.

5. alla-mi (and variant forms) must begin a sentence or be preceded only by u, "and." On this particle see Rainey, UF 20 (1988) pp. 214ff. For a possible occurrence in Old Babylonian, see Durand, RA 82 (1988) p. 106:40 (a-li, "certes").

6. (en)-ni-ip-šu: following Rainey, UF 5 (1973) p. 252.

7. ana šāšu, at the end of line 44, is written slightly smaller and higher than the rest of the line. It was probably inserted later where it could fit, and not at the end of line 45, where it belongs and alone makes sense. Reference is back to lines 39–40, "Say to Yanḥamu."

8. Lit. "who love me."

9. Ummaḥnu, who also appears in the next three letters, is always identified as the maidservant of the goddess and was probably a priestess. This is the basis for my very tentative reconstruction of her activities in this and the following letters. In line 55 I assume some form of karābu, "to pray" ([ti-ik-tar]-ra-b[u]?).

[S]ay [to] the king, my lord, Sun of all countries: Message of Rib-Hadda, your servant, [fo]otstool for your feet. I fall at the feet of the Sun, my lord, 7 times and 7 times.<sup>1</sup> Furthermore, is the activity of 'Abdi-Aširta, the dog, with the result that the lands of the king are joined to him, pleasing in the sight of the king, my lord, and so he has done nothing for his lands?<sup>2</sup> 11–21 Now, indeed, Šumur, my lord's court and [h]is bedchamber, has been joined to h[i]m. He has slept in the bedcha[mber of] my [lord],<sup>3</sup> and opened the tre[asure] room of my [lo]rd, and yet he (the king) has done nothing. Who is he, the traitor<sup>4</sup> and dog, [that he is s]trong? Moreover, as to men's [say]ing in the pre[sence of my] [lord], "Gubla [has been seiz]ed; [its ruler is distr]aught,"<sup>5</sup> 21–31 my lord<sup>6</sup> should know (that) they have [not tak]en Gubla. Those in authority [have gone off . . .] and the situation of the lands of my lord is ve[ry] bad.<sup>7</sup> Moreover, may the king, [m]y lord, send his commissioner, who is strong, al[ong with troops],<sup>8</sup> to guard the city of my lord so that I for my part may (re)build the brickwork<sup>9</sup> and serve my lord, the Sun of all countries. 31–38 May my lord send men to take the possessions of my Adonis<sup>10</sup> to the king, my lord, lest that dog take the possessions of your god.<sup>11</sup> [Or] would it be pleasing that he had seized Gubla? [Loo]k, Gubla is like Ḥikuptaḥ to my lord!<sup>12</sup> 38–44 Moreover, as 'Abdi-NINURTA, the man I sent<sup>13</sup> with Puheya, is . . . Send him (back) to yo[ur] servant. ## NOTES

1. "All countries," written KUR.KI.DIDLI.ḪI.A; KUR.KI.DIDLI occurs elsewhere only in EA 106. Note also: (1) gištappu, "footstool," in the Byblos letters only in EA 84 and 106; (2) the only precativ forms of uššuru in these letters, lu-wa-šiši-ra(-am), in EA 84:26, 31; 106:26, 36, 42; (3) īde with precativ force, in these letters only in EA 84:21 and 106:47.

2. KUR.KUR.KI-šu: following Youngblood, Amarna Correspondence, p. 257; for the writing, see EA 121, n. 4.

3. É(bīi)-u[r-ši BE]-ia: following Youngblood. bīi urši, also PRU 4, p. 109:5; Nougayrol, "maison privée." The sleeping quarters and the treasury were areas reserved to those most intimate and/or most trusted.

4. LÚ.LUL remains the most likely reading. LÚ.LUL = sarru (AHw, p. 1030; CAD, S, p. 180), which at Byblos (also EA 185–86) seems to be replaced by šāru. Perhaps LÚ.LUL = narru; cf. narru = sarru, and EA 94:60, 63.

5. 20 [ša-ab-ta]-at-mi (cf. line 36); 21 [LÚ-(š)u] ma-an]-ga (cf. EA 106:15).

6. be-lī-i[a].

7. [pa(ā)ru/pa(ā)rat] qī-ip-tu; cf. qīptu = qīpu at Boghazköy (AHw, p. 922). The authorities would be the Egyptian officials in Šumur. End of line 24:

ma-ri-iš ma-g[al]: following Youngblood (cf. EA 95:41; 103:7; 114:50; 116:54).

8. qa-d[u ÉRIN.MEŠ]: following Youngblood.

9. SIG<sub>4</sub> (libittu)?

10. The pronominal suffix (my Adonis) perhaps reflects Byblian 'adōnai (suggestion of Frank M. Cross).

11. DINGIR.MEŠ very often has a singular referent and here seems best referred to Adonis.

12. This may be a saying (also EA 139:8) going back to much earlier times when Byblos was a very important port for the Egyptians and Memphis was the capital of Egypt.

Nothing to eat

TEXT: VAT 1626.

COPIES: WA 48; VS 11, 42.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Youngblood, Amarina Correspondence, pp. 264ff.

Sa[y to the king], my lord, the Sun: [Mes]sage of Rib-Hadda, your servant. I fal[l] at the feet of my lord 7 times and 7 times. May [the Lad]y of Gubla grant [pow]er to the king, my lord. 6–15 Though I keep writing like this to the king, my lord, he does not heed my words. Since he has attacked me<sup>1</sup> 3 times this year, and for two years I have been repeatedly robbed of my grain, we have no grain to eat. What can I say to my peasantry? Their sons, their daughters, the furnishings of their houses are gone, since they have been sold in the land of Yarimuta for provisions to keep us alive. 16–22 May the king, my lord, heed the words of his loyal servant, and may he send grain in ships in order to keep his servant and his city alive.<sup>2</sup> May he grant 400 men and 30 pair[s of h]orses, as were given to Su[r]a[t]a,<sup>3</sup> that they may guard the city for you. 22–32 As to Yanḥamu's having said, "I [ga]ve grain to Rib-Hadda, [and I would g]ive [...] : ḥu-ta-ri-ma (?) [...] g[rai]n for 40 men." W[ha]t did he give m(e)? I deposited the payment for them with<sup>4</sup> Yapaḥ-Hadda. Look, P[uh]leya is with<sup>5</sup> you; ask him to tell the whole story in your presence. 33–39 May it be pleasing in the sight of the king, my lord, and may he give grain that is pro[du]ced in the land of Yarimuta. What used to be given in Šumur, may it now be [g]iven in Gubla, [so that] we may have provisions until you gi[ve thou]ght<sup>6</sup> to your city. 39–50 Moreover, [as the kin]g, my lord, li[ves], truly my men are lo[yal to me].<sup>7</sup> 'Abdi-Aširta and the 'Apiru have gone t[o] Yapaḥ-Hadda in [Beiru]t so [an alliance] might be formed.<sup>8</sup> [As]<sup>9</sup> there is no one in [your] city, send a garrison [to pro]tect [y]our land, lest your [city] be seized. Listen to me. [Te]ll Yanḥamu to [tak]e the money [...] . . . for the people of [Gu]bla in the land of Yarimuta. 51–63 Moreover, the king of (Mi)ttana came out as far as Šumur, and though wanting to mar[ch] as far as Gubla, he returned to [h]is own land, as there wa[s n]o water for him to drink. I keep writing like this t[o] the p[al]ace for what [I] need. [W]hy do you not reply, "What my servant [re]quests is available," or "is not avail[able],"<sup>10</sup> so I may know [wh]at I should do [un]til the king ar[riv]es and visits his loy[al] servant? 63–74 Who is 'Abdi-Aširta, the servant and dog, that they [men]tion his name in the presence of the king, my lord? Just let there be one man<sup>11</sup> whose heart is one with my heart, and I would drive 'Abdi-Aširta from the land of Amurru. Moreover, since your father's return from Sidon, from that time the lands have been joined to the 'Apiru. Accordingly, I have nothing. 75–87 May the king heed the words of his servant; may he [g]ive men to guard his [c]ity, lest he gather together all the 'Apiru and they seize [the city]. At [thi]s time send a [large]<sup>12</sup> force that they may drive him f[rom] the land of Amurru. When the commissioner of the k[ing] was wi]th us, it was to hi[m] that [we used to writ]e; we cannot write t[o] hi]m (now). Umma[ḥnu—along with] her [hus]band Milkuru—the maidservant of the La[dy] of Gub[la], as truly as the king [li]ves, i[n . . .] . . . from the hand of the magna[te, to] the Lad[y . . .].

NOTES

1. The subject is, of course, 'Abdi-Aširta; see EA 82:37 and n. 5.
2. Instead of İR-šū ù URU-šū, Knudtzon's reading, which makes sense and is followed here, the copy of VS 11 offers İR-šū a-na ia-šū, which makes no sense. Not collated.
3. Undoubtedly the ruler of Akka; see EA 232 and cf. EA 88:46ff.
4. Rainey, UF 20 (1988) p. 213, proposes i-na (<qa-at>), but an underlying Byblian bi of proximity or accompaniment ("using the services of") could explain the use of ina.
5. On it (also EA 114:46; 130:24) as an abbreviation of itti, not a reflex of Northwest Semitic 'et, see Huehnergard, Ugaritic Vocabulary, p. 111.
6. ti-m[a-la-k]u (Knudtzon) is without parallel (cf. EA 94:12; 104:16; 114:48), and for ti-m[a-li-k]u (VAB 2/2, p. 1591) there probably is not enough room. Read ti-š[a-i-l]u, "you inquire (about)"? (Cf. EA 89:40.)
7. It is doubtful that Rib-Hadda would admit that those he identifies as "my men" are all loyal to 'Abdi-Aširta (so Knudtzon); cf. EA 83:50f.; 137:46ff.

Hence ra-[i-mu-ni/ia]. On adi, “truly,” see AHu, p. 13a, and ARMT 13, p. 165, commentary on 44:8.

8. Very tentatively, 41 ... LÚ.MEŠ G[AZ al-ku] 42 [a-na ma-ḥa]r <sup>m</sup>ia-pa-ab-<sup>d</sup>IM i-na 43 [URU be-ru]-ta ù tu-pa-šu [ki-tu]; cf. EA 83:24.

9. [a-nu-ma]; end of line, URU-[ka ù].

10. 57 [a-na mi]-ni l[a-a t]u-te-ru 58 [a-wa-ta<sub>3</sub>] i-ba-š<sub>3</sub>i-mi ù i-ia-n[u]: l[a, in view of parallels (EA 81:23; 83:7, 45f.), despite Knudtzon’s legitimate doubts. If the traces (missing in VS 11 copy, but still visible) described by Knudtzon are not n[u] and do not belong to the end of line 58, I cannot explain them.

11. Probably in the sense of “ruler”; cf. EA 74:12.

12. Room for only one (fairly large) sign: cf. EA 76:39.

2. [ta/ti-š]a-s<sub>3</sub>i<sub>17</sub>: as if from šasû; if from aššû (Knudtzon), the final vowel is a difficulty, as is the unparalleled use of ana (cf. EA 82:50; 83:23; 93:4; 122:39). Perhaps also to be considered is [ta/ti-t]a-š<sub>3</sub>i (IGI) (haplography), “it has lifted (its) face to you (in hope).”

[To] Amanappa, m[y] l[or]d: Message of Rib-Hadda, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord. May Aman and the Lady of Gubla establish your honor in the presence of the king, your lord. 8–14 Why did you lead me astray, saying, “Send your messenger here to me before the king so he may give you troops and chariots as a help to you to guard the city”? 15–24 So I listened to your words, and I sen[t (him)],<sup>1</sup> and he came out empty-handed. Then he heard that<sup>2</sup> there were no troops with him, and as a result Baṭruna was join[ed] to him. He has stationed the ‘Apiru and chariots there, and they have not<sup>3</sup> moved [f]rom the entrance of the gate of Gub[la]. 25–31 [Loo]k, urge the king, my lord, with loud cries!<sup>4</sup> Let an elite force, [together with] chariots, [advance]<sup>5</sup> with you that I may . . . 4. The reading ku-ru-ub (JNES 8 [1949] p. 124) is wrong, and Knudtzon's qú-ru-ud (also EA 69:30) is right. For the meaning, cf. qardu, "one who shouts, is noisy," and see the remarks of Civil, JNES 43 (1984) pp. 294f.
5. [a-sa-a]m (JNES 8 [1949] p. 125) is almost certainly wrong.
6. Not enough room for uṣur ramānka, "guard yourself," but the following lines favor such a meaning here; cf. Youngblood, p. 304.

[Ri]b-Had[da s]ay[s to his lord: Be]fore the king of all countries, [Great King],<sup>1</sup> a[t the feet of my lord], my Sun, I fall [7] times and 7 times. I have w[ritten] 5–12 repeatedly to y[ou], "The war is against] Ardat, against Irqat, and agai[nst . . . , an]d Am(mi)y[a and Šigat]a, loyal [ci]ties of the king," [but the king], my lord, [has done nothing]. Moreover, what is [he, 'A]bdi-Ašrati, the servant (and) dog, that he has a[ct]ed as he pleased in the lands of my lord, [and yet] the king, my lord, has done nothing for [his] servant? 13–21 [Moreov]er, I sent my messenger (each time) that [he too]k my cities and moved u[p aga]inst me.<sup>2</sup> [N]ow he has taken Baṛruna, and he has moved up against me. [Beh]old the city! He has . . . the entrance of the gate of Gubla.<sup>3</sup> How long has he not moved from the gate, and so we are unable to go out into the countryside.<sup>4</sup> 21–28 Moreover, look,<sup>5</sup> he strives to seize Gubla!<sup>6</sup> And [. . . and] may the king, my lord, give heed t[o the words of] his [ser]vant, and [may] he hasten<sup>7</sup> [with] all speed chariots and [troops]<sup>8</sup> that they may gu[ard]<sup>9</sup> the city of the king], my lord, and [. . . until] the arr[iva]l of the king, [my] lor[d]. 28–39 For my part,<sup>10</sup> I will [no]t neglect the word of [my] lord. But i[f the k]ing, my lord, does [not give heed] to the words of [his] ser[vant], then Gubla will be joined to him, and all the lands of the king, as far as Egypt, will be joined to the 'Apiru. Moreover, should my lord not have wor[d] brought to hi[s] serv[ant]<sup>11</sup> by tablet, with all speed, then . . . the city to him and I will request a town from him to stay in, and so I will stay al[iv]e.<sup>12</sup> 40–51 [Moreov]er, may the king, my lord, hasten the troops (and) chariots that they may guard<sup>13</sup> the city of the king, my lord. Look, Gubla is not like the [other] cities; Gubla is a loyal city of the king, [my] lo[rd], from most ancient times. Still, the messenger of the king of Akka is honored more than [my] messeng[er], f[or they fur]nished [h]im with a horse. [May he furn]ish him (my messenger) . . . with 2 horses. May he not come out [empty-handed].<sup>14</sup>

NOTES

1. LUGAL KUR.[KI.Ī.A LUGAL GAL]: cf. KUR.KI.Ī.A in line 11, and see Youngblood, Amarna Correspondence, p. 310. Knudtzon's restoration assumes a form of greeting found in no Byblos letter.

2. Lines 13–21: see Rainey, UF 7 (1975) p. 425. Line 14: [il-q]é, following Youngblood, p. 312; cf. line 16.

3. [a]-mur URU UD (virtually certain) ŠI x pi (Rainey) KÁ.GAL; x, possibly KAB (Knudtzon), id? ta<sub>3</sub>-ši-it, "the city has kept away from the entrance of the city-gate" (šētu, AHu, p. 1221?)?

4. ma-ni UD.KÁM.MEŠ-ti la yi-na-mu-uš (Or n.s. 29 [1960] p. 17, n. 2) . . . 21 a-sa-am a-na EDIN.MEŠ (RA 69 [1975] pp. 156f.).

5. There can hardly be any doubt that 'Abdi-Aširta wishes to capture Byblos, and hence šumma, "look, behold" (see EA 35, n. 3).

6. Departing from normal word order and fronting the object Byblos, Rib-Hadda stresses that now his very own city is under attack.

7. [ù lu]-ba-mu-ur: following Rainey, UF 7 (1975) p. 415, but perhaps -tám rather than -ur (cf. bu-mi-tám, EA 102:29); also line 40.

8. [ÉRIN.MEŠ], without pitāti, as in line 41. Furthermore, archers are never requested for purposes of defense; see Pintore, OA 11 (1972) pp. 106ff.

9. ti-[šú-ru] (also line 41): as required by the rules of modal sequence; see also Rainey, UF 7 (1975) p. 415.

10. On the use of anāku, which sets up a contrast with "the king, my lord" and what is expected of him (lines 23ff.), see Agustinus Gianto, Word Order Variation in the Akkadian of Byblos, Studia Pohl 15 (Rome, 1990), p. 85. The following sequence of object-verb emphasizes Rib-Hadda's fidelity to the word of his master. izzib: injunctive? zero = preterite? (See Introduction, n. 50.)

11. a-na ĩ(R)-š[u]: a reading that Knudtzon rejected (VAB 2/1, p. 420, note b), but note (1) the ligature of the alleged aš-šad; (2) that the postulated šu is identical with the last sign of EA 87:28 (Knudtzon, šu?); and (3) sense. The construction, however, that is assumed here—an unmarked protasis of a conditional sentence—is without certain parallel in the Byblos corpus.

12. ú bal-(tá)-ti: cf. EA 82:45; 83:27; 123:35; ú, "and," lines 10, 22; 84:32; non-Byblos occurrences in EA 62, 260, 317, and 337. Lines 34–39 seem to be a threat, especially comparable to EA 83:47ff., so that "him" must refer to 'Abdi-Aširta and ù na-ri-x at the end of line 36 must be an expression for surrendering Byblos, perhaps first plural (i.e., a common action of Rib-Hadda and fellow citizens; cf. line 20, "we are not able"); x = iG or šu. na-re-eq, "we will distance ourselves from the city for him" (rēqu?)?

13. See n. 9.

14. 49 [ia-d]i-na ... 50 [x x] x ... 51 [ù ri-qú-t]a<sub>5</sub>; cf. EA 87:17. Kühne, p. 107, n. 525, offers a different interpretation: Rib-Hadda's messenger was deprived of two horses.

Events in Tyre

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: JCS 4 (1950) pp. 164f.; Youngblood, Amarna Correspondence, pp. 322ff.

[Rib]-Hadda say[s to his lord, k]ing of all countries, Gre[at] King: [May the Lady] of Gubla [grant power t]o the king, [my] lord. I fall [at the fee]t of my lord, [m]y Su[n, 7 times and 7] times. 7-14 [Though] I keep writing like this [to the pala]ce, my words are not [taken to he]art, and they go utterly un[hee]ded. Look at the deed in Tyre. On this account I am afraid. Even now the king makes no inquiry about his mayor, my brother. May the king h(eed) my words. Their words are not true. 15-29 "If the king makes inquiry, we will devote ourselves to your service." I made connubium with Tyre; they were on good terms with me. (But now) they have, I assure you, killed their mayor,<sup>1</sup> together with my sister and her sons. My sis(ter)'s daughters I had sent to Ty[re], away from 'Abdi-A[širta]. They killed] him al[ong with my sister ...] ... 30-39 [If] the king [makes inquiry about my brother], then all lands [will be joined to the king, my lord. But] if the king does [not] make inquiry about [my] brother, [then] ... [He wrote again and again to the king, [but h]is words went unheeded. And so he died. I know it! 39-47 But if you make inquiry about my brother, then the city will say, "This man is not the mayor! Inquire, O king, about him! We are unable to do anything." They are afraid. Will the king not make inquiry about the mayor of Tyre? For his property is as great as the sea. I know it! 48-57 Look, there is no mayor's residence like that of the residence in Tyre. It is like the residence in Ugarit. Exceedingly [gr]eat is the wealth [i]n it. May the king heed [the word]s of [his] servant. May he send [...] that he may stay [in the l]and and [be concerned] for the mayors. 58-67 May [no] property be handed [over to] them.<sup>2</sup> G[ive thought to the com]missioner of the king. He<sup>3</sup> is t[aking fr]om the king [all] the lands [of the king]. I know (it)! Does the king like it [that 'Abdi-A]širta has taken the sea [in] front of them, and so they are at peace? May the king [ter]rify them! Do I not continue to write of [the]ir crime to the king?

NOTES

1. After the asseverative particle allû, the word order, object-verb, stresses the object and underscores the enormity of the crime.

2. Lines 58-67 follow Knudtzon's restorations with one exception and these additions: 59 [qa-ti]-šū-nu (the rebels in Tyre); 60 i-[le-qú]; 61 [iš-tu] ... k[a-li]; 64 ... a-ia-ab š[a]; 65 [i-na]; 66 [yú/yi-pa-l]i-i-ib-šū-nu; 67 ar-na-(šū)-nu. Rib-Hadda seems to say that 'Abdi-Aširta controls the sea around the island town of Tyre, thus rendering the rebels secure. For a discussion and commentary on the entire letter, see JCS 4 (1950) pp. 163ff.

3. Probably 'Abdi-Aširta.

[S]ay [t]o the king, my lord: Message of Rib-Hadda, [your] se[rvant]. I fall at the feet of my lord, [my] Su[n, 7 times and 7] times. Be informed [that] the war aga[inst me] is severe. [He has taken]<sup>1</sup> all my cities; [Gubla] alone rem[ains] 8-12 to me. I was in Šigata and I wr[ote] to [y]ou, "Give thought to [your] city lest 'Abdi-Aširta take it." 13-19 [But] you did not listen to m[e]. Then fr[om] Baṭruna I wr[ote] to yo[u], "Send men to ta[ke<sup>2</sup> the ci]ty for you." [My] words went [u]nheeded, [and]<sup>3</sup> they were [no]t taken to heart. Now they have [ta]k[en] my cities. 19-28 Moreover, that [do]g<sup>4</sup> is [i]n Mittana, but his eye is on [Gu]bla. What can I do by myself? You yourself have been [neg]ligent of your cities so that the 'Apiru [dog] takes them.<sup>5</sup> It is to you that I have tu[r]ned.<sup>6</sup> Moreover, all the [mayors]<sup>7</sup> are at peace with 'Abdi-A[širta]. 29-35 ... 36-47 [Ou]r [sons], [our daughters, the furnishings] of the houses are gone, since they have been so[ld in the land] of Yarimuta <<[fo]r>> for provisions to keep [u]s alive. Li[k]e [a bird] in a tr[ap], s[o am I] in [Gub]la. "For lack of a cultivator my fie[ld] is [l]ike a woman without a [hus]band." Moreover, ... [and] send [x m]en and 30 pairs of [h]ors[es] that [I] may g[ua]rd the city for yo[u].<sup>8</sup> 48-56 [And] yo[ur] me[ss]engers send ... , and if you do not send a garrison, [then] . . . I am afraid for my life. [And] all messengers [that] were bound have been released.<sup>9</sup> . . . 57–62 Do not be negligent. Send archers that they may take the land of Amurru.<sup>10</sup> Day and night everyone awaits the coming forth of the archers.<sup>11</sup> I have been plundered of [my grain, and] it is [to you] that I have turned.<sup>12</sup>

NOTES

1. [i]l-qé]: cf. EA 91:19ff., an exact parallel to EA 90:6ff.
2. ti-[i]l-qú] or ti-[i]l-ti-qú]: according to the rule of modal sequence.
3. Probably room only for ù; I could not see traces corresponding to Knudtzon's [la-qa].
4. [UR.K]U: cf. esp. kalbu šūi (EA 84:35).
5. If plural, then [ti-ìl]-ti-qú-šu-nu, "when the 'Apiru took . . ." In EA 91:5, however, LÚ.GAZ.MEŠ UR.KU is singular, and it also suggests the restoration 26 [UR.KU]; hence [yi-ìl]-ti-qú-šu-nu, with Knudtzon (yi-ìl-ti-qú, also EA 109:17, 19), but singular, not plural (Knudtzon, followed by Ebeling, VAB 2/2, p. 1453).
6. 27 [pa-ni-ì]a: see VAB 2/2, p. 1591.
7. The restoration of bēl ālānī, "lord(s) of the cities," on the basis of EA 102:23, is, statistically, less probable than some reference to the mayors (cf. esp. EA 114:14; 126:11), and also, it would seem, less likely in a context speaking of many cities; hence [pa-za-nu]. Perhaps sal-mu (AHw, p. 1014), not šal-mu.
8. The reading yi-ì [š]-mi at the end of line 44 (Youngblood, Amarna Correspondence, p. 346, followed by Rainey, UF 7 [1975] p. 414) seems excluded, though the sign is not clearly aš as in the copy of VS 11. On ušširū in line 45 as plural of "majesty," and a-na-ša-r'a in line 47 (collated), see Youngblood, p. 346.
9. 54 . . . gáb'-[bu ša] 55 h[a]r-šu ut-ta-[ša/ši-ru]: readings dubious and context unclear.
10. 61 [ù ti]-'el'-qé KUR [a-mur-ri]: cf. EA 91:38, 45; 94:11; 107:30; 121:48; 123:42.
11. 62 [u]r-ra mu-ša p[a-nu ka-li a-na a-ší ÉRIN.MEŠ pí-ṭá]-[ti]: cf. EA 91:39–41.

A plea for a payoff

TEXT: VAT 931.

COPIES: WA 56; VS 11, 45.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Youngblood, Amarna Correspondence, pp. 351ff.

[Rib-Hadda says to] h[is] lord: I fall [at the feet of my lord 7 times and 7 times. I wrote to you, "Why have you sat idly by [and] done nothing, so that the 'Apiru dog<sup>1</sup> tak[es you]r cities?" 6–13 [When] he took Šumur, [I wr]ote to you, "Why do you [do noth]ing?" (Then B[it]-arq[a] was taken.) [Wh]en he saw [that] there was no one [t]hat said anything [to h]im about Šumur, his intentions were re[in]forced,<sup>2</sup> so that he strives to take Gubla. 14–23 He has attacked me<sup>3</sup> (and) my orchards, [and] my own [me]n have become hostile. I have been plundered of my [grain]. [May] you pay a thousand (shekels of) silver and 100 (shekels of) gold,<sup>4</sup> so he will go away [fr]om me. He has taken [all] my cities; Gubla alone remains [t]o me, and he strives to take it. 23–30 I have just heard (that) he has gathered together [all] the 'Apiru [t]o attack me. What can I [d]o by myself? I go on writing like this for archers and an auxiliary force, but my words go unheeded. 31–36 [Mo]reover, give [thought your]se[lf t]o your lands.<sup>5</sup> [. . .] . . . Moreover, [listen to me, and i]f there are no [archers] and auxiliary force, [then there will be no . . .] for Gubla, [and it will be] joined [to the 'Apiru]. 36–41 O king, [listen to me, and s]end archers t[o take the land of Amurru. [Now indeed] everyone aw[aits day and nigh]t [the coming forth of the arch]ers.<sup>6</sup> 42–49 [And may] the king, my lord, [. . .] . . .

NOTES

1. The forms of the verb, yi-ìl-qú (line 4) and yi-ìl-qa (line 6), are singular, and therefore LÚ.GAZ.MEŠ is also singular (Knudtzon; Greenberg, Hablpiru, p. 38).
2. yi-'da'-ni-en: following Greenberg, ibid., though the sign seems a little larger than da. šab (Knudtzon) is certainly wrong.
3. am-ma-qú-ur: contamination by ammaššab (line 16)? The grammar of line 14 is obscure.
4. Unless emphasis is intended through gross exaggeration, the numbers hardly refer to minas (Knudtzon; Helck, Beziehungen, pp. 382, 384).
5. mi-[li-ik at]-t[a a-n]a KUR.MEŠ-ka: cf. EA 133:2.

Rib-Hadda says to the king, his lord, the Sun of [all countries]: I fall at the feet of my lord, [my] S[un], 7 times and 7 times. May the Lady of Gub[la] g[ra]nt powe[r] to the king, my lord, [my] [Sun]. 7-15 [Moreov]er, 'Abdi-A[š]rati . . .] . . . If he had made inquiry . . . [ . . . ], he would [no]t have taken up residence in them.<sup>1</sup> A[n]d<sup>2</sup> now an evil war has been waged against [me], and I sent my tablet and [my] [messenger] to the king, my lord, but the k[ing] paid no attention to the words of my tablet and [my] me[ssenger]. So what am [I t]o do? 16-24 I sent my messenger to the king, [my] lord, [in regard to] my cities that 'Abdi-A[š]rati had taken. 'Abdi-A[š]rati hea[r]d that my man had arrived from the king, my lord, and he heard that there was nothing (with him). Since there was no auxiliary force that [cam]e out to me, he has [n]ow mo[ved] up<sup>3</sup> against me. 25-29 . . . 29-40 And what could I say? Moreover, it was a gracious deed of the king, my lord, that the king [wr]ote to the king of Beirut, to the king of Sidon, and to the king of T[y]re, [sa]ying,<sup>4</sup> "Rib-Hadda will be writing to you for an auxiliary force, and all of [y]ou are to go."<sup>5</sup> This pl[ eased ] me,<sup>6</sup> [and so] I sent my messenger, but they have [no]t come, and they [have] not s[en]t their messenger(s) to gre[et] us.<sup>7</sup> 41-48 Moreover, who<sup>8</sup> is he, that he [has taken]<sup>9</sup> the men to[ gether wi]th the oxen with th[em]?<sup>10</sup> What did he give for t[h]em? As the three of us are brothers, I wrote to them for help.<sup>11</sup> May it seem right in the sight of the king, my lord, that [they should s]end<sup>12</sup> soldiers of an expeditionary force<sup>13</sup> . . . 48-57 . . .<sup>14</sup>

NOTES

1. Reference to 'Abdi-Aširta's occupation of cities?
2. ù: sign extended because of continuation on edge.
3. i-ti-'el'-[l]a: cf. EA 81:46; 88:14, 17.
4. [u]m-'ma'-mi: if the correct reading, it would reflect Egyptian usage (EA 1:26, 37). VS 11, 46: [al-]u-mi.
5. ù 'a'-t-[la]-ku gáb-bu-[k]u-nu. Rib-Hadda alludes to this order in line 39.
6. DÜG.[GA] (tāb) 38 el'ya.
7. a-na ša-al š[u]l-[mi]-nu: šulma šalulša'ālu as in EA 96:5f.; 97:3.

9. il-[qé]: cf. line 17 and EA 88:14, 16; 91:19.
10. a-[di] GUD.M[EŠ] it-ti-š[u-nu]: adi, following a private communication of N. Na'aman; see also EA 74:56 and n. 13.
11. One expects "the four of us." The sign gives evidence of hesitation or correction; see Knudtson's note.
12. The singular injunctive is incompatible with the "indicative" marker, and therefore the form is plural. Read [tu-wa]-š*i-r[u]*; also possible but less likely is [lu-wa]-š*i-r[u]* (see EA 84, n. 1).
13. ÉRIN.MEŠ KAL.BAD.KASKAL + ?; see EA 109, n. 10.

Tell the king to give you 300 men so we can visit<sup>2</sup> the city and regain (it) [for the king]. Do not the [com]missioners lo[ng for]<sup>3</sup> the coming out of the archers? He is stronger than the king!<sup>4</sup> 19-28 Moreover, if we are able to [se]ize Baṭrun[a] fo[r] you, then<sup>5</sup> the men will abandon 'Abdi-Aširta. Things are [n]ot as they were previously. [I]f this year there are no archers, [then] he will be strong forever.

2. Perhaps "to visit" (daḡālu, "to look at") is used to suggest that a mere show of power will suffice to regain Baṭruna.
3. ti-b[a-u-na]: ti is quite probable.
4. Perhaps this is to be understood as a quotation citing the commissioners' fears.

2. [LUG]AL [KU]R. 'KUR.KI': cf. the parallel passages cited in n. 1.
3. iš-mi <<ig>>: perhaps unerased beginning of iq-bilbu, but hardly an attempt to reproduce a form of šm<sup>c</sup> (VAB 2/2, p. 1592).
4. te-el-<sup>r</sup>qé: quite clear and as expected (Or n.s. 29 [1960] p. 12, n. 1). Knudtzon's qú is undoubtedly a misprint.
5. LÚ na-a-ru (line 60; also 63?), "treacherous person" (cf. EA 84, n. 4).<sup>9</sup> Reference to a "singer" (nāru) does not seem likely.
6. A mi-e: perhaps amê-red (cloth) should not be ruled out; see EA 14, n. 46. End of line 64: ša-na = šanna, "kettle"?

Men from Meluḥḥa

TEXT: VAT 1668.

COPIES: WA 70; VS 11, 48.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Youngblood, Amarna Correspondence, pp. 388ff.

Say [to] the magnate: [M]essage of Rib-Hadda. I fall at [your] feet. May Aman and the Lady of Gubla establish your honor in the presence of the king, your lord. 7-26 [A]s to your wr[it]ing me, ...<sup>1</sup> 27-33 ... The king of Mitta[ni] visited the land of Amurru itself, and he said, "How great is this land! Your land is extensive." May the [kin]g of Egypt [sen]d<sup>2</sup> me his commissioner that he may take it for him. 34-43 [Mor]eover, come yourself with all speed, and t[ake] everything. Then return to get the archer[s] later on. [Mo]reover, get [...]<sup>3</sup> (and) get, too, 200 [men] of Meluḥḥa [...] 'Abdi-Aširta is very ill.<sup>4</sup> [W]h[o] knows, when he dies, [w]hat ... 44-53 ...<sup>5</sup>

NOTES

1. The dubious (VAB 2/1, p. 998) [y]ú before ku-uš-da in line 17 must be an incomplete ù ([Š]I + <LU>). Line 20: 'ú-š[i]-ru-bu'-ka, "I will get you into the land of Amurru"; cf. irub, "he entered," in line 25.
2. yú-wa-š[i-r]a: there is no reason to read *-r*u (see copy of VS 11, which is accurate), and strong reasons against it; see EA 92, n. 12.
3. Since Nubian troops, with the single exception of EA 133:16f., always appear in conjunction with Egyptians (EA 70:18f.; 108:67; 112:19f.), or simply with soldiers (EA 127:36; 131:11ff.; 132:56), or finally with a garrison (EA 117:78ff.; see Pintore, OA 11 [1972] p. 105), we should undoubtedly restore 39 [x LÚ.MEŠ]. Since they are also regularly associated with protection, at the end of line 40 we should probably restore something like [anašsar(a)tinašsarū āla], "that I/they may guard the city."
4. Of the eight other occurrences of marāšulmaršu in the letters from Byblos, not one clearly refers to physical illness, and several clearly refer to distress caused by enemies and the political situation (EA 103:7, 15, 49; 114:50; 116:54; 131:26; 362:59). Of the four occurrences of mursu, two clearly refer to physical illness (EA 137:29, 32), two not clearly at all (EA 75:18; 116:58; see EA 75, n. 2). Therefore, 'Abdi-Aširta may simply be under severe distress, especially since it is not clear who is the subject of BA.ÚŠ, mātu, "to die," in the next line.
5. Line 44: after Šigata, probably URU [am-pí]; cf. EA 71:30f.; 76:19; 98:11f., 40f.

The king's asses

TEXT: VAT 1238.

COPIES: WA 82; VS 11, 49.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Youngblood, BASOR 168 (1962) pp. 24ff. o( )

Say to Rib-Hadda, my son: Message of the general, your father. May (your personal) god show concern for you and your household. As to<sup>1</sup> your saying, "I will not permit men from Šumur to enter my city. There is a pestilence in Šumur," 12–27 is it a pestilence affect[ing] men or one affect[ing] asses? What pes[til]ence affects asses so that they cannot walk?<sup>2</sup> But watch [out]!<sup>3</sup> Do the asses belong to the king or not? Properties of the king are not lost; indeed, their owner seeks them out. If the king is the owner of the asses, then look for the king's asses. Why do you act so towards servants of the king? 28–33 Send men [t]o guard the city. [And] at the same time I am writing [t]o the king about you. He is to [r]epley to me by tablet about the whole aff[air].

NOTES

1. i-[n]u-ma (text: GIŠ).
2. ta-la-ku-[na]: the writer seems to anticipate Rib-Hadda's claiming that the asses are unable to leave Byblos because they can no longer walk, or (cf. lines 20ff.) that they are lost.
3. ú-š[ú-ur]: see EA 87, n. 6.

A bad reputation

TEXT: VAT 1598.

COPIES: WA 183; VS 11, 50.

To Šumu-Hadd[i (. . .)]: Mes[sage of Yappa[h]-Hadda]. May (your personal) god show concern for you. [I kn]ow that your reputation with the king is [b]ad, and so you cannot leave Egypt. 9–11 You did [n]ot cause the loss of [the king's lands]; 'Abdi-Aširta c]aused the loss.<sup>1</sup> 12–21 . . .

NOTE

1. 10 [mātāt šarri] 'ú'-bal-li-iq 11 [m]R-a-ši-ir-ta . . .]. Cf. line 21, which mentions 'Abdi-Aširta or perhaps "the son of 'Abdi-Aširta." In EA, bulluqu always has a place as object, and "destruction" is not necessarily physical, but rather (Egyptian) loss of political control. And the same is true of ḫalāqu with a place as subject; see Greenberg, Ḫab/piru, p. 44.

Losses from Byblos to Ugarit

TEXT: VAT 1675.

COPIES: WA 128; VS 11, 15.

[S]ay [t]o Yanḫamu: Message of Yapaḫ-Hadda. Why have you been neglectful of Šumur so that all lands from Gubla to Ugarit have become enemies in the service of Aziru? 10–18 Šigata and Ampī are enemies. He has now [st]ationed ships of Arw[ad]a<sup>1</sup> [i]n Ampī and in Šigata so grain cannot be brought into Šumur. 19–26 Nor are we able to enter Šumur, and so what can we ourselves do? Write to the palace about this [mat]ter. It is good [tha]t you are inf(or)med.<sup>2</sup>

NOTES

1. [URU] ar-w[a-d]a: so also Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 60*, n. 7.
2. lum-(mu)-da-ta: following AHu, p. 532, but perhaps better -(mi)- in view of the widespread use of purris as stative/perfect in EA. We should probably also allow for lam<sub>x</sub> (LUM).

From the Pharaoh to a vassal

TEXT: C 4742 (12196).

COPY: WA 202.

TRANSLATION: Oppenheim, LFM, p. 120.

NOTES

1. What Knudtson read as ma in line 1 may not be a sign at all; indeed, it is not certain that there was anything inscribed on this "line." On this hypothesis, Gordon considered reading line 2 as line 1, and thus: [a-na m<sup>z</sup>]i-[i]r<sup>r</sup>-d'am<sup>1</sup>-ia -'aš-da' (cf. EA 234:11). The traces, however, are extremely faint, and this reading would leave the addressee without indication of his place of residence, which would be unparalleled in the letters to vassals.

2. u<sup>r</sup>š-t<sup>r</sup>e-bi-la-ku: following Thureau-Dangin, RA 19 (1921) p. 100.

3. uš-šur lu-ú 8 na-ša-ra-ta: see Introduction, sect. 5.

4. On the girl as being given in marriage, and the translation of šūšir and tāmarātu, see Pintore, Matrimonio, p. 146, n. 21.

5. Not "silver-coated chariots" (Oppenheim).

6. ši-ia-tū ba-an-tū: as in EA 369:21.

7. Formulaic short form (see Introduction, sect. 5). ma-a-du (line 26, and regularly in both long and short forms) is probably not a predicate; cf. mād (EA 1:9) and perhaps mādu (EA 5:10), both from Egypt; ina ma-a-du ÉRIN.MEŠ-ka (EA 38:5) and ma-du ANŠE.KUR.RA.MEŠ-ka (EA 39:7), both from Alašia; and indeclinable ma-a-ad (EA 367:16f., also from Egypt).

The city of Irqata to the king

TEXT: BM 29825.

COPY: BB 42.

PHOTOGRAPH: BB, pl. 4.

This tablet is a tablet from Irqata. To the king, our lord: Message from Irqata and its el(d)ers.<sup>1</sup> We fall at the feet of the king, our lord, 7 times and 7 times. To our lord, the Sun: Message from Irqata. May the heart of the king, (our) lord, know<sup>2</sup> that we guard Irqata for him. 11–19 When the [ki]ng, our lord, sent D[UMU]-Bi-ḥa-a, he said to [u]s, "Message of the king: Guard Irqata!"<sup>3</sup> The sons of the traitor to the king seek our harm;<sup>4</sup> Irqata see[ks]<sup>5</sup> loyalty to the king. 20–32 As to [silver] having been given to S[u]baru al[ong with] 30 horses and cha[riots], may you know the mind of Irqata. When a tablet from the king arrived (saying) to ra[id] the land that the 'A[piru] had taken [from] the king, they wa[ged] war with us against the enemy of our lord, the man whom you pla[ced] over us.<sup>6</sup> Truly we are guarding the l[and].<sup>7</sup> May the king, our lord, heed the words of his loyal servants. 33–44 May he grant a gift to his servant(s) so our enemies will see this and eat dirt.<sup>8</sup> May the breath of the king not depart from us.<sup>9</sup> We shall keep the city gate barred until the breath of the king reaches us. Severe is the war against us—terribly, terribly!

NOTES

1. ši-b(u)-ti-ši: following Albright, JNES 5 (1946) p. 23.

2. At the beginning of a letter, where lū īde is so common, īde probably has the force of a precative, as occasionally elsewhere (EA 84:21; 106:47; 137:30?; 144:18; etc.).

3. u<sup>r</sup>-ša-ru-mi, though an anomalous form, must be the imperative of našāru. The king's order to guard the city was standard in letters to vassals (Introduction, sect. 5). Moreover, the writers here have just assured the king that they are guarding the city, and they go on to assert their loyalty, which their actions prove.

4. For bu<sup>r</sup>ū, "to seek someone," in the sense of seeking his harm, cf. EA 125:38. Perhaps, however, we should not exclude tuba<sup>r</sup>ūna NU.(KUR), "in the king's regard, they are intent upon war, (but) Irqata is intent upon loyalty." This yields better parallelism.

5. tu-b[a-ū], since this letter has the same verbal system as the Byblos letters.

6. I understand this very difficult passage as follows: the loyalty of Irqata had been questioned by the king, who had learned of the city's giving gifts to Mittani. The writers defend themselves by pointing out that Mittani had cooperated in the war against 'Abdi-Aširta and his 'Apiru followers, the very ones responsible for killing their own king whom the Pharaoh had placed over them (cf. EA 75:26f.; 139:15; 140:10). In other words, the gifts were only right and proper. Readings: Line 25: ana ša-[ḥa-aṭ] (šahātu, "to raid," fairly common in EA). Lines 26f.: LÜ.MEŠ G[AZ iš-tu]. Line 27: LUGAL-ri (enough room in 26?). Line 28: K[UR] is virtually certain. Line 29: "our lord" is not the Egyptian king, but the Irqata king who had been killed; ti-eš-ta-[kán-(šu)] (in EA, šapāru elilmuḥḥi, which Knudtson restores here, means only "to write about"; šitkunu elilmuḥḥi, said of royal appointments, see EA 101:30). If my understanding of this passage is at all correct, then the attack on Amurru may have contributed to the capture of 'Abdi-Aširta (cf. EA 108:28ff.; 117:24ff.).

7. Instead of K[UR] (māta), "land," perhaps K[I] (ašru), "place"; cf. the frequent expression ašar šarri ša ittika našāru.

8. "To eat dirt" means "to be defeated" (CAD, A/1, p. 256).

9. On the "breath" (šāru) of the king, which is his message and gives life to his vassal, see esp. EA 141, 143–45, and also the same use of the synonymous šēhu in the letters of Abi-Milku (EA 146–55). On the Egyptian background, see Lorton, The Juridical Terminology of International Relations in Egyptian Texts through Dynasty XVIII (see Introduction, n. 4), pp. 136ff. Though the conception as it appears in EA is undoubtedly of Egyptian origin, the influence of the West Semitic substratum is probably to be seen in the feminine gender agreement (EA 100:37; 141:15; 297:18; cf. Hebrew rūḥ, "breath," fem.).

The death of 'Abdi-Aširta

TEXT: BM 29827.

COPY: BB 44.

Moreover,<sup>1</sup> why<sup>2</sup> is there war [against] the king? Is it not Ḫaya?<sup>3</sup> [No]w, the ships of the army are not to enter the land of Amurru, for they have killed 'Abdi-Aširta,<sup>4</sup> since they had no wool and he had no garments of lapis lazuli or MAR-stone color : bu-bu-mar(?) to give as tribute<sup>5</sup> to the land of Mittana. 11-18 Moreover, whose ships have attacked me? Is it not the men of Arwada? Indeed, they are now with you. Seize the ships of the men of Arwada that are with you in Egypt. 18-25 Moreover, though Ḫaya [s]ays, "[. . .] . . . If we [do] not [give]<sup>6</sup> (it) to the land of Amurru, then [the men] of Tyre<sup>7</sup> and the men of Sidon and the men of Beirut will furnish (it)," 25-31 to whom do these cities belong? Is it not to the king? Put a man in each city and let him not allow a ship from the land of Amurru (to enter), for they have killed 'Abdi-Aširta.<sup>8</sup> It was the king that placed him over them, not they! 32-38 Let the king tell the 3 cities and the ships of the army not to go to the land of Amurru. If a servant seize a bo[a]t,<sup>9</sup> let him give it to you. Be informed of the affairs of your loyal servant.

NOTES

1. This is the second of a two-tablet letter, like EA 113, 245, 251, and Wilhelm, ZA 63 (1973) pp. 69ff. It is almost certainly addressed to the king, and very probably by Rib-Hadda; see Eretz Israel 9 (1969) p. 94, n. 1; Altman, UF 9 (1977) p. 8.

2. mīnu, "why," as in EA 126:14, 19; 138:138.

3. Perhaps Ḫaya is here absolved of responsibility, so that this should be read, "Not (because of) Ḫaya" (Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 63*, n. 33). If, however, I understand the thrust of lines 18ff., Ḫaya is criticized for the advice he gives the king, and therefore I assume that he is also criticized here.

4. For another interpretation of these lines ("if/when the ships of the army do not enter . . . , then they will kill . . .") and its implications, see Altman, UF 9 (1977) pp. 7f.

5. GÜ.UN: see RA 69 (1975) p. 158; so also, independently, Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 10.

6. [na-ad-nu] 'ni'-nu: for the form, cf. na-ad-na (EA 89:16).

7. [U]RU šur-ri: following Na'aman, ibid., p. 63*, n. 33.

8. See n. 4.

9. The reading m̄IR-a-(š)-ir-[t]a (Or n.s. 29 [1960] p. 11, n. 3) is quite wrong, and Knudtzon's description (VAB 2/1, pp. 454f., notes c and e) is exact. The last sign could not possibly be [t]a, as the space is much too small, and of course we may not assume a writing of the name with one sign omitted and an unparalleled [t]a<sub>5</sub>. Very tentatively, u šabāt (for the use of the infinitive, see JCS 4 [1950] pp. 169ff.) m̄IR (for the determinative with common nouns, see Böhl, Sprache, pp. 9f.) a-ni-[t]a<sub>5</sub> (cf. a-na-yi, EA 245:28; Hebrew 'niyyā). Any Amurru ship intercepted is to be turned over to the king.

An empty house

TEXT: BM 29806.

COPY: BB 23.

[S]ay [to . . .] . . . [ . . .]:<sup>1</sup> Message of Rib-Hadda. I fall at your feet. May the Lady of Gubla, the goddess of the king, my lord, establish your honor in the presence of the king, your lord, the Sun of all countries. 8-19 Moreover, you know that, though informed, you have delayed coming out. Why did you write?<sup>2</sup> Now you are going to come into an empty house.<sup>3</sup> Everything is gone. I am utterly ruined. Moreover, as to your writing me, "Go, stay in Šumur until I arrive," know<sup>4</sup> that the war against me is very severe and I have been unable to go. 20-28 Now Ampī is at war with me. Know t(hat) the magnate and the lords<sup>5</sup> of the city are at peace with the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, and accordingly I am unable to go. Know that all are traitors, and you must not inquire about me from my enemies. Now, because of the situation, I am afraid. 28-38 Moreover, listen to me. Hasten your arrival with all speed, and go in there. Know that they are traitors. Moreover, do not [del]ay your arrival, [and send] archers [to capture the city of the king], your [lord].<sup>6</sup> Go in. Do not be afraid. [As soon as you enter<sup>7</sup> the city, it is from there that you must write [me].

NOTES

1. Perhaps addressed to [m̄ia-an-ḫa]-m[i] (Knudtzon).

2. The analysis of tašapparta and the even more difficult ti-ib-ta-ti (line 13) remains uncertain; see Rainey, UF 5 (1973) pp. 257f. The same letter is referred to in lines 14ff.

3. An "empty house" seems to have been a popular image of destitution and desolation: cf. EA 316:16ff.; "you left me in an empty house" (Old Assyrian; K. Balkan, Letter of King Anum-ḫirbi of Mama to King Warshama of Kanish (Ankara, 1957), p. 16, n. 20); "I am desolate in an empty [house]" (Taanach Letter, no. 2:6, trans. of Albert E. Glock, Berytus 31 [1983] p. 60, n. 27); "I have entered an empty house, an empty ruin" (A. 818, cited by AEM 1/1, no. 234, note a).

4. In this and the following lines ti-di seems best taken as an injunctive.

5. The property owners (also EA 138:49). Cf. the similar use of ba'al in Hebrew and Ugaritic (b' l hlb, "the lords of Ḥalba," Ugar. 7, p. 143); see Reviv, IEJ 16 (1966) pp. 252f.

6. Free restoration.

7. [ù ir]-ba-ta: the word order, with the adverbial phrase fronted, stresses where the letter should be written.

Critical days for Šumur

TEXT: VAT 1208.

COPY: WA 77; VS 11, 52.

[T]o the king, my lord, my Sun: Message of Rib-Hadda, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 5–19 May the king, my lord, heed the words of his loyal servant. My situation is very difficult. The war of the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta against me is severe. They have occupied the land of Amurru, and the entire country is theirs. Šumur and Irqata remain to the magnate. I have now been<sup>1</sup> in Šumur because the magnate is in difficulty due to the war. I left Gubla, but Zimredda and Yapaḥ-Hadda were no[t wi]th me.<sup>2</sup> 20–29 So the [mag]nate keeps writing [t]o them, but they pay n[o] attention to him. May the king, my lord, heed the [w]ords of his loyal servant. [S]end an auxiliary force with all speed to Šumur in order to guard [i]t [un]til the arrival of the archers of the king, the Sun. 30–39 May the king, the Sun, expel the traitors from his land. Moreover, may the king, my lord, heed the words of his loyal servant. Sen[d] a garrison to Šumur and to [I]rqata. As the entire garrison has fled from Šumur, 40–49 may it seem right in the s[igh]t of the lord, the Sun of all countries, and give me 20 pairs of horses, and send an auxiliary force with all speed to Šumur in order to guard it. Whatever is left of the garrison is in difficulty,<sup>3</sup> 50–57 and few people are still in the city. If you do not «not» se(n)d archers, then there will not be a city remaining to you. But if arch[ers] are on hand, we will take all the lands for the king.

NOTES

1. Perhaps "I am now in Šumur," and therefore EA 103 would have been written from there. The siege of Šumur, which begins to be mentioned in EA 104, had apparently not yet begun.

2. ia-[nu], "were not with me," i.e., did not assist? Cf. VAB 2/2, p. 1201, n. 1.

3. Probably ma-ar-ša-(at): following Rainey, UF 5 (1973) p. 256; see EA 114, n. 5.

Ullassa taken

TEXT: C 4751 (not collated).

COPY: WA 60.

Say to the king, my lord, my Sun: Message of Rib-Hadda, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun 7 times and 7 times. 6–13 May the king, my lord, know that Pu-Baḥla, the son of 'Abdi-Aširta, has occupied Ullassa. Theirs are Ardata, Waḥliya, Ampī, Šigata. All the cities are theirs. 14–26 So may the king send an auxiliary force to Šumur until the king gives thought to his land. Who are the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, the servant and dog? Are they the king of Kaššu or the king of Mittani that they take the land of the king for themselves? Previously, they would t[ak]e cities of your mayors, and you did nothing. 27–39 Now they have driv[en] out your commissioner and have taken his cities for themselves. They have taken Ullassa. If in these circumstances you do nothing, then they are certainly going to take Šumur and kill the commissioner and the auxiliary force<sup>1</sup> in Šumur. What am I to do? I cannot go personally to Šumur; 40–48 the cities of Ampī, Šigata, Ullassa, Erwada,<sup>2</sup> are at war with me. Should they «they» hear<sup>3</sup> that I was entering Šumur, there would be these cities with ships, and the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta in the countryside.<sup>4</sup> 49–54 They would attack (me), and I would be unable to get out, and Gubla would be joined [t]o the 'Apiru. They have gone to Ibirta, and an agreement has been made with the 'Apiru.<sup>5</sup>

NOTES

1. ÉRIN.MEŠ BI-la-ti: either BI = til<sub>x</sub> or probably simply a mistake for til (BE). The phrase is more probably the object of tidūkkūna, "they will kill" (so also Ebeling, VAB 2/2, p. 1402; Greenberg, Ḥablpīru, p. 38) than the subject of i-pu-šu-na, "what will the auxiliary forces do?" (Knudtzon, followed by Liverani, AoF 1 [1974] p. 186). Against the latter view are several considerations: (1) the assumed position of the interrogative pronoun (unparalleled in the Byblos letters); (2) attested usage, i-pu-šu-na, 10 times first person, never third (on EA 119:18, see below); (3) mīna iḫpušunaliḫpušuna, "what shall I do?," is a stock phrase of the Byblos letters. See also Izre'el, UF 19 (1987) pp. 79ff.

2. URU er<sub>4</sub>-wa-da, or perhaps simply a mistake, but certainly Arwada is the city in question; see RA 69 (1975) p. 157, n. 4.

3. šamā-ma, third plural feminine; so also izzizā (line 49), alkā (line 52), perhaps ennešā (line 52), agreement with "cities" understood, ālu being regularly construed as feminine in Canaanite EA. See SSDB, p. 164; Greenberg, Ḥablpīru, p. 38.

4. See RA 69 (1975) p. 157.

5. So CAD, E, p. 216. Less likely from the viewpoint of attested usage, though perhaps yielding better sense, in "and (t)here (too) (the city) has gone over to the 'Apiru" (Greenberg, Hab/piru, p. 38; cf. Bottéro, Habiru, p. 92). pu-ú = Canaanite pô, "here, in this place" (Böhl, Sprache, p. 71); en-ni-ip-ša-(at).

Šumur under siege

TEXT: VAT 1628.

COPIES: WA 51; VS 11, 53.

Rib-Hadda says to [his] lord, Great King, king of all countries, the King of Batt[le]: May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 6–13 Moreover, may the king give thought to Šumur. Look at Šumur! Like a bird in a trap : ki-lu-bi (cage), so is Šumur; the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta by land, the people of Arwada by sea, are agai[nst it] day and night. 14–21 I se[n]t 3 s[h]ips to Yanḫamu, [but ships] of the people of Arwada were (there) to intercept th[em], and out they came! Consider the case of the people of Arwada. When the archers came out, all the proper[ty] of 'Abdi-Aširta in their possession was not taken away, and their ships, by an agreement, left Egypt. 21–33 Accordingly, they are not afraid. Now they have taken Ullassa, and they strive to take Šumur. Everything belonging to 'Abdi-Aširta they gave to the [so]ns, and so now they are strong. They have taken the army ships together with everything belonging to them, and I am unable to go to the aid of Šumur. Yapaḫ-Hadda is at war with me because of [my] property in his possession. 33–45 Let us put the case before Aman... and DUMU-Bi-ḫa-a and before Yanḫamu, for they are the ones that know what is my due<sup>1</sup> concerning [...]. Because my property in his possession is considerable, he has accordingly waged war against me. When I heard of the ca[ptu]re<sup>2</sup> of Ullassa, I wro[te repeatedly]<sup>3</sup> [...] ... to him, but he [r]aide[d ...] and too[k ...]. He has wa[ge]d war agai[nst me. 46–78 ...<sup>4</sup> 79–88 [May he s]end [...] that w[e] may put the case be[fore them].<sup>5</sup> May [an]y property of mine in his possession be taken for the king, and let the faithful servant live for the king. The Egyptians that got out of Ullassa are now with me, but there is no [gr]ain for them to eat. Yapaḫ-Hadda does not let my ships [in]to Yarimuta, and I cannot send them to Šumur because of the ships of Arwada. Look, he says, "Rib-[Hadda to]ok [i]t, a[nd s]o he is against m[e]." [...]

Šumur holding out

TEXT: VAT 344.

COPIES: WA 43; VS 11, 52.

Rib-Hadda says t[o his lord, Great King], the king<sup>1</sup> of all countries: I fall at the feet [of my lord, the kin]g, 7 times and 7 times. Gubla is [from] ancient times the loyal city of my lord, the Sun of all countries, and I am a footstool for the feet of the king, my lord, and his loyal servant. 8–13 Now as for Šumur, the war against it is severe, and it is severe against me. Šumur is now raided up to its city gate. They have been able to raid it, but they have not been able to capture it. 13–22 Moreover, "Why does Rib-Hadda keep sending a tablet this way to the palace?"<sup>2</sup> He is more distraught<sup>3</sup> than his brothers about Šumur. Look, in my case, there has been war against me for 5 years.<sup>4</sup> Accordingly, I keep writing to my lord. Look, I am not like Yapaḫ-Hadda, and I am not like Zimredda. All brothers have des[erted] me. There is war against Šumur, and now its commissioner is dead. 23–29 Indeed, I myself am now in distress. I was in [Šumur], and all its people f[led]. May my lord [s]end [a commissioner and troop]s with him with al[l] speed that he may g[ua]rd it.<sup>5</sup> I myself can[not get out].<sup>6</sup> [Let him] move in between the two of them th[at are against it].<sup>7</sup> 30–40 How can the king say, "Why does Rib-Hadda keep sending a tablet to his lord?" Because of the evil that was do[ne]<sup>8</sup> before, and especially so nothing like this will be done to me now! Moreover, may it seem right in the sight of [my] lor[d], and may he send Yanḫamu as its commissioner, Yanḫamu the parasol-bearer<sup>9</sup> of the king, my lord. I have heard it reported that he is a wise man and (that) everyone loves him. 41–49 Moreover, may it seem rig[h]t to my lord, and may he send 20 pairs of first-class horses to his servant—there are many men on my side—so that I can march against the enemies of the king, my lord.

Moreover, as for all my cities that I have reported on to the king, my lord, as my lord is witness, they have not returned. The day the troops of my lord's expeditionary force<sup>10</sup> left, all became enemies.

NOTES

1. LUGAL-ri: the apparent NUN, which would be unparalleled, is a carelessly formed ri; cf. LUGAL-ri KUR.KUR.KI in EA 123:3. Line 2: ... GİR.M[ÉŠ BE-ia LUGAL<sup>2</sup>-r]i.

2. This seems to be a quotation from a letter of the king, as in lines 3off. The king found Rib-Hadda an excessively diligent correspondent (see the Introduction, sect. 5).

3. ma-an-ga: following Thureau-Dangin, RA 19 (1922) p. 92, n. 3; see also Rainey, AOAT<sup>2</sup>, p. 80. I. Kottsieper, UF 20 (1988) pp. 125ff., argues in favor of a Northwest Semitic root mga, "to war, to fight."

6. u-šú-ú/na: the form is unattested.

7. bi-ri-šu-ni š[a UGU-ši]: the dual pronominal suffix (BASOR 211 [1973] pp. 50ff.; see also Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 19*, n. 6) probably refers to the forces, sea and land, that surround Šumur (EA 104:46ff.; 105:11ff.).

8. i-ni-pu-úš.

9. Following Helck, Beziehungen, p. 249, who sees here a reflection of Egyptian ḥbšw bb(.t). Albright, JNES 5 (1946) p. 13, "fan-bearer," follows Ranke in Weber, VAB 2/2, p. 1173, and he is followed by AHw, p. 1110, and CAD, Š, p. 240.

10. ÉRIN.MEŠ KI.KAL.KASKAL + ?.BAD: cf. ÉRIN.MEŠ KAL.KASKAL + ?.[BAD?] (EA 58, n. 3) and KAL.BAD.KASKAL + ? (EA 92, n. 13). I interpret the logograms as variants and the equivalent of KI.KAL.BAD/KALxBAD, karašu, "camp, expeditionary force"; cf. ÉRIN.MEŠ ka-ra-š[i] (EA 83:43) and [ÉRIN.MEŠ k]a-ra-š[u] (EA 134:39). The unidentified sign, given the likely meaning, is probably formed with KASKAL. P. Steinkeller suggests KASxŠUDUN (private communication).

Charioteers but no horses

TEXT: VAT 346.

COPIES: WA 41; VS 11, 55.

Rib-Hadda says to (his) lord, king of all countries, Great King, King of Battle: May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. Being a loyal servant of the king, the Sun, 10-19 with my mouth I speak words to the king that are nothing but the truth. May the king, my lord, heed the words of his loyal servant. May the archer-commander<sup>1</sup> stay in Šumur, but fetch Ḥa'ip to yourself, examine him, and find out about [his] affai[rs]. 20-28 Then if it pleas[es] you, appoint as its commissioner someone respected by the kin[g's] mayors.<sup>2</sup> May my lord heed my words. Seeing that Aziru, the son of 'Abdi-Aširta, is in Damascus along with his brothers, 29-36 send archers that they might take him, and the land of the king be at peace. If things go as they are now, Šumur will not stand. Moreover, may the king, my lord, heed the words of his loyal servant. 37-48 There is no money to pay for horses; everything is gone so that we might stay alive. So give me 30 pairs of horses along with chariots. I have charioteers [:] mar-ia-nu-ma,<sup>3</sup> but I do not have a horse to march against the enemies of the king. Accordingly, I am afraid, and accordingly, I have not gone to Šumur.

Unheard-of deeds

TEXT: VAT 345.

COPIES: WA 42; VS 11, 56.

Rib-Hadda writes to his lord, king of all countries, Great King, King of Battle: May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. 6-17 I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. Moreover, is it pleasing in the sight of the king, who is like Baal and Šamaš in the sky,<sup>1</sup> that the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta do as they please? They have taken the king's horses and chariots, and they have sold into captivity charioteers : ši-x-y(?)<sup>2</sup> and soldiers to «(to)» the land of Su(ba)ru.<sup>3</sup> 18-25 In whose lifetime has such a deed been done? False words are now being spoken in the presence of the king, the Sun. I am your loyal servant, and whatever I know or have heard I write to the king, my lord. 25-33 Wh[o] are they, the dogs, that they could res[ist]<sup>4</sup> the archers of the king, the Sun? I wrote t[o] «(to)» your father, and he he[eded] my wor[d]s, and he sent ar[ch]ers. Did he not take 'Abdi-Aširta for b[imself]?<sup>5</sup> 34–45 Moreover, since the mayors have not oppo[sed] th[em], they are stron[g].<sup>6</sup> The army furnishes whatever they ne[ed], and so they are not afra[id] of the magnate. Because they have taken the hors[es], they are bold.<sup>7</sup> Because we know that they are strong, we have to[ld] the king, "They are strong."<sup>8</sup> Truly, they will not prevail. 46–58 When I sent 2 messengers to Šumur, I retained this man in order to report to the king. Moreover, why do you listen to other men? The king's messengers must bring (news) by night and bring (it) back by night because of the dog. If the king, the Sun, desires, they will be taken in a day.<sup>9</sup> 59–69 Moreover, has he [n]o[t] plotted evils [upon evils a]gainst you,<sup>10</sup> and rev[olted]? And as for the man of [my] god, 'Apiru came from Šumur to take him prisoner, but I did not give him up. May the [k]ing he[ed] the words of his servant. Send me [2]o men from Meluḥḥa and 20 men from Egypt to guard the city for the king, the Sun, my lord. (I am) your loyal se[rvan]t.

NOTES

1. The storm god (perhaps Haddu rather than Baal) and the sun god; cf. EA 147:14.
2. The same logogram as EA 107:42; the gloss (second and third signs ni/ir?-ba/ma, respectively) remains unexplained. The reading of the logogram as KEŠDA and the explanation of the gloss as identification of the sign (ŠIR; so SSDB, p. 166) are to be rejected.

4. ti-z[i-zu-na].
5. š[a-šu]: perhaps, with Rainey, UF 7 (1975) p. 400, n. 56, "was not 'Abdi-Aširta taken to him?" Rib-Hadda returns to this event (EA 117:27f.; 132:16ff.; 138:33f.; 362:20).
6. On lines 34–38, see JCS 7 (1953) p. 79.
7. KALAG.GA (dannū) ina pānīšunu, lit. "they are strong in their face," reflects Canaanite idiom; cf. ## Then and now

TEXT: VAT 1629.

COPIES: WA 52; VS 11, 57.

Rib-Hadda [says] to his lord, king of all lands, [Great] King: May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. In times past, 6–14 whenever the [ki]ng of Mittana was at war with your ancestors, your ancestors did not deser[t my] ances[tors]. Now the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, the [servan]t and dog, have t[aken] the cities of the king and the [ci]ties of his mayor, just as they please; they are the ones that [took] A[rdat]a for themselves. And you did nothing [about t]heir [actions] when you heard (of them). 15–25 [And so]<sup>1</sup> they have taken [Ull]assa. For my part, I keep saying, "[If] the king gives heed for a [d]ay, in (that) day the king will take them. [And i]f he gives heed for a night, [in (that) n]ight he will take them."<sup>2</sup> Accordingly, I am [fi]rm<sup>3</sup> in my resolve. They have taken [the treasures]<sup>4</sup> of your mayors, and [they have tak]en the [charioteers], your chariots, and soldiers, [but] you have done nothing. Accordingly, they are fi[rm]<sup>5</sup> in their [resol]ve, and they intend crime upon cri[me]. 25–29 [Being at war] with me, they seized [12 men of mine];<sup>6</sup> they bound (th)em,<sup>7</sup> (and) they are in pri[son].<sup>8</sup> The rans[om price] between us they have set as 50 (shekels of) silver,<sup>9</sup> and [...] 30–34 ... 35–46 They go about and [...]. They are the ones who have kidnapped,<sup>10</sup> and [...] Yanḥamu knows. The king [...] a man. They put him in [...] : tu-ub-nu(?), and they sold a soldier into captivity in Subaru for their food. Look, I am a loyal servant of the king, [and] the king has no servant like me. Previously, on seeing a man from Egypt, the kings of Canaan fled bef[ore him], 47–55 but] now the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta make men from Egypt prowl about [like do]gs.<sup>11</sup> Death would be sweet t[o m]e.<sup>12</sup> Let them [noi] be arrogant towards my lord and [towards] my [l]ife.<sup>13</sup> As all our gods [and the Lady o]f Gubla live, (tr)uly<sup>14</sup> [h]e is a man that intends evil fo[r h]is [lord]. (But) note well,<sup>15</sup> it is power, only power, that I intend for my lord. 56–69 Moreover, I am una[ble] to [g]et this man of yours into Š[um]ur. All my towns are at war with me, on the side of the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta. Accordingly, they are strong. The mayors are not just to me. [W]hen Ḥa[ya] and A[manap]pa de]parted fro[m Šu]mur, along with the copper [and] his [...] t]hey sai[d that] I [was your loyal servant].

NOTES

1. [ù URU ul-l]a-sà.
2. 16 [šum-ma UD.K]AM.MEŠ yišmu šarru 17 [ù UD].KAM.MEŠ yi-il-tiqú-šu-nu. The parallelism with the singular mūša, "night," in the following lines, and the absence of MEŠ in the roughly parallel EA 117:63 (ina UD.KAM), favor taking the logogram as singular and another example of otiose MEŠ.
3. [ka-i]a<sub>8</sub>-a-na-ku, and in line 23, ka-i[a<sub>8</sub>-nu]: the assumed syllabary (ia<sub>8</sub>) and the absence of parallels make these readings very tentative.
4. [NÍG.G]A (makkūru): makkūru is otherwise unattested in the Middle Babylonian periphery, with the possible exception of EA 138:106.
5. See n. 3.
6. [12 LÚ.MEŠ-ia]: cf. EA 114:8; if not enough room, then probably the number was omitted.
7. ra-ak-šu-(šu)-nu.
8. É [ki-li]: bīt kīli is well attested in the Western Periphery.
9. A ransom price of 50 minas (Knudtzon; CAD, I/J, p. 172), even if the ransom of all twelve men, would come to 250 shekels a person, an improbably high price. In EA 292, 100 shekels are considered outrageously high. Therefore, 50 shekels per person; cf. EA 91, n. 4.
10. ša-ra-qú-ma: interpreted as Canaanite perfect and translated according to context, but perhaps better šarrāqū-ma, "they are thieves" (AHw, p. 1188; Rainey, AOAT<sup>2</sup>, p. 93).
11. māt mi-iš-r[i ki-ma] 49 [UR].KU.MEŠ: the verb must be dālu (also EA 114:65, and perhaps 110:54); the assumption of scribal error both here and in EA 114 (CAD, D, p. 59b) is most implausible. The meaning is clearly transitive, and therefore we must assume either a confusion of the G and D conjugations, or another example of the sporadic replacement of ultu-person marker by iti. Perhaps dālu contrasts with the proper orderly advance of troops; it is an action typical of dogs (see the dictionaries). AÉM 1/2, no. 391:50–52 suggests hesitant or evasive action ("tergiverser"; see note k), which would also fit here and in EA 114.
12. damiq mūtu a-[na ia]-šī: against [g<sup>is</sup>].TUKUL.MEŠ (kakkī) da-mi iq-mudū, "they laid hold of weapons of blood" (AHw, p. 896), apart from the unusually vivid language, are the following: (1) GIŠ is too small a sign for the space (as Knudtzon already noted in VAB 2/1, p. 484, note b); (2) kakku is attested only once in EA, and then in a literary text (EA 359:4; on 20:80, see above, EA 20, n.
17), and is extremely rare in the Middle Babylonian western periphery (CAD, K, lists under kakku three occurrences, deleting reference to EA 20:80; and under bēl kakkī three occurrences at Alalah, plus its use as a Sumero-Akkadogram at Boghazköy); (3) the value dū is not expected in the Byblos syllabary; and (4) the verb is extremely rare and the sense otherwise unattested.
13. [la t]i-iš-mu-hu<sub>3</sub>: the assumption of hu<sub>3</sub> is difficult; cf. the Old Assyrian meaning of the verb, "to act independently(?)" (AHw, p. 1153b).
14. 53 [T]I.LA (a)-d[i šu-u]t: for the assumed liblu<sub>3</sub>tu, cf. TI (liblu<sub>3</sub>), EA 74:15; liblu<sub>3</sub> šarru, EA 85:39, 86; 256:10f.; 289:37; for (a)di, cf. adi introducing the object of an oath in EA 85:40, 86 (see n. 7) and its use elsewhere as an asseverative particle.

Questions for the king

TEXT: VAT 1664.

COPIES: WA 57; VS 11, 61.

Rib-[Hadda says t]o his lord, ki[ng of all lands], Great [K]ing: [I] fall at the feet of [my] lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. Why does the king, my lord, write to me, 9–15 “Guard! Be on your guard!” With what<sup>1</sup> shall I guard? With my enemies, or with my peasantry? Who would guard me? If the king guards his servant, [then I will survive]. 16–24 [But i]f the [ki]ng does not [gu]ard me, who will guard me? If the king sends men from Egypt and Meluhḥa, and horses in the charge of this man of mine, with all speed, then I will survive to serve the king, my lord. 25–39 [No]te well,<sup>2</sup> I have nothing with which to acquire horses. Every[thing of] mine [is gon]e through being sol[d i]n the land of Yarimuta for provisions to keep me alive. I[f] the king wants his servant and his city to survive, then send a [g]arrison to guard your city and your servant until the king is (really) concerned for his lands, sends his archers, and brings peace to his lands. 40–50 Thus was it pleasing in the si[ght] of the king when you wrote to [your ser]vant, “Get Ḥaya into Šumur.” I paid 13 (shekels of) silver and a pair of mantles as the hire<sup>3</sup> of the ‘Apiru when he brou(gh)t the tablet into Šumur.<sup>4</sup> Look, ask Ḥaya. Truly it was by night that he got (him) into «into» Šumur. 50–56 Previously, provisions from the king were at [m]y disposal, and we could pay the hi(r)e of a man whom we sent. But [lo]ok, now there are n[o prov]isions from the king, [and there is no garri]son [at my disposal]. . . . 57–59 . . .

NOTES

1. Or “with whom.” Though ištu, “from,” rather than the much rarer equivalent of itti, here yields good sense, this is not true in parallel passages, which do not refer to the enemies and peasantry. It is quite clear, in general, from Rib-Hadda’s letters from whom or what he must protect himself and the king’s city. In EA 123:31, note the sequence: the need of the three men to guard the city (lines 23–28), then the question to the king’s order to guard himself, and finally back to the need of the three men; here “from whom” makes little sense. In EA 125:11ff., Rib-Hadda shifts immediately from the question of from whom or with whom to guard himself, to the absence of manpower; again, “with whom” obviously makes better sense. Cf. also in EA 119:9ff. and 122:10ff. the transition from the king’s command to the absence of manpower. In EA 126:33, ištu manni is replaced by kī, “how.” We must, therefore, take the question “With my enemies, or with my peasantry?” as ironical. On ištu = itti, see EA 145:6; 166, n. 1; 170:5, 15; Jerusalem Scribe, p. 165, n. 68.

2. šumma: see EA 35, n. 3.

3. agrūtu. On shekels rather than minas, see EA 109, n. 9; here again, even though the word order (initial position) stresses the size of the pay, minas would yield an excessively high figure.

4. Getting the tablet in and getting Ḥaya in, who should probably be thought of as bearing a tablet with the king’s orders, were probably the same thing. That Rib-Hadda is himself in Šumur is not clear; otherwise, Greenberg, Ḥabḥiru, p. 39.

NOTES

1. EA 113 is a two-tablet letter; cf. EA 101. The addressee is not clear, but the king seems likely.

2. Occasionally aššum means “from” in EA (VAB 2/2, p. 1385), and this sense seems to fit the context better than "about, with regard to." Rib-Hadda says that, on inquiry, any other ruler will confirm the criminal activities of Yapaḥ-Hadda.

3. y[i-pu-šu]: as required by the parallelism with the indicative yaškunū.

4. See EA 55, n. 2.

5. Not "the two of you" (BASOR 211 [1973] p. 52), which is forced. Note, however, that, when the litigants are three, then ina berīnu replaces ina berīkunī (cf. EA 117:64ff.). Whatever then the explanation, {kunī} is first person dual pronominal suffix. Cf. also EA 34:33; 116:33.

6. The beginning of lines 19–21: [ka-li]; [yú-ul]-qú; [yi-il-qé]. For the restorations, cf. EA 116:34ff.; 117:67ff. Contrary to Knudtson (VAB 2/1, p. 494, note h), there is ample room for yi-il or yú-ul at the beginning of line 20; elsewhere on the tablet the space corresponds to three or four signs.

7. Free restoration: 22 [ša-a] it-ti-šu yi-ša-al 23 [a-na L]Ú.MEŠ-ia.

8. Free restoration: ip-[pu-šu] 26 [gáb-ba].

9. The question was probably asked by the addressee, whom Rib-Hadda now quotes; cf. EA 106, n. 2. The other mayors, here called "associates" (cf. EA 120:45), are "friends" in EA 126:16. Both terms seem to imply equality of rank, rights, and obligations.

10. The use here of the expression bašta nadānu is unusual.

Loyalty and its rewards

TEXT: BM 29796.

[Rib-Hadda says] to [his] lord, [king of all countries, Great King, King of B]attle: May the La[dy o]f [Gu]bla grant power to the king, my lord. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. May the king, my lord, know 7–17 that Aziru is at war with me. He has seized 12 men of mine, and the ransom price between us he has set at 50 (shekels of) silver.<sup>1</sup> It was the men whom I sent to Şumur that he has seized.<sup>2</sup> In Waḥliya are the ships of the rulers<sup>3</sup> of Tyre, Beirut, and Sidon. Everyone in the land of Amurru is at peace with them; I am the enemy. As Yapaḥ-Hadda is now on the side of Aziru against me, he has, I assure you, seized a ship of mine, 18–26 and he has, I assure you, for this very reason been going to sea to seize my ships. May the king give thought to his city and his servant; my peas(an)try long only to desert. If you are unable to rescue m[e]<sup>4</sup> from my enemies, then send back word so I can know what action I am to take. 26–34 Look, I (must) keep writing like (th)is to you about Şumur.<sup>5</sup> Look, I did go and I strongly urged the troops to [guard i]t, but now they have abandoned it, [and] the garrison [has deserted].<sup>6</sup> And [for this reason I keep wr]iting.<sup>7</sup> I have sent [. . .]<sup>8</sup> a messenger of mine time and again. 35–43 How often did I send him and he was unable to get into Şumur! They have blocked all the roads against him.<sup>9</sup> That fellow looks with pleasure on the war against me and against Şumur. For 2 months he has been encamped against me. For what reason is your loyal servant so treated? For service to you! 44–50 If you are unable to fetch you[r] servant, then send archers to fetch me. It would be good to be with you.<sup>10</sup> The enemies of the king are at war with me, as are his mayors, to whom he gives thought.<sup>11</sup> For this reason my situation is extremely grave. 51–59 Look, ask the other Amanmašša if it was not (from) Alašiya that I sent him to you.<sup>12</sup> Give thought to your loyal servant. Pre[vi]ously, my peasantry got provisions from the land of Yarimuta, but now, now Yapaḥ-Hadda does not let them go. 59–69 W[hy are you negl]igent?<sup>13</sup> [The king must] send a garrison [to protect] yo[ur] loya[l] [servant. . .] . . . the enemies of the king, for they make a mayor who serves you with loyalty prowl about.<sup>14</sup> Moreover, give thought to me. Who will be loyal were I to die? Look, Yapaḥ-Hadda is on the side of Aziru.

NOTES

1. See EA 109, n. 9.

2. The unusual absence of coordinating conjunctions and clause-markers in lines 10ff., along with our ignorance of the location of Waḥliya, makes the division of clauses and the interpretation of these lines quite difficult. I reject Knudtson's version, according to which the ships of the three cities capture the men sent to Şumur, for this results in a construction without parallel in the Byblos corpus (feminine plural subject, masculine singular verb; in EA 105:20f., the same subject, "ships" [eleppētu], has a third feminine plural verb, ašā). I take u . . . šab(b)at as an explanatory clause, with inversion of word order stressing the identity of the men who were seized, though it might refer to another crime. Perhaps "in Waḥliya" belongs with this clause, but whether ships might as a result be at peace with the people of Amurru is not clear. Of course, if Waḥliya was not on the coast, then it could not serve as a port. I take the remark on the ships as intended to show the friendship of the three cities to Aziru, who now holds Waḥliya (EA 104:11).

3. On "men" in the sense of "rulers," see Introduction, nn. 73–74.

4. la-qa-i[a]: cf. EA 79:40; 82:7.

5. ki-(a)-ma, rather than ki-ma, for the following reasons: (1) kīma as a conjunction occurs only once in the Byblos corpus (EA 127:31), whereas anumma ki'amma followed by šapāru, usually in the indicative, is quite common (EA 74:49; 85:6, 55; 89:7; 91:27; 103:20; 118:8; 119:10f.; 122:53f.; 132:51); (2) anumma never introduces a subordinate clause; (3) anumma . . . anumma not infrequently introduces coordinate clauses (EA 78:1ff.; 85:6ff.; 90:18ff.; 106:8ff.; 362:21ff.). Occasionally, and perhaps here, kīamma, usually "thus, like this," shades over into the illative, "so, this being the case" (cf. EA 91:27; 103:20, "in these circumstances" [Knutdton]; 119:11).

6. Except for the curious marša (EA 103:49), (ÉRIN.MEŠ/LÚ.MEŠ) maššartu is in all clear cases construed ad sensum as masculine plural: cf. EA 79:30 / 125:14 (referred to by plural pronominal suffix in lines 33/18, respectively); 103:37, 49; 112:34; 130:37 (maššartu subject, verbs in the plural). In EA 126:25, the agreement with ÉRIN.MEŠ maššartu is probably therefore plural (tuššarūna), though feminine singular (tuššaru) is also possible; see EA 116, n. 1. Cf. also LÚ.MEŠ maššarū, also referred to by plural pronominal suffix (EA 117:79, 81); on 117:50, see below. Therefore, the subject of itezib (line 30) is not maššartu, and it can only be ÉRIN.MEŠ (šābu) understood; cf. ÉRIN.MEŠ as masculine singular in EA 76:38f.; 117:24, 27; 124:12; 126:40. Both šābu and maššartu must refer to the same troops; cf. EA 126:25, where ÉRIN.MEŠ is immediately followed by ÉRIN.MEŠ maššartu as synonymous. Line 31: [ù pa-aṭ-ru]: cf. the sequence ezēbu-paṭāru in EA 73:13f.; 82:42f.; 83:46ff., 49f.; 118:34f.); perhaps [ù en-na-bi-tu] (cf. EA 103:37).

7. [ki-na-na iṣ-tap]-ru: cf. EA 106:17f.

8. Probably a personal name in the break.

9. Perhaps "to it" (Šumur).

10. Cf. EA 74:62f.

11. Cf. line 54, "Give thought to your loyal servant." The king is concerned for those who are disloyal to him, while he is unconcerned for the loyal Rib-Hadda.

12. The word order puts stress on the place, but how or why Rib-Hadda should send anyone from or via Alašia remains obscure. The translation of lines 52f. by Smith in G. F. Hill, History of Cyprus, vol. 1 (Cambridge, 1940), p. 43, n. 2, has Rib-Hadda freeing Alašia.

13. a-[na] 60 [mi-ni qa-l]a-ta: the space seems too large to be filled by either ba ([ba-l]a-aṭ/ṭá) or TI (TI.L[A-ṭá]). Besides, why "provisions for the garrison," since at this time there was no longer a garrison at Byblos, in contrast, as Rib-Hadda notes so often, to earlier and better days?

14. Free restoration: 61 [LUGAL-ru yú]-wa-šī-ru-na 62 [a-na na-ša-ar Ṛ ki-t]i-k[a . . . . Cf. EA 117:76ff. On ti-da-lu-na (line 65), see EA 109, n. 11.

[Rib-Had]da writes t[o his lord], Great [Kin]g, king of all countries, King of [Ba]ttle: May the Lady of Gub[la gr]ant power to the king, my [lord]. I fall at the feet of [m]y lord, the Sun, [7 times] and 7 times. 6-16 May the king, my lord, know that the war [again]st us is very severe. As to its being told to you, "Šumur belongs to the king," may the [ki]ng know that there was an attack on our garrison,<sup>1</sup> and the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta seized it. And so there has been no one to carry wor[d t]o the king. But give thought to the fact that I am your loyal servant, and whatever I hear I write to [m]y lord. 17-24 Moreover, give thought to Šumu[r]. It is like a bird in a t[rap] : ki-lu-[bi] (cage). [The war] is very severe, and the messengers that [came] from the palace were [u]nab[le] to get [in]to Šumur. It was by nig[ht] that I got them in. 25-33 And here is how Yapaḥ-Hadda is not just in my regard: when my man arrived, he bound him.<sup>2</sup> May what is due to me [be gi]ven;<sup>3</sup> it is very much.<sup>4</sup> Now as the king is going to send the royal commissioners, may the king tell them to decide between us. 34-44 If the king gives (the property) to his servant, well and good! Or, on the other hand, let the king take everything for himself.<sup>5</sup> Moreover, all my towns have been joined to the 'Api[ru], and all of them [are extremely hostile] to me, for [Yapaḥ-Hadda keeps devising]<sup>6</sup> evil upon evil against me. They have no[th]ing, having paid ransom money, some twice, some three times.<sup>7</sup> 44-55 May the king heed the words of his loyal servant and give provisions to his servant and his maidservant, Gubla. Moreover, it would please me were I with you and so at peace. Look, Aziru and Yapaḥ-Hadda have made an agreement against me,<sup>8</sup> and I am unable [to d]o anything. Their actions [are hosti]le<sup>9</sup> to me. Accordingly, my situation is [ext]remely gra[ve]. 55-69 Moreover, note that we have been loyal servants of the king from ancie[nt ti]mes. Moreover, note that I am [your] loyal servant, but I have nothing but distress.<sup>10</sup> No[te] this matter. Note that I am the dirt at your feet, O king! Note: did not your father come out and visit (his) lands and his mayors?<sup>11</sup> And now the gods and the Sun and the Lady of Gubla have granted that you be seated on the throne of your father's house (to rule) your land. Who are they, the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, that they have [t]aken the lands of the king for themselves? 70–74 The king of Mittani? The king of Kaššu? The king of Ḫatti? May the king send archers (and) Yanḫa(mu) along with [the prefec]ts<sup>12</sup> from the land of Yarimuta. 75–80 The commissioner from Kumidu [...] ...

NOTES

1. Line 8: yú-qa-bu-na, following Izre'el, UF 19 (1987) p. 86. Lines rrf.: ma-qa-ti-ma a-(na) UN-nu: narrative infinitive; UN = maššartu, as in EA 114:31, 136:18, 234:15(?), and probably several times at Ugarit (Raine, IOS 3 [1973] p. 44); šabīū-še, suffix referring to maššartu (see EA 103, n. 3; 114, n. 6; 117, n. 10). Difficulties: (1) in EA, eli/muḫḫi is expected rather than ana; (2) it is assumed that there is a sign omitted (but cf. esp. EA 74:13; 103:10; 125:31; 138:135); (3) the motivation for "our garrison" is not clear. Both AHw, pp. 591 and 637, and CAD, M/I, pp. 140 and 437 (though on p. 333 UN is taken as maššartu) agree in reading ma-ka<sub>4</sub>-ti ma-a-un-nu, "I lack a dwelling." The difficulties with this reading: (1) ka<sub>4</sub> occurs only once in the Byblos corpus (ka<sub>4</sub>-bi-it, EA 88:17); (2) of a third weak verb the form expected here is makīīṭ (at Byblos, qabīīṭ, laqīīṭ, šamīīṭ, and the same rule elsewhere; ibaššāīṭ, ibaššāīṭunu, etc., is a special development); (3) this assumes the sudden intrusion of Canaanite and necessitates postulating, against the available evidence (Hebrew), that **ma'ōnu* was of feminine gender, in order to explain the suffix on šabīū-še; (4) in context, the statement makes little sense.

2. On the construction, see JCS 4 (1950) p. 169; rakša-šu is a verb (cf. rakšū-(šu)nu, EA 109:27), not an adjective (AHw, p. 948).

3. [tu]-ta-na, probably the passive form (tuttana/tuddana, third feminine singular) of yad(d)ina kittīya ina qāīya in EA 118:16f., which also refers to the litigation between Rib-Hadda and Yapah-Hadda.

4. ma'id is predicated of mimmīya, "my property," or something similar, understood (cf. EA 105:38). The subject is not kittīya (CAD, K, p. 471), which would have required ma'idat.

5. Cf. EA 118:16ff. The syntax is not clear.

6. The context seems to require an iterative (yaškunu, yīpušu).

7. Perhaps "some for two (persons), some for three." I read apil (active? passive?), stative of apālu. Were it not for the resulting very low sums, one might also consider "Some fetched (abil) two (shekels), some three, as ransom money" (cf. CAD, A/I, p. 20b).

8. For awata leqū ina birī, cf. EA 69, n. 2, and alkamma awatam ina birīṭīni i nilqe, "Come so we can reach an agreement between us" (Dalley et al., The Old Babylonian Tablets from Tell al Rimah [see EA 22, n. 19], no. 15:8ff.).

9. [KŪR-nu-ṭ]um: cf. EA 103:8.

10. mar<sub>x</sub>-ša-ma? Error for mur-šu-ma?

11. The sequence in lines 55–61 of šanīta amur ... šanīta amur ... amur ...

amur ... amur is without close parallel and seems to be extraordinarily emotional language.

12. [qf]-p[a]-ni: see VAB 2/2, p. 1593.

A lesson from the past

TEXT: VAT 350.

COPIES: WA 45; VS 11, 62.

Rib-Hadda [writes to his lord], Great [Kin]g, King of [Battle]; May the Lady of G[ubl]a gr[ant pow]er to the king, my lord, [m]y [Sun]. I fall at the feet of my lord, [m]y Sun, [7] times and 7 times. Indeed the king, my lord, keeps saying, "Why do you alone keep writing to me?" Here is my situation: there is not 10–21 a mayor from Šumur (southward) that supports me, and indeed, everyone is turned against me. And the two men from Egypt whom I sent to the palace have not come out. Did I not write to the king, "There is no one to bring my tablet to the palace. It is these two men that must bring a tablet to the king." And (n)ow,<sup>1</sup> as they have not come out, I am accordingly afraid and I have turned to my lord. 21–28 Moreover, I sent a ma[n]<sup>2</sup> to your father. When Amarnappa ca[me]<sup>3</sup> with a small force, I wrote to the palace that the king should s[en]d «should send» a large force. Did he not take 'Abdi-Aširta along with everything belonging to him, just as I said? 29–34 Had I been writing treacherous words to my lord? And you say, "Why do you write treacherous words?" If my words are heeded, Azaru will certainly be taken like [hi]s f[ather]. Look, I am the strong one of the king, [my] l[ord].<sup>4</sup> 35–43 Moreover, just who are they, the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, the servant (and) dog, [that they have tak]en<sup>5</sup> the cities of the king's mayors for [themselves]? They are with you? The cities are in Aziru's s[er]vice.<sup>6</sup> May the king not en[ter] their cities. They are not at peace (with you) from ... [as far as] Ullassa, the city where he has been sen[ding]<sup>8</sup> chariots. 43–52 Previously, I would desire to send a man [...] I [sent] men to Egypt an[d] «and» a g[ar]ri[so]n was sent<sup>10</sup> to me in their charge. Accordingly, I have sent this man. 53–64 Moreover, did I not write to the king, "The two men from Egypt must now come out to me. There is treachery<sup>11</sup> against me." But they have not come out. If th[is] year there are no archers, all the lands will belong to the 'Apiru. And if the king does not want to sen[d] archers, may he write to Yanḫamu and Piḫura, "March along with your mayors. Take the land of Amurru." In a day they will take it. 64–71 Moreover, I have litigation with Yapaḥ-Hadda and Ḫa'ip). May the king send a com[missioner to] de[ci]de between us. Everything that is taken from them belongs to the king. Let no one else take it for himself. May it please the king. 71–82 Moreover, may the king send horses to «(to)» his servant that I may guard the city of the king. I have nothing. Everything is gone, having been sold for provisions to keep me alive. May the king send this man of mine with all speed and give a garrison to guard his loyal servant and his city, and along with them men from Meluḫḫa, according to the practice of your ancestors. 83–94 Moreover, as to the king's saying, "Guard! Be on your guar[d],"<sup>12</sup> [wh]at i[s to guard me? Look, in] the days of [my] an[ces-tors, there was property of the king at their disposal, and] a garri[son of the king] was with them.<sup>13</sup> [But now], as for me, the wa[r is severe again]st me. I [have become af]raid of my peasantry. Thus must I be the one that keeps writing [to] the palace fo[r] a garrison and men from Meluḫḫa. But you have not wri[tt]en. Only one is st[ro]ng.<sup>14</sup> What am I to do? May the king se[n]d a gar[ri]son and men from Meluḫḫa to guard me. May the city not be joined to the 'Apiru.

NOTES

1. (i-na)-an-na.
  2. L[Ú]: certain.
  3. yi-la-[ak]: if yi-la-[ku-na] (Knudtzon, and see copy of VS 11), then "when he was coming." On laqi in line 27, see EA 108, n. 5.
  4. If KALAG.GA corresponds to dannu, "strong (one)," or to dunnu, "strength," as always elsewhere in the Byblos letters, the context suggests that strength is used here as implying trustworthiness. Or perhaps the reference is to the future, the situation after Aziru is taken, and the strong one then will be, not Aziru, but Rib-Hadda.
  5. [ù la]-qú: cf. EA 116:68f.; 123:39. The present-future form corresponding to singular yilqu (EA 71:18; 75:42; 91:4) is tilqūna (EA 104:22).
  6. šunu ittika: whether šunu refers to the mayors or the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, it is hardly a simple statement of fact. It may be simply a rhetorical question, but the context suggests that Rib-Hadda here alludes to the letter of the king just mentioned, in which, in answer perhaps to one of Rib-Hadda's charges, the king claimed that those referred to were really "with him," on his side. To this Rib-Hadda replies, quoting the king in a tone either of shock and sheer disbelief or perhaps of bitter sarcasm.
- Instead of Knudtzon's d[a-gi-il], which is followed here, Greenberg, Hab-piru, p. 39, proposed i[t-ti], "the cities are with Aziru." Attractive as this reading is, it seems excluded by comparison with it in the same line and in lines 65 and 81 (the broken sign lacks the two verticals at the beginning).

7. Kestemont proposed the reading URU N[IN.URTA] (Kestemont, Berytus 20 [1971] p. 49).

8. Against (URU ša) ia<sub>8</sub>-d[i-nu], "the city which gave" (Knudtzon) are the following: (1) the verbal prefix written with ia<sub>8</sub> (ia<sub>8</sub>-am-li-ik, EA 105:6, is the only certain example); (2) the assumption of ālu as masculine (prefix {ia}, not {ta}), whereas the noun is regularly feminine (exception, ennešša, EA 88:31? en-ni-ip-ša-(at)?). Hence, yú-w[a-ši-ru], "he has been sending"; for sending chariots, said of the king, see EA 131:12; 132:56 (?) [both from Byblos]; 180:6, 10, 21; 270:24; and 271:18. For the absence here of a resumptive pronoun or an adverb, I can offer no parallels—the evidence is extremely meager—except the general ones of Akkadian (GAG §165d, §166c) and Hebrew (P. Joüon, Grammaire de l'hébreu biblique [Rome, 1948], pp. 484f.), the use of the relative pronoun in reference to nouns of place.

9. References to Šumur, to the official Pawuru (line 47, [<sup>m</sup>pa]-wu-ra; pawuru as a common noun is found only in letters from Tyre, EA 149:30; 151:59; so also Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 159), and perhaps to Aziru (line 47; the absence of a determinative is not decisive).

10. The assumed passive meaning of the verb is unusual, and if ma-ša-ar is the correct reading, it is almost certainly an error for maššartu. On the gender agreement, see EA 116, n. 1.

11. šari: narrative infinitive (cf. EA 116, n. 1). Cf. šāru, "treacherous, enemy," and šāru, "to lie, charge falsely" (VAB 2/2, p. 1518), and perhaps šarum at Mari (AÉM 1/1, no. 199, note e).

12. lu na-ša-ra-[ta]: cf. EA 99:8; 112:9; 367:4; 370:5.

13. 85 [a-mur i-na] 86 UD].MEŠ a-b[u]-t' [i-ia mi-im-mi LUGAL-ri UGU-šū-nu] 87 [ù] ma-ša-ar-[(ti) LUGAL-ri]. Cf. EA 121:11ff.; 122:11ff.; 125:14ff.; 130:21ff. In line 86, balāḫ šarri, "provisions of the king," is also possible. Against this as the reading at the end of line 87 (Knudtzon), itti, "with," is said only of a garrison, whereas elimuhḫi is used with balāḫtu and mimmū. In line 87 I assume a reduction in number of signs in the line; note the following line.

14. I d[a-a]n-na: perhaps "Is a single (person) strong?" (Rib-Hadda referring to himself).

Not like other mayors

TEXT: BM 29808 + VAT 1662.

COPIES: BB 25 + WA 54; VS 11, 54.

Say to the king, my lord: Message of Rib-Hadda, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord 7 times and 7 times. 6–15 May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. I keep writing like this to the pala[ce], . . . [ . . . ] the war against me, and so may the king give a garrison to his servant. Moreover, I have litigation. Send the commissioner, let him hear my case, 16–23 and give me [m]y due,<sup>1</sup> or, on the other hand, let the king take from the mayors anything of mine for himself. Moreover, the war [again]st me is severe, and so there are no provisions [for] the peasantry. 24–33 Look, [th]ey have [gone off]<sup>2</sup> to the sons of ‘Abdi-Aširta, to Si(do)n and Beirut. As the sons of ‘Abdi-Aširta are hostile to the king, and Sidon a(nd) Beirut do not belong (any longer) to the king, send the commissioner to take them, 34–44 lest I abandon the city and go off to you.<sup>3</sup> Look, if the peasantry goes off, the ‘Apiru will seize the city.<sup>4</sup> Seeing that my only purpose is to serve the king in accordance with the practice of my ancestors, may the king send archers and pacify them. 45–56 As for the mayors,<sup>5</sup> since the cities are theirs and they are at peace, they do not keep writing to the king. It is against me and against Yanḫamu that there is war. Look,<sup>6</sup> previously the commissioner at Šumur would [d]ecide<sup>7</sup> between us, but now no mayor listens to hi[m]! The king has no servant like Yanḫamu—a loyal servant!

NOTES

1. The usual meanings of kittu, “justice, loyalty, truth,” do not fit this passage; see also EA 116:29. Context requires “right” (Knudtzon), “vindication,” or, even more concretely, “due.” Cf. Hebrew sedeq and šēdāqā, both of similar semantic range.

2. If [p]a-ṯ[á-ru] is the correct reading, then we must understand the desertion to have been only partial; cf. lines 39ff.

3. Against the reading ú-ul 1 (Knudtzon) are the position of the numeral and the considerations that support our version: as the sequence āla ezēbu-ṣatāru is used in the Byblos letters, the subject is first person and ṣatāru means “to go away”; cf. EA 82:43f.; 83:46f., 49f.; perhaps 114:30f. The difference between ṣatāru in the other passages and ipattara here is the explicit marking for mode in the latter.

4. Lines 36–39; see JCS 4 (1950) pp. 169f.

5. As the clear parallels in EA 124:35ff. (39) and 125:34f. make evident, either we must delete ana at the beginning of line 45 (anticipation of ana at the beginning of line 46 and failure to erase?), which seems preferable, both because of EA 125:34f. and because of the unusual type of error in the use of case endings (ana ḫazānūru), or we must take ana in the sense of “as to, concerning” (VAB 2/2, p. 1374f.).

6. a-((na))-[m]ur: cf. EA 122:11; 130:21.

7. [yú]-ṣa-ri-šū: taking the form as singular, despite MASKIM.MEŠ, for the passage is concerned with customary action in the past, and the expected plural form would be ṣa-ri-šūna. Cf. tilqūna, EA 104:25; tuballiṯūna, 114:56; and tīpu-šūna, 131:31.

Recalling past kindnesses

TEXT: VAT 349.

COPIES: WA 44; VS 11, 64.

Rib-Hadda writes to his lord, Great King, King of Batt(le): May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. 6–13 I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. As to the king, my lord's having written me, “Guard yourself,” [wh]at is to guard me? Indeed, I keep writing like this to the palace (for) a [g]ar[ri]son and for horses in order that I may gu[ard]<sup>1</sup> his [city]. 14–21 What am I to do? While alive I shall guard the king's city for him, but if I die, what can I (d)o? As to its having been said to the king, “Rib-Hadda has caused the death of (some) royal archers,”<sup>2</sup> 21–32 since the commissioners are alive, let me tell about all their deeds so the king will know that I am a loyal servant of his. May the king pay [n]o attention to the slanders against his loyal [ser]vant that [a treacherous man] may utt(e)r<sup>3</sup> before [the king, m]y [lord]. . . . 33–42 Rib-Hadda, is[ol]ated, is a servant of the king. [There is n]o one that has report[ed] my loyalty before the king, my lord. He knows my loyalty! The king knows how often he has done some kindness to me because I am without duplicity. 43–52 My only purpose is to serve the king, my lord. Now this case is a case concerning my loyalty, which I have declared.<sup>4</sup> Everything (belonging to me)—may the king, my lord, take [all of it]<sup>5</sup> for himself. [O]r my lord may give the small(er) [things] to ‘Abdi-Ha[dda].<sup>6</sup> Or 53–59 this may not be acceptable.<sup>7</sup> What more shall I say? There is still a second tablet, and it is this that will lay before the king all my things that are in Yapaḫ-Hadda's possession.

NOTES

1. [i-n]a-ša-[ru]: according to the rule of modal sequence; perhaps trace of ru as in copy of VS 11.

2. The grounds of the charge are not clear; see EA 124:51ff. Nor, in my opinion, is there evident a connection between EA 119 and 122–24 (Pintore, OA 12 [1973] p. 304, n. 29). The following clause does not make much sense if included in the charge (Knudtzon; Or n.s. 29 [1960] p. 15). The clause is understood here as the reason why Rib-Hadda is prepared to attack his accusers: the commissioners (?) (officials? officers?) associated with the events in question are alive and would support Rib-Hadda's version of what actually happened.

3. 28 [i]-d[a]-bu-(bu): a verb of speaking seems required, but no form of qabū is compatible with the traces; cf. adabbuba in line 23.

4. Cf. kitta qabû in lines 36f. That a relative clause (ša qabîr) should begin a sentence would be unparalleled. The declaration probably refers to the immediately preceding lines, but it might also be understood of what follows. The case concerns Rib-Hadda's loyalty probably in the sense of demonstrating it, for he is willing to give to the king all his stolen possessions. We may not exclude kittîya, "my due" (EA 118:16ff.), though it does not seem as likely an object of qabû.

5. Perhaps at the end of line 48 [gáb-ba], reemphasizing the extent of the offer.

6. 49 ... 'û' 50 [ú-nu-te/ta; following Rainey, UF 7 (1975) p. 400, n. 54. Abdi-še-[ba] (Rainey, ibid., n. 55) is not a likely reading. Knudtzon saw a whole IM; cf., too, EA 120:31.

7. annû lā laqê: cf. Rainey, ibid., p. 400. This proposal is here understood to mean that the king may want to give something to 'Abdi-Hadda, which only here is joined to the proposal that the king take everything. The assumed construction with the infinitive is not attested elsewhere in the Byblos corpus.

NOTES

1. See EA 119:55ff. The inventory form, which I retain, is abandoned at the end (lines 26ff.?).

2. u a-ša-lu; or "10 ašallu-bowls"; or "12 šalu" (Knudtzon).

3. KUŠ LAGABx? ze-ru-tu; see CAD, Z, p. 89. The same word appears in line 7.

4. Perhaps a kind of weapon; see E. Salonen, Die Waffen der Alten Mesopotamier (Helsinki, 1965), p. 56. The reading is doubtful.

5. ma-qi-bu: see Huehnergard, Ugaritic Vocabulary, p. 154.

6. nam-ši-ti for namsītu (nemsētū)?

7. "A second (bed)?"

8. 1 [G]U.ZA ka-ab-šu: see K. Bonkamp, Die Bibel im Lichte der Keilschriftforschung (Recklinghausen, 1939), pp. 274f.; and cf. Ugaritic kbt, despite Friedrich, AfO 14 (1941-42) pp. 329f.

9. Perhaps the remark concerns only the beds and the chair just mentioned; it certainly does not refer to material or weight. It may also be a summary remark, the conclusion of the list of Rib-Hadda's possessions, with the list of "her things" (line 36) in lines 20ff. Suggesting this possibility is the fact that the litigation with Yapaḥ-Hadda, which hitherto seemed to involve only Rib-Hadda's things, now also seems somehow concerned with a woman and "her things."

10. GIŠ.TASKARIN?

12. The reading "90 hundred" yields an absurdly high number and assumes an unparalleled writing of 9000; for "90-100," see EA 132, n. 6. Until lines 22ff. are better understood, we must allow for "90-100 maidservants; of manservants there are none."

13. Lines 22-25 are extremely difficult; perhaps on line 23 a remark on the beauty of the females (UR [bāšta]-šī-n[a]). The woman with whom lines 28ff. are concerned must have been named at the end of line 26. The powerful man of line 29 I assume was Yapaḥ-Hadda, and if his sister was to be fetched by emissaries of the king, and if she has "things," it would seem that she was to become part of the royal harem (cf. EA 99). If so, Yapaḥ-Hadda had still not sent either her or the "things." All of this remains quite obscure. See the discussion of Weber, VAB 2/2, pp. 122of.

14. Who the partner—that is, fellow mayor—was is not clear. The charge would seem to be that he directs his good deeds, not to the crown, but to others, from whom of course he will demand much in return. Instead of ú-da-me-i[q] (Knudtzon), ú da-me-i[q], "but he is kindly"?

NOTES

1. a-na-ku [ú-ul] 16 [ba]-la-t'ú': cf. EA 122:28ff. If [ia-nu] (Knudtzon) were used, we should have the accusative balāya; see JCS 2 (1948) p. 248.

2. [i-na UD.KAM]: see EA 108, n. 9. If archers are requested, then the subject of laqū is indefinite third plural; cf. n. 3.

3. ERÍN.MES pí-tá-ti <ti>-e[l-qé]: see EA 90, n. 10. Among the parallels note especially EA 107:30 and the sequence there of laqū-pašāhu. Haplography explains the omission of ti. All the parallels have u tilqe, but the conjunction seems optional in general. Of course, one could partly avoid the difficulty and translate "Let it take . . ."

4. KUR.KUR.MEŠ: following Thureau-Dangin, RA 19 (1922) p. 93, n. 1.

5. ú-ul [tu]-da-ku 53 ki-ma [UR.K]U: for the passive tudākū, cf. EA 131:28; 132:50.

Rib-Hadda writ[es t]o his lord, king of all countries, [Great] King, King of Battle: May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. I fall at the feet of my lord 7 times and 7 times. 9-19 As to the king's saying, "Guard yourself," consider that previously, in the days of my ancestors, there was a garrison of the king with them and property of the king was at their disposal, but as far as I am concerned, there are no provisions from the king at my dis[po]sal, and there is no garrison of the king with me. 19-31 I must guar[d mys]elf by myself.<sup>1</sup> . . . There is a garri[son] . . . of the king<sup>2</sup> with him, and there are pro[v]isions from the king at his disposal, but for me there is neither garrison nor provisions from the king. 31-39 Paḥura has committed an enormity against me. He sent Suteans and they killed širdanu-people.<sup>3</sup> And he brought 3 men into Egypt.<sup>4</sup> How long has the city been enraged at me! 40-49 And indeed the city keeps saying, "A deed that has not been done since time immemorial has been done to us!" So may the king heed the words of his servant and send (back) the men, lest the city revolt. What am I to do? 50-55 Listen to m[e]. For <my> sake, do not refuse!<sup>5</sup> [But whether] the men are at court o[r n]ot, listen to me. I keep writing like this to the palace, but <my> w[or]ds are <not> heeded.<sup>6</sup>

NOTES

1. ṛ-na-ša-r(u ra-m)a-ni-ia: inaššar is also possible, but context favors the durative. ramāna našāru: besides the frequent ušur ramānka, see also EA 125:12f.; 126:33.

2. In lines 24f., maššar[ti LU]GAL-ti LUGAL-ri is hardly right, since šarrūtu is unknown in the vassal letters, and the repetition of "royal" makes no sense.

3. Cf. EA 81:16. The same charge, in almost the same words, is repeated in EA 123, which clearly was written about the same time as EA 122. The use of Suteans probably implies a raid, killing, and kidnapping.

4. The word order emphasizes the object. It is these three men that are the pressing concern of Rib-Hadda and have aroused Byblos.

5. ši-mi (ia)-ši UGU (eli)-(ia): cf. the omission in line 55. On ti-im-i, see EA 136, n. 2.

6. a-(wa-tu-ia ú-ul) tu-uš-mu-na: cf. EA 74:49f.; 89:7ff.; 103:20ff.; 132:51ff.

4. di-[ik-ti/ka-at]: though dīktu occurs only once in peripheral Akkadian (S. Lackenbacher, RA 76 [1982] p. 145:37), still the proposed restoration seems worthy of consideration, seeing that the verb dāku, "to kill," is used of both 'Abdi-Aširta and Pawuru; see EA 101:5, 29; 131:22; 362:69; cf. 132:45.

5. Another possibility: "If at the death of 'Abdi-Aširta and Pawuru the king did not come out, he will not come out now." Cf. Or n.s. 29 (1960) pp. 14f.

6. 47 ... [na-ak-ru] 48 LÚ.MEŠ ša-ru-tu iš-t[u LUGAL]: cf. EA 113:49.

7. ú-ul GUD.MEŠ 50 ù la-a ÛZ.MEŠ: on the writing of ul, see EA 118, n. 3, and note the absence of "one" before ÛZ.MEŠ (EA 55, n. 2).

8. As the text stands, Rib-Hadda asks why the king sent charioteers (and? or?) archers, as if they could not be expected to be successful (Weber, VAB 2/2, p. 1206), and they were not. These archers could then be connected with those for whose death Rib-Hadda has been accused of being responsible (EA 119:18ff.; Pintore, OA 12 [1973] pp. 304f., n. 29). There are, however, no other clear links between EA 119 and EA 122-24, and in an unemended text there seems to be no grammatically and stylistically acceptable way of reading lines 54ff. that also makes sense.

9. I assume a shift of persons in referring to the king in lines 53-55. Also possible: "He will not be able ..., and then...."

10. 55 ... la-a-[(mi)] 56 [ti-il-q]ú-še: probably not enough room for [yi-il-q]ú-še.

11. 57 ... a-na (na)-[a-ar URU-šu] 58 [id]-na ...: cf. EA 127:26-29. A garrison (line 59) is not used for offensive purposes, and hence ana š[abāt] is excluded.

12. Another reference to the three Byblos citizens detained in Egypt; see EA 122f.

A study in contrasts

TEXT: BM 29802.

COPY: BB 19.

TRANSLATION: Oppenheim, LFM, pp. 130f.

To the king, [my] lord: Message of Rib-Hadda, [your] ser[vant]. I fall at the feet of my lord, my S[un], 7 times and 7 times. 5-13 May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. As to the king, my lord's, saying, "Guard yourself and guard the city of the king where you are,"<sup>1</sup> with what shall I guard myself and the city of [the king]? 14-24 Previously, there was a garrison of the king with me, and the king was accustomed to give grain for their food from the land of Yarimuta. But now Aziru has repeatedly raided me. I have neither oxen nor sheep and goats.<sup>2</sup> Aziru has taken everything. 25-32 And there is no grain for my food, and the peasantry has gone off to towns where there is grain for their food. Moreover, why does the king compare<sup>3</sup> me with the (other) mayors? 33-40 The mayors have their towns, and their pea(sant)ry<sup>4</sup> is in their control. But Aziru has my cities, and he seeks my life.<sup>5</sup> Why shall I make an alliance with him? 40-45 What are the dogs, the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, that <<that>> they do as they please and set fire to the cities of the king?

NOTES

1. ša ittīka: see Introduction, sect. 5.

2. See EA 55, n. 2.

3. yīštak(k?)anu-ni: durative, not punctive (Oppenheim), and šakānūl šitkunu kīma means "to compare"; see Liverani, RA 61 (1967) p. 8, n. 1; OA 10 (1971) p. 264, n. 61 (also in Three Amarna Essays, p. 11).

4. The first sign seems to be hu rather than ri, for the damage is such that, were the sign ri, one would expect to see some trace of the missing vertical. A reference here to the peasantry of the other mayors would also yield a more complete contrast with Rib-Hadda's plight; see lines 27ff. Against the alternative reading rēšušunu (Knudtzon; Liverani, ibid.) is also the fact that rēšu as the designation of a person does not appear in EA. Oppenheim's version, "The regents of the other towns, however, belong from head to toe to them (i.e., the tribe of 'Abdi-Aširti)," is without foundation in either grammar or context. See also EA 113:30f.; 118:45f.; 124:39.

Rejection of Byblos or Rib-Hadda?

TEXT: VAT 1183.

COPIES: WA 76; VS 11, 68.

Rib-Eddi.<sup>1</sup> Say to the king, my lord: I fall beneath the feet of my lord 7 times and 7 times. As for my lord's having written for bo[xwood],<sup>2</sup> it is taken from the lands of Salhi and from Ugarit. 7-13 I am unable to send my ships there, since Aziru is at war with me, and all the mayors are at peace<sup>3</sup> with him. Their ships go about as they please, and they get what they need. 14-23 Moreover, why does the king give the mayors, my friends,<sup>4</sup> every sort of provision, but to me not give anything? Previously, money and everything for the(ir) provisions were sent from the palace to my ancestors, and my lord would send troops to them. 23-33 But now I write for troops, but a garrison is not sent,<sup>5</sup> and nothing at all is given [to m]e. A[s for] the king, my lord's, [having said], "Gua[r]d yourself" and [the city of the king where you are]," how am I to guar[d myself]?<sup>6</sup> 34-42 I wrote t[o the king, my lord], "They have taken a[ll] m[y cities]; the son of 'Abdi-Aširta is their [master]. Gub[la is the only c]ity I have." I have ind[eed sen]t my mes[sen]ger t[o the king], my [lo]rd, but troops are not sen[t], and [my] messenger you do not allow to come out. 43–52 So send him along with rescue forces. If the king hates his city, then let him abandon it; but if me, then let him dismiss me.<sup>7</sup> Send a man of yours to g[uar]d it. Why is nothing given to me from the palace? . . .<sup>8</sup> the Hittite troops and they have set fire to the country. 53–60 I have written repeatedly, but no word comes back to me. They have seized all the lands of the king, my lord, but my lord has done nothing to them.<sup>9</sup> Now they are mobilizing<sup>10</sup> the troops of the Hittite countries to seize Gubla. 61–66 So give<sup>11</sup> thought to [your] city. And may the [k]ing pay no atten[tion] to the men of the army.<sup>12</sup> They give all the silver and gold of the king to the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, and the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta give this to the strong king,<sup>12</sup> and accordingly they are strong.

NOTES

1. A number of distinctive features associate EA 126, 129, 137(?), and 362, indicating that they were written by the same scribe, about the same time: (1) the greeting formula of EA 126 and 362, identical and unparalleled except perhaps in EA 129; (2) the writing am-quit, in EA, only 126:3, 362:4, and possibly 128:23 (x-quit); (3) fluctuation between {ūna} and {ūni} only in EA 126 and 362 (EA 126: tu-ba-lu-na in lines 58–59, but ta-di-nu-ni in lines 64–65; EA 362: te-eq-bu-ni in lines 17 and 25, but te-eq-bu-na in line 21; see also lines 24, 35, 44, and n. 12 below); (4) Hittites referred to as a threat only in EA 75:35ff., 126:50ff., and probably 129:76ff.; (5) teli-ba-ū-na only in EA 129 and 362, perhaps 93:15, instead of normal tu-ba-ū-na; (6) kazbūtu, "lies," only in EA 129:37 and 362:53, besides 138:119; (7) EA 129:32f. = 362:25f., and 129:29 = 362:45; (8) ḫummuṣu, "to send (troops) quickly," only in EA 129:78 and 362:7, besides 102:29 (see also EA 88, n. 7); (9) the Egyptian official, whose name is written in several ways, appearing as mpf-wu-ri only in EA 129, 131, and 362.

2. In view of tu-ul<sub>11</sub>-qū-na in line 6, the logogram is to be read as feminine singular or common plural. The latter seems more likely ("logs," "beams," being understood). If the correct reading is <sup>818</sup>TASKARIN<sup>7</sup>-ma, the force of the enclitic escapes me.

3. See EA 90, n. 7.

4. See EA 113, n. 9.

5. tu-š[a-ru] or tu-š[a-ru-na]: see EA 114, n. 6, and cf. yū-ša-ru, line 40.

6. a-na-ša-r[u ra-ma-ni-ia]: see EA 122, n. 1.

7. I read ia-ti-ia "ū", though Knudtzon's ši-b[a], "old man," is possible. Nothing requires it, however, and the parallelism of the two sentences favors the introduction of both apodoses by u. In support of taking i-zi-ba-ši in the sense of "(then) I will abandon it," EA 82:41ff. and 83:45ff. have been cited as parallels, and it has also been argued that the king would not be asked to send a replacement if he were being told to abandon Byblos (Liverani, RA 61 [1967] p. 13, n. 4). The latter argument ignores the fact that the replacement is called for only under the second condition. My interpretation, in which, depending on whether the king rejects the city itself or its ruler, the king has two possible courses of action, seems clearer and more forceful. Note, too, how frequently, if one hates, one also flees (nābutu) or abandons (ezēbu); see the passages cited in CAD, Z, pp. 97f.

8. Knudtzon's description of the sign(s?) is exact; aš-šu is excluded. la(?), "Are there not the Hittite troops . . .?"

9. iš(text:tu)-tu.

10. See M. Lichtenstein, JANES 2 (1970) p. 100, n. 49.

11. See EA 101, n. 4.

12. In ta-di-nu-ni I take {ūni} as a free variant of {ūna} and a peculiarity of this scribe. Izre'el, UF 16 (1987) p. 91, n. 37, has challenged this view and would translate the forms with {ūni} as preterites. In EA 362:21–25, however, the time reference of teqbūna and teqbūni is almost certainly the same; note also the parallelism of teba'ūna and teqbūni. Decisive, however, is the fact that in the strictly parallel passages EA 129:32–33 = 362:25–26, the teqbūna of the first is replaced in the latter by teqbūni.

The "strong king" was probably the Hittite ruler (Murnane, The Road to Kadesh [see Introduction, n. 119], p. 206) rather than the king of Mittani (G. Bunnens, AIPHOS 20 [1968–72] p. 150).

. . .<sup>1</sup> 12–22 Let the arch[ers] come out [an]d fetch us.<sup>2</sup> Cry out, "On to Gubla!"<sup>3</sup> For who—seeing that everyone is against me—who is to rescue me? [I assure yo]u, upon the taking of Gubla<sup>4</sup> there will be no men from Egypt [who] will get in here. Should Gubla be [jo]ined<sup>5</sup> [to] the [‘Ap]iru, then there will be no [soldiers from Ka]ša who will get in. 23–29 [Certain]ly, Yanḫamu being [with you], the king should inquire from him [about the sl]anders.<sup>6</sup> Gubla is a loyal city. If it is the desire of the king, my lord, to guard his city, then may my lord give a garrison of . . . [ . . . ], and it will be guarded. 30–41 And now I declare, my lord: when<sup>7</sup> previously 'Abdi-Ašratu used to come up against me, I w[as str]ong, but now there has been a controversy among my men, and it is different.<sup>8</sup> I am being hard-pressed : ší-ir-ti (I am besieged).<sup>9</sup> May my lord grant 100 men and 100 soldiers from Kaši, and 30 chariots, that I may guard the land of my lord until a large force of archers comes out, [and] my lord [ta]kes the land of Amurru [fo]r himself, [and it h]as peace.

NOTES

- Line 8: ù qé-bi-ir qa-al, "and he was buried. [The king] did nothing." Line 12: [. . . m̄ia-ab-n̄i-i-d̄IM (Hadda/Ba'al).
- If ÉRIN.MEŠ piṭṭi is the subject of both verbs, tusši and tilqe are expected; cf. the feminine singular adjective rabīti in line 39.
- "(Let us set) our faces upon Gubla," (nadlma) pa-ni-nu elimubbi U[R]U gub-la.
- [al-lu]-mi la-qé: infinitive rather than stative laqar; for the construction, with loss of voice distinction, see JCS 4 (1950) pp. 169ff.
- [ti-ni-i]p-ša-mi: lit. "let Gubla be joined" (yaqtula); cf., however, EA 88:31 (en-ni-ip-ša-(at)?).
- [a-na k]a-ar-ši: cf. EA 119:26; perhaps "the slanders against Gubla, the loyal city."
- kīma*, "when," is without parallel in the Byblos corpus.
- If Durand's analysis of riḫnu in AĒM 1/1, pp. 181ff., is correct, and if it is pertinent here, then the context suggests that the controversy or palaver concerned their loyalty to Rib-Hadda. šani, "another" (palaver)?
- I read is-sà-qú : šī-ir-ti; Akkadian siāqu, "to become narrow, straitened" = Canaanite šūr, "to confine, besiege." The Akkadian form seems to be an erroneous perfect, issāq(for issīq) + {u} of Canaanite durative.
- Five lines, with a reference to the 'Apiru. Last words: "[then I will] die."

3. ti-'i'-[pu-šu-na]: cf. ti-e-te-pu-šu in line 88.

4. UR.MEŠ-'ka'-b[u]: as in line 81, for ka-UR.MEŠ-bu (kalbū), which is comparable to KÜR-nu (originally for nukurtu, passim), TÉŠ-ba (for bāšta, EA 102:7), and perhaps [SA]G<sup>2</sup>-q[à]-di (for qaqqadi, EA 209:16). Better, ka-(al)-bu?

6. 'a'-[n]a [qa-at].

7. LÚ e[m-qu šu-ut] 16 ša ka-bu-ut ma-gal: cf. EA 106:39 and 107:23, assuming here a sporadic Assyrianism (kabbut).

9. ana (ša)-šu-[nu].

10. irtīha[t a-na ia-ši]: enough room?

11. [URU.KI gub-la]: enough room?

12. ti-iš-b[u ar-na]: šabū, "to desire, long for," is otherwise unattested in the periphery.

13. i-nu-[ma la-a] 28 š[u-l]: the king's silence shows indifference and encourages the rebels.

14. i-pi-iš [ar-ni]: EA 129:29 = 362:45.

15. ša-bat-mi ni-[nu]: EA 129:32 = 362f.; see JCS 4 (1950) p. 170. In EA 129 and 362, the MEŠ in URU.(KI).MEŠ is either otiose or carries with it the connotation of "all/greater Gubla" (or the like); see also Thureau-Dangin's translation, RA 19 (1922) pp. 91ff. Cf. URU.KI in line 31, but here URU.KI.MEŠ; similarly, EA 362:26 has URU.MEŠ, but 362:28 URU.KI. That Byblos, and not the outlying villages, is intended throughout is also required by context. Only the city of Baṣruna remains, and the prize sought by the enemy and feared by Rib-Hadda is the capture of Byblos itself (EA 362:12f.). Note, too, that in EA 129:53, where the hope is expressed that the king will not dismiss the threats expressed by Rib-Hadda, only one city is referred to.

16. Cf. amur-mi in EA 362:27, which follows immediately after the sentence beginning, "If we seize ..."

17. Artzi, Bar-Ilan 1 (1963) pp. 38f., explains the gloss as Akkadian

kāmma-mi, "thus," whereby the scribe emphasizes that it is right to call what the king wrote lies. I do not accept the alleged parallel in PRU 3, p. 48:16.

18. Perhaps better: "(If) there are no archers (and) they do not come out, they will be stronger. ..." Cf. EA 362:27 and line 44 below.

19. [a-mur-m]i: cf. EA 362:27, and see n. 16 above.

20. [ū la]-qū-mi.

21. [ū da-nu m]i-na ... 45 [a-na IR-ka m]rib-hadda: cf. u dannū in EA 362:28; Knudtson's restoration is grammatically unacceptable (riqbūna required). In line 45, the parallel in line 34 suggests a restoration of [pí-tá-tu], which would also fit the break perfectly. But this would leave the personal name hanging in the air. Perhaps Rib-Hadda refers to himself by name because he is implicitly citing the words of his enemy.

22. ti-n[a-ša-ru-n]a.

23. If the ships were to fetch "me alive" (Knudtson), we should expect balta, not balṭi, and right after tilqūni; see Or n.s. 29 (1960) p. 4, n. 3. The "living god" is very likely the same god that is mentioned in EA 84:35.

24. mi-di la ša-ab-ta-at pa-[aš-ḥa-at]: see JCS 31 (1979) p. 94, n. 46.

25. tu-'iš'-ba-t[u-na], "your messengers are being seized"?

26. Perhaps, 74ff., "Who are they? the king of Mittani? the king of Kaššu? the king of Hittite countries?" Cf. EA 116:7of.

27. See n. 4.

28. pal-ḥa [iš]-tu LUGAL BE-[ia]: cf. Hebrew yārē' min. If Biryawaza is afraid of the king (as the king says he is), he is not showing it and attacking the king's enemies.

29. The most likely reading seems to be URU.KI a[z-za-ti], Gaza; see Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 170; Helck, Beziehungen, p. 249.

30. le-[qú-mi]: again (see n. 28) Rib-Hadda seems to refer to a letter from the king.

31. a[r-na] 87 [ep-šu]: despite Knudtson's objections, VAB 2/1, p. 552, note a.

32. 'dan'-nu.

33. The scribe of EA 126, 129, and 362 never introduces a city simply by URU, but by URU.MEŠ or URU.KI(.MEŠ), and so it is unlikely that URU š[u-mu-r]i is correct. I propose i-pi-(ri) KI.URU (logogram reversed) š[u-mu-r]i; cf. eperū, "territory," which is attested in Alalakh, Aleppo, and Boghazköy (Šunaššura treaty).

Life among the 'Apiru

TEXT: VAT 1624.

Say [t]o the king, my lord: Message of Rib-Hadda, your servant. May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 9–14 As to the king's having written to me, "Irimayašša is coming to you," he has not come to me. 14–20 As to the king's having written me, "Guard yourself and guard the city of the king where you are," who can guard me? 21–31 Look, formerly my ancestors [were str]ong. There was war against the[m, but] a garrison [of the king] was wi(t)h them. There were provisions from the king at their disposal. [Though the war against me] is seve[re], I have [n]o [provision]s [from the king or gar]ri[son] of the king]. Wh[at shall I] do? 32–42 As for the mayors, [the]y are the ones who strik[e] our city. They are like dogs, and there is no one who wants to serve them. What am I, who live among 'Apiru, to do? If now there are no provisions from the king for me, my peasantry is going to f[igh]t (against me).<sup>2</sup> 43–52 A(l) lands are at war against me. If the desire of the king is to guard his city and his servant, send a garrison to guard the city. [I] will guard it while I am [a]live. When [I] die, who is going to [gu]ard it?

NOTES

1. ti-du-ku-[na šu]-nu.
2. If the verb in question is šanānu, perhaps "will become hostile"; see Liverani, in Garelli, ed., Le Palais et la Royauté (see Introduction, n. 73), p. 188, n. III, who notes the parallelism in Ugaritic of nkr and in.

A commissioner killed

TEXT: BM 29807.

[...] 6–14 My lord [us]ed to send<sup>1</sup> a garri[son] to Gubla. Šumur has now been seized; troops from Gubla have been killed. If the desire of the king, my lord, is (to guard) Gubla, then may my lord send 300 soldiers, 30 chariots, and 100 men from Kaši, that they may guard Gubla, the city of my lord. 15–20 If the king does not send the summer-grain,<sup>2</sup> should troops a[dv]an[ce]<sup>3</sup> on Gubla, they will s[ur]ely take it, and m[e, your servant],<sup>4</sup> they will kill. . . . 21–30 They have attacked<sup>5</sup> commissioners: ma-lik.MEŠ (counselors) of the king. When Pewuru, the king's counselor, was killed, he was placed in . . . We are servants of the king, and it is distressing for us to see that w(e) are going to be taken.<sup>6</sup> I myself am afraid I will be kil[led].<sup>7</sup> The corps[e] was cas[t aw]ay; i[t] had no one for fu[nerary offerin]gs.<sup>8</sup> 30–40 [Form]erly,<sup>9</sup> this is the way they acted: the king, [your] fath[er], did [not]<sup>10</sup> send a small archer force, and he t[ook] everything. Paḥamnata would not listen to me, and he went on with his tr[each]erous activities. Now his son has plund[er]ed.<sup>11</sup> Šumur. If [the king] heeds the words of his servant and [sends] a large archer force, he (the king) will [take everyt]hing.<sup>12</sup> 41–47 As to its being said<sup>13</sup> be[fore] the king, "There is no grain (or) food [for] the archers to eat," wherever are all the cities of the king food and grain [may be found]. . . . 48–56 [. . .] 57–62 [. . .] *arch*ers and auxiliary forces [. . .]<sup>14</sup> He must not neglec[t] [his city].<sup>15</sup> If he does not send (them) [to Gubl]a, they will take it, and [. . .]. The lands of Canaan will not belong to the king. [May the king ask] Yanḥamu about th[ese] ma[tt]ers.<sup>16</sup>

NOTES

1. [yú-š]i-ru: cf. yú-šī-ra (line 12) and yú-šī-ru (line 15); [uš-š]i-ru (Knuadt-zon) must assume an extremely rare plural of majesty.
2. The difficulties with ŠE.MEŠ qè-e-šī are (1) ŠE is not completely certain; (2) qè (GI) is otherwise unknown in the Byblos corpus; and (3) the subject of supplies is introduced suddenly and in an unparalleled manner.
3. 'yi-ša'-[ba]-ta, a-na URU.KI gub-l(a) KASKAL? (ḥarrāna): if yīšabbata is the correct reading, note the change in number in tilqūnašī, which is perhaps to be taken as an indefinite plural. The final {a} is probably a fossilized ventive, not modal. Also possible (Knuadt-zon): "If . . . , then troops will advance . . ."
4. ia-[a]-t[i] ḪR-ka: cf. line 28. The tablet is badly damaged or eroded here, and the interpretation of traces is extremely difficult and subjective.
5. The context suggests that qerēbu, "to approach," here implies hostility; cf. qitrubu and taqrubtu, Hebrew q'rāb.
6. ni-(nu) na-lá-qú: very tentatively taken as passive of leqū (nulaqqu or nulqu expected); alāqu = ḥalāqu, "to perish"?
7. ú-da-a-k[a]: the reading is almost certain; on the syntax, see Or n.s. 29 (1960) p. 14.
8. 28 . . . udāk[a] LÚ.ÚŠ 29 yú-n[a-d]a LÚ.KI.[SÈ.GA]-pí 30 ia-nu a-na ša-a-[šū] . . .: quite conjectural. Reference to Pewuru's body? Another possibility: "Should a corpse be laid to rest, there is no one. . . ."
9. 30 . . . ana ša-a-[šū] pa-na-nu-ma: elsewhere in the Byblos corpus, pānānu, not pānānumma.
10. Unless this passage contradicts EA 117:23ff., either a negative is to be restored or the sentence must be read as a question; note, too, the request for a large force in lines 38ff. Beginning of line 32: read probably yú-šīr or yú-(wa)-šīr; see VAB 2/2, p. 1594. End of line 32: if ab-b[u-ka] is the correct reading, the doubling must be ignored. Read AD-b[u-ka] = abūka?
11. Na'aman, Political Disposition, pp. 166f., proposes yu-ḥa-[li-iq], but it is questionable whether there is enough room.
12. In view of yīšmu (line 38), probably [y]ú-[šī-ru] (line 39) and yī-[il-qú] (line 40).

13. yū-qa-bu: following Izre'el, UF 19 (1987) p. 86.

14. If archers are mentioned in line 57, then a form of našāru, "to guard," is not to be restored in the break; see EA 88, n. 8. Parallels (EA 112:33ff.; 132:56ff.) suggest a form of pašāhu (u pašhat al gubla, "then Gubla will be at peace"?).

15. lāmi [i-m]a-a[k]-ki 59 [ana URU.KI-šu].

16. 62 [yi-ša-al m]ia-an-ḥa-ma a-na a-(wa)-te.MEŠ an-(nu-tu): cf. EA 132:29ff.

The hope for peace

TEXT: BM 29801.

[S]ay [to] the king, my lord, m[y] Sun: Message of Rib-Hadda, your [ser]vant. May the Lady of Gubla grant power to the king, my lord. I fall at the feet of my lord 7 times and 7 times. 8–18 Moreover, give thought to Gubla, your loyal city. Earlier, 'Abdi-Aširta attacked me, and I wrote to your father, "Send the royal archers, and the entire land will be taken in a day."<sup>1</sup> Did he not take<sup>2</sup> fo[r himself] 'Abdi-Aširt[a], together with his possessions? 19–23 Now Aziru has gathered a[ll] the 'Apiru and has said to them, "If Gubla is not ... [..]"<sup>3</sup> 24–28 [..]... 29–37 [L]ook, Yanḥamu being with you, a[sk him] if I did not say to him, "If you make an alliance ... [..] with the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, they will take you prisoner."<sup>4</sup> He listened t[o me], and he guarded the c[ities] of the king, his lord. 37–50 I said the same thing to Pawuru so he would not listen to the words of Ḥa'i[p], whose father turned the citi[es] into enemies.<sup>5</sup> Now Ḥa'ip has hand[ed over] Šumur. May the king not neglect this deed, since a commissioner was killed. If now you are negligent, then Piḥura will not stay in Kumidu, and all your [ma]yors will be killed. 51–59 I keep (wr)iting like this to the pa[lac]e, [but] no attention is paid [t]o me. Send ships to fetch the Lady's property and me. [Sen]d 50–100 men and 50–100 m[en fro]m [Meluḥ]ḥa, 50 chariots, [to g]uard [the city] for you.<sup>6</sup> Se[nd] archers and bring peace to the land.

NOTES

1. On the otiose MEŠ in UD.KAM.MEŠ, see EA 109, n. 2.

2. On laqi, see EA 108, n. 5.

3. Perhaps ni-x-[x] (line 23); the third vertical of ir (Knudtzon, BB) is not clear. "If we do not ... Gubla, then ...?"

4. a-pa-ši x-[x-x] at-ta ki-ta it-[ti DUMU.M]EŠ mīR-a-ši-ir-ta u la-qú-ka ša-ma a-na [ia-ši]: see JCS 4 (1950) p. 170; Or n.s. 29 (1960) p. 10, n. 1. In my opinion, MEŠ definitely belongs on line 33; on line 32, the vertical after ŠI in BB is certain, but a plausible restoration escapes me.

5. On lines 37ff., see Or n.s. 29 (1960) p. 10, n. 1; for a somewhat different version, see Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 167.

6. Line 57: [(š) ti-n]a-šf-r[u]. If there is not enough room for the conjunction, the construction is asyndetic, for which see EA 121, n. 3. Rules of modal sequence exclude anašširu (Knudtzon). On the reading of the numbers, see Pintore, OA 11 (1972) p. 103, n. 9.

1. [uš-ši-ra]-mi [ÉRIN.MEŠ]: cf. EA 82:15; 90:15; 94:10; 132:13.
2. If read correctly, lit. "have not gone up" (elû). To their heavenly dwellings, abandoning their earthly ones in Byblos?
3. nadltnu: taken as first plural (cf. nadltna in EA 89:16); perhaps nadnû, "have been given up."
4. [IR] "LÚ" UR.RI (kalbi)? In the break there is room for an average-size sign, followed by a somewhat oblique wedge, under which traces of a horizontal, possibly crossed by two or three verticals; then the erasure. Cf. ## Rib-Hadda from Beirut

TEXT: BM 29799.

COPY: BB 16.

PHOTOGRAPH: BB, pl. 20.

[T]o the king, my lord: Message of Rib-Hadda, your servant, the dirt at your feet. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 6-15 May the king, my lord, heed the words of his servant. Men of Gubla, my own household, and my wife, kept saying to me,

"Ally yourself with the son of 'Abdi-Aširta so we can make peace<sup>1</sup> between us." But I refused.<sup>2</sup> I did not listen to them.

16-23 Moreover, I repeatedly wrote to the king, my lord, "Send immediately<sup>3</sup> a garrison to your servant that they may guard the city for the king, (my) lord." No word, however, from the king, my lord, has reached his servant.

24-36 Moreover, when I was hard pressed,<sup>4</sup> I thought to myself, "Come! I must mak(e) an alliance of friendship : TU.KA<sup>5</sup> with Ammu-nira." So I went to his house in order to make an alliance of friendship between (us). Then I returned to my own house, but he barred the house against me.<sup>6</sup> May the king, my lord, give thought to his servant.

37-46 I am now awaiting day and night the archers of the king, my lord. May the king, my lord, give thought to his servant. If the king, my lord, does not have a change of heart, then I will die.<sup>7</sup> May the king, my lord, give life to his servant. Moreover, they have given two of my sons and two of my wives to the rebel against the king.

NOTES

1. šalma epēšu, for salīma epēšu (AHw, p. 1149b), or perhaps šul<sub>x</sub>-ma epēšu.
2. Cf. ma'û, "to push away, repel" (AHw, pp. 637, 1574; von Soden, OLZ 76 [1971] cols. 246f.); see also EA 122, n. 5.
3. BIL? hamātu, "to burn," confused with hamātu, "to hasten"? uššira ħumta (imperative), hendiadys? Cf. EA 137:79.
4. Following CAD, §, p. 123.
5. DÜG.GA : TU.KA: the gloss is a syllabic writing of the Sumerogram DÜG.GA. The Akkadian equivalent—if there was one and the expression was not simply "to make tuka"—was probably īābūtu (JNES 22 [1963] pp. 173ff.; AHw, p. 1378); see also EA 302, n. 2, and Introduction, n. 59.
6. The form id-du-ul is more easily explained as active; the unnamed subject would be Rib-Hadda's brother (cf. EA 137:14ff. and EA 82, n. 5). If it is passive (CAD, E, p. 26b), eddul, an Assyrianism?
Locked out of his own house and driven from his city (EA 137:24f.), Rib-Hadda writes this letter and EA 137-38 from Beirut. The format (crude paragrphings) and some features of the language (e.g., šanīta u and endū(m) in line 24; ittīšu ša PN in line 29) distinguish EA 136 from the letters written at Byblos.
7. Perhaps better: "Look, there is no divided loyalty. For the king, my lord, I would die." On šumma, "look," see EA 35, n. 3; on libbu šanû, "divided loyalty," lit. "another heart," cf. EA 119:42; 169, n. 2; 371:18; and "another face" in EA 253:27.

An old man in exile

TEXT: Golenischeff (see Introduction, sect. 1).

COPY: WA 71.

TRANSLATIONS: Oppenheim, LFM, pp. 132ff.; Albright, ANET, pp. 483f.; Seux, Textes du Proche Orient, pp. 48ff.

Rib-Ad[di says]<sup>1</sup> to the king, [his] lord, [the Sun of all countries]: [I fall] beneath the feet [of the king, my lord], 7 times and 7 tim[es]. 5–14 I wrote repeatedly fo[r a garrison], but it was not granted, [and] the king, my lord, did [not] heed the word[s of his servant]. I sent a mess[enger of mine] to the palace, but he re[turned] empty-handed; he had no garri[son]. The men of my [bouse] saw that no money had been given, and so, like the mayors, my brothers, they did me injustice<sup>2</sup> and despised me. 14–26 Moreover, when I had gone to Ḥammuniri, my younger brother turned Gubla into an enemy in order to give the city to the sons of ‘Abdi-Aširta. When my brother saw that my mess(en)ger had come out empty-handed and that there was no garrison with him, he despised me. Accordingly, he committed a crime and drove me from the city. May the king, my lord, not neglect the deed of this dog. 27–35 I personally am unable to enter the land of Egypt. I am old and there is a serious illness in my body. The king, my lord, knows that the gods of Gubla are holy, and the pains are severe,<sup>3</sup> for I com(mit)ted sins against the gods.<sup>4</sup> Accordingly, I shall not enter the presence of the king, my lord. 36–51 So I herewith send my own son,<sup>5</sup> a servant of the king, my lord, into the presence of the king, my lord. May the king heed the wo(r)ds of his servant, and may the king, my lord, grant archers so they may se[ize]<sup>6</sup> Gubla, and traitor(ous) troops and the sons of ‘A[bdi]-Aširti not [en]ter it,<sup>7</sup> and the archers of the king, m[y] lord, be too few<sup>8</sup> to take it. As there are many that are loyal to me in the city (and) few the traitors in it, when the archers come forth and they hear (of it),<sup>9</sup> as soon as they arrive, the city will return to the king, my lord. 52–58 The king, my lord, knows that I will die for him. When I was in the city, I guarded it for my lord, a(nd) I was dedicated to the king, my lord. I did not give the city to the sons of ‘Abdi-Ašrati.<sup>10</sup> Accordingly, my brother turned the city into an enemy in order to give it to the sons of ‘Abdi-Ašrati. 59–65 May the king, my lord, not neglect the city. Note, there is much silver and gold in it, and much is the property belonging to its temples.<sup>11</sup> If the king, my lord, seizes it, let him do to his servant as he will, but may he give(e) Burusilim for me to live in.<sup>12</sup> 65–77 I am now with Ḥammuniri. When the cities became hostile, Burusilim became hostile, being in fear of the sons of ‘Abdi-Aširta.<sup>13</sup> When I came to Ḥammuniri because of the sons of ‘Abdi-Ašrati, seeing they were stronger than I and there was no breath from the mouth of the king for me, I said to my lord, “If Gubla becomes their city,<sup>14</sup> there is much property of the king in it, possessions of our an(ces)tors in the past. If the king neglects the city, of all the cities of Canaan not one will be his. May the king not neglect this matter.” 78–89 I herewith send your servant, my son, to the king, my lord, and may the king send him quickly along with troops that they may take the city. If the king, my lord, shows me favor and returns me to the city, then I will guard i[t]<sup>15</sup> . . .] as before for the king, my lord. If the king, my lord, [does not return me] to it, then [. . .] the city from B[ur]us[ilim]. May the king, my lord, d]o as he wi[ll to his servant, but let him not] ab[andon me. I am with] Ḥammun[iri . . .]. How lo[ng am I to stay with him]? 90–104 May [the king, my lord], heed [the words] of his servant . . . [ . . .], and may he send troops quickly to take the city. May the king, my lord, not neglect this painful deed that has been done to the lands of the king, [my lord]. May the king, [my] lord, rush<sup>16</sup> archers to seize the city as quickly as possible. Should it be said to the king about the city, “It is a strong city,” it will not be strong before the troops of the king, my lord.

NOTES

1. Perhaps <sup>m</sup>ri-ib-ad-[di qí-bí-mal<sup>m</sup>i], “Rib-Addi. Say . . .”; see EA 126 and n. 1.

2. ti-iš-la-u<sub>5</sub>; šalā’u (AHw, p. 1147; only Old Assyrian)? Knudtzon and Ebeling translate as “inveigh against,” Oppenheim, LFM, pp. 132ff., as “insult,” and Albright, ANET, pp. 483f., as “ridicule,” all apparently only from context; no etymology is proposed.

3. mur-šú-ú (cf. mur-ší-i, EA 75:18?) magal: since magal elsewhere never serves as an adjective, perhaps better, muršu-ma GAL (rabil/rabû), “the pain/pains, too(?), is/are great.” Albright, “the illness is severe”; Oppenheim, “my disease has become chronic” (too free).

4. ep-(šá)-ti: cf. EA 89:17; 113:11. Against the reading ep-ti, “I confessed” (Knudtzon; Oppenheim, LFM, pp. 132ff.; AHw, p. 86ob) is that neither Akkadian petû nor the related root ptḥ in West Semitic languages ever means “to confess.” The attested meaning of “to reveal” does not fit the context; Rib-Hadda’s sins were presumably no secret to the gods. Furthermore, unless one assumes either a parenthetical remark or an unparalleled construction (Oppenheim: “although I confessed . . .”), the clause enunciates one more reason why Rib-Hadda cannot go to Egypt, and this can hardly be because he confessed his sins.

Mutatis mutandis, ep-dì, "I have redeemed (by a vow)" (Albright), suffers from the same difficulties: the assumed meaning is without parallel in Akkadian or West Semitic. It could explain Rib-Hadda's not going to Egypt only on the assumption that he had vowed not to go.

ḫīta epēšu: Standard Babylonian, Ugarit, Egypt (EA 162:9). ḫīīta epēšu: Bo-ghazköy. On a causal clause introduced by u, cf. EA 101:3ff., 29f.; 104:36ff.; 105:36f.; 139:11f. The word order (object-verb) stresses the object: Rib-Hadda sinned against the gods.

5. The word order (object-verb) emphasizes the fact that Rib-Hadda is sending his own son, a measure of the gravity of the whole situation.

6. te-iš-[ba-at]: third feminine singular required in view of tīmtaḫi in line 44 (see n. 8) and ana ūmi kašādi-ši, "on its [feminine] arrival." The plural tišbatū in line 98 is probably due to confusion with simple ÉRIN.MEŠ, which is treated as plural in lines 42(?), 80, and 93.

7. If [ti-r]i-bu-mi (Knudtzon) is correct, then the apparent accusative šara should probably be ša-ra-(tul)te.

8. The generally accepted reading ti-[i]ḫ-[š]a-[ḫ]i (Knudtzon) suffers from several difficulties: (1) the wrong thematic vowel in Babylonian; (2) an overhanging vowel; and (3) interpretation (unidentified object, Knudtzon; passive sense, Oppenheim; unparalleled sense, with key words supplied, Albright). The reading ti-[i]m-[t]a-[t]i, which fits well with what Knudtzon seems to have seen, makes sense and is unobjectionable. The assumed leveling through of the perfect for all functions of the volitive has many parallels (ezēbu, leqū, šemū, etc.), and for tī see ḫé-e-tī in line 33. Rib-Hadda's advice to the king is to send forces now to take the city from his brother before the Amurru forces occupy it, for then, the troops that the king might be expected to send would be too few to capture the city.

9. Lit. "when the archers come out, then they will hear (of it)."

10. kīnanna, "accordingly," in line 57 indicates that lines 53–56 are the explanation of the perfidious brother's activity, which is more likely, it seems, to lie in the past (Knudtzon, Oppenheim) than in the future (Albright).

11. On šumma in this sentence, see EA 35, n. 3. It does not introduce an oath (Oppenheim). Perhaps there is reference to only one temple.

12. In line 62, yi-iš-ba-tu-ši is always interpreted as plural, "If they take it, . . ." but against this is the fact that the plural throughout this letter has the {t}-preformative (tuddanū, line 6; tīmurū, 11; tīšlabū, 12; tina"išū-ni, 14; tīlqū, 80, 93; tišbatū, 98; [ti-r]i-bu-mi, 42?). Moreover, when šarru and/or bēlī function as subject of the verb, they always appear right after the verb (lines 7, 26, 31, 38, 39, 52, 59, 75, 77, 84?, 90?, 94, 97), with only two exceptions (80–81), neither of them comparable to the word order assumed here. For šumma with the indicative, see lines 81f.

Rib-Hadda does not assume he will be restored to his city (cf. 81ff.), and he expresses his willingness to accept any decision of the king, only adding a request to be allowed to live in a place apparently dear to him.

13. Lines 67f. are extremely difficult. I follow Oppenheim, except that I take pal-ba-tu as feminine singular participle, not as first singular "stative" (so also Albright) because I doubt the existence of the {ātu}-ending (see EA 138, n. 28). We must thus take NA.KÚR.RU, originally no doubt a writing of nakrū, as simply logographic for any form of nakāru, here nakrat. In line 67, perhaps NA.KAR<sub>5</sub>-ra-at (nakrat). Instead of a singular verb with plural subject (EA 85:72f.?, 129:80?), perhaps the plural marker DIDLI should be ignored. The city, of course, would be Byblos. Albright renders this, "since there is left but one city, namely, Burusilim," reading ša-šá-ra-at URU.KI I URU . . .; see BASOR 95 (1944) p. 31, n. 4. The writing hardly reflects assumed Canaanite naš'arat, the numeral would not be written with a horizontal wedge, and Knudtzon saw two wedges (DIDLI).

14. The assumed feminine plural pronominal suffix is very difficult. If it refers to the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, then Rib-Hadda could not have said that they actually hold the city (Knudtzon, Oppenheim). "Behold our city Byblos" (Albright) takes the na of the suffix as first plural (cf. kaspu-na, EA 138:38) and ignores the ši.

15. a-na-šár-š[ī]: cf. a-na-an-šár (EA 147:61, 151:6; 153:15); see also EA 235, n. 2, and von Soden-Röllig, Das akkadische Syllabar<sup>2</sup>, Analecta Orientalia 42 (Rome, 1967), p. 50, no. 255; idem, Ergänzungsheft zum akkadischen Syllabar, Analecta Orientalia 42A (Rome, 1976), p. 7*; Gelb, Or n.s. 39 (1970) p. 536. anaššar: volitive, following Rainey, UF 5 (1973) p. 413.

16. Or, "may he get the troops moving" (AHU, p. 943). On tišbatū (line 98), see n. 6.

De profundis

TEXT: VAT 351.

COPIES: WA 58; VS 11, 73.

To the king, [my] lord, [the Su]n of all countries: Message of Rib-Ad[d]i, your [ser]vant. I fall beneath the feet of the king, [m]y lord, 7 times and 7 times. 5–18 As to its being said to the king, "He (should be) in Yapu. He is exh[austed; he should] get strong and be like th[em]." I have not [go]ne to Ap[i].<sup>1</sup> Just now people from Gubla have written me, "Do not leave Beirut since we . . . and we will come in to you."<sup>2</sup> Look at their treacherous [words] . . . 19–25 for my entrance into [ . . . ],<sup>3</sup> After the re[vol]t of my territory,<sup>4</sup> s[in]ce [i]2 mo[nth]s ago, have I not lived in Beirut? . . . I sent a tablet [to] the [pala]ce of the king. Now [ . . . ] has come out to me [since] 4 months ago. Thus does my lord [ . . . ] for his servant. I am a servant of the king. 26–38 The king has no royal mayor I[ike m]e who will die [for] my [lo]rd. When 'Abdi-Ašrati seized Šumur, I guarded the city by <my>self.<sup>5</sup> There was no garrison with <me>, and so I wrote to the king, my lord. Troops came out [and] took Šumur and ['Abdi-Aš]irti.<sup>6</sup> Now Aziru has ta[ken]<sup>7</sup> Šum[ur], and when the people of Gubla saw this, (they said), "How long shall we contain the son of 'Abdi-Aširti. Our<sup>8</sup> money is completely gone for the war." 39–50 Then they moved against me, but I killed them. They said, "How long can you go on killing us? Where will you get people to live<sup>9</sup> in the city?" So I wrote to the palace for troops, but no troops were given (to) me. Then the city said, "Abandon him.<sup>10</sup> Let's join Aziru!" I said, "How could I join him and abandon the king, my lord?" Then my brother spoke and [sw]ore<sup>11</sup> to the city. They had a discussion a[n]d the lords of the city [were] joined to the sons of 'Abdi-Ašrati.<sup>12</sup> 51–70 I myse[lf] [w]ent to Beirut for a dis[cuss]ion with Hammuni[ri], and we ma[de an al]liance so that H[am]muniri, when . . . [ . . . ], then [ . . . ] . . . We went, [ . . . ] and I, t[o] the cit[y]. They did not pe[rm]it me to enter. The rebel *against the ki*ng had taken [troop]s<sup>13</sup> of Aziru; he had stationed (them) in the city, and the city saw<sup>14</sup> that there were foreign troops in the city. So the residents favored my entering the city, and they said to him, "(You say), 'Behold, our lord is dead.' How can you say, 'Rib-Addi is dead, and so we are out of his control?' Let him not write to Egypt or he will take us and our children." So they drove the troops of Aziru fro[m] the city.<sup>15</sup> 71–80 Half of the city is on the side of the sons of 'Abdi-Aširti, and half of it is on the side of my lord, and just as is done to a ruler that resides in his own city should be done to me.<sup>16</sup> Though I sent my son to the palace of the king seconds after<sup>17</sup> I arrived in Beirut, he has not had an audience with the king for four months. My man reports, "I have reached him at Tahda." 80–93 Why is my man whom I se[nt t]o the p[alac]e of the k[ing] detained?<sup>18</sup> For my part, I keep saying to [ . . . ] Why do you [ . . . ] the lands of Yapu? Wh[y do you . . . ] to me, since [you know that Gubla has been] a loy(al) city? And . . . [ . . . ] Though I am living in [Beirut], there has been no man of the king who ha[s come]. The city has said, "Look, [Rib-Addi] is living in Beirut. Where is a man who has come to him from Egypt?"<sup>19</sup> And so they are being joined to Aziru. 94–109 Previously I would write to the king; he would not heed my word. Now I am living in Beirut like a dog,<sup>20</sup> and my word is (still) unheeded. If the king listened to his servant and troops were given to me, the city [would return]<sup>21</sup> to the king. So [may the king give troo]ps that we may seize the cit[y. Let] n[ot] the troops of the sons of 'Abdi-Ašrati [take it]<sup>22</sup> for [themselves] and its people revol[t].<sup>23</sup> He is a rebel. In order to give (it)<sup>24</sup> to «(to)» Aziru, he committed a [great] crime; he took the (treas)ures<sup>25</sup> and then drove [m]e away, and [he has sb]own contempt for [A]pi along wi[th . . . ]<sup>26</sup> 109–21 May the king, my lord, [not ne]glect his city so that the city says, "Rib-Addi is dead, and s[o we are out of] hi[s control. Let's be] joined t[o] Aziru."<sup>27</sup> . . . [ . . . ]

Against [the men] he a[c]ted treache[rous]ly. At the urging of the sons of 'Abdi-Ašrati he committed that cri(me). Moreover, look, I myself did [n]o[t tel]l lie[s to the king, my lord]. Fearful [ . . . ] . . . 122–30 Look, the people of Gubla keep writing, "Where are the days when the king, your lord, used to writ[e t]o you? Where are the troops of the days [wh]en they were sent to you?" A nice thing : ba-mu-du (desirable) that was sent from the king, (my) lord, has not been given to me. Gra[in] for my city is held back : ba-si-ri. 131–38 And what is H[am]mu[ni]ri goi[ng to s]ay? How long I have sta[ye]d with him! May the king give troops lest the sons of [( 'Abdi)-Aš]eratu enter<sup>28</sup> the city. Should they seize Beirut, then the king, my lord, will have no lands. Moreover, is this the sort of treatment that is to be given t[o] [m]e whom the king, my lord, should be concerned about? And why should we . . . another man? When I am dead<sup>29</sup> but my sons, servants of the king, are alive, they will write to the king, "Please, restore us to our city." Why has my lord neglect(ed) me?

NOTES

1. Line 7: g[a-m]i-[ir lu] da-an-na, assuming that apparent traces before da may be ignored. It seems that one view at court was that Rib-Hadda should leave Beirut and go to Joppa, there to regain his strength and also to meet Api, apparently an Egyptian official. Rib-Hadda does not agree, and he points to a loyal faction in Byblos that shares his view. Cf. Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 71*, n. 40.

2. To join forces with him? It would make even better sense if we could render "we will get you in (to Gubla)"—that is, restore him to his throne—but usage does not support such a rendering. The treachery mentioned in the next line is presumably that of a different faction, the one against Rib-Hadda (see lines 71ff.).

3. URU.[K]I x [ . . . ] seems a possible reading, and the city, of course, is Byblos, which is frequently so designated in this letter.

4. H[.I].G[A.R.]I K[I]-ia: for bārti ašrīya (ittīya, "against me?"), H[.I].GAR being pronounced and declined (cf. n. 20 and EA 75, n. 7)? Very dubious.

5. i-di-(ni)-ia: more likely than an unattested use of idu, "arm, strength"; with ana in EA 91:26.

6. For the restoration, see Eretz Israel 9 (1969) p. 98. The questionable sign is almost certainly ni rather than ir, but note ga-mi-ni for gamir in line 38.

7. [a-qi]qa.

8. If a pronominal suffix is intended, then na is certainly a mistake for nu; cf. lines 41, 65, 68f., and 138, as regularly in the southern tradition. Perhaps better, KÜ.BABBAR-pu «(na)», simply a mistake prompted perhaps by the following a-na.

9. The vertical after a-ša-bi in line 41 is perhaps the unerased beginning of an a; note a-na at the beginning of the next line.

10. Imperative rather than indicative: following Rainey, UF 5 (1973) p. 254.
11. y[i]-it-mi: following Rainey, ibid.
12. Discussion, with perhaps the connotation of plotting (Rainey, ibid.), or formal declaration (see EA 8:12; see also line 52. On the lords of the city, see EA 102, n. 5. Line 50: [ti-ī]e-pu-šu-mi.
13. L[UGAL ÉRIN.M]EŠ: the first sign may be LÚ (Na'aman, Political Disposition, pp. 186ff.).
14. The translation assumes that city is construed ad sensum as plural; cf. tiqbu, line 90 (but here an iterative is quite possible—"the city [feminine] keeps saying"), and contrast taqbi in line III. Perhaps better, "They saw (the situation in) the city, (namely), that there were foreign troops in the city."
15. Lines 62–70 are very difficult. In view of the lines that immediately follow, it seems likely that Rib-Hadda in lines 62–70 gives evidence of the loyalty he is about to claim. Line 62: aššābu, "residents," perhaps of inferior status, in contrast with "the lords of the city" who have sided with Rib-Hadda's brother; cf. CAD, A/2, p. 461b. The "death" of Rib-Hadda is probably the legal one of loss of office and royal support. The answer to this false claim is that he need only write to the king and he would have the support to capture all of them; for the construction, cf. EA 362:22f.
16. awīlu seems better taken as "ruler" rather than simply "man" (Introduction, nn. 73–74).
17. iš-tu 10 šE-ti (uštāti): lit. "after 10 grains." The reference is to a clock, probably a water-clock (Akkadian dibdibbu; see Thureau-Dangin, RA 30 [1933] pp. 51f.; O. Neugebauer, Isis 37 [1947] pp. 37ff.) rather than a sand-clock (Akkadian malaktu). In the Babylonian system of weights (180 grains = 1 shekel, 60 shekels = 1 mina, if 1 mina = 4 hours (see dictionaries, also Neugebauer), then 10 grains is little more than 10 seconds. Reckoning according to the lighter Syrian mina (50 shekels) would mean only a slight modification. The expression seems idiomatic for "immediately."
18. ba-šī-ri, also the gloss in line 130: probably ʿasiri; see VAB 2/2, p. 1416, and cf. Hebrew ʿāšar, "to confine, stay, restrain." The final vowel is probably simply a question of writing; cf. di-ki, EA 131:23.
19. Rather than assume an omission here, mab-(ri)-šu, and in line 124, mab-(ri)-ka (perhaps also EA 140:25), I take MAḪ as a logogram for šeru, assuming confusion of virtual homonyms, širu, "high," and šeru, "back" (as used in prepositional phrases). In view of the durative in line 93, probably better, "The city keeps saying . . . they keep being joined . . ."
20. kī UR.KI: logogram UR.KU, properly UR.GI<sub>7</sub>, to be explained either as a declension of the logogram, UR.KI being genitive, or syllabic writing, UR.GI<sub>5</sub>.
21. [ū ta-ra-at]-mi: cf. EA 137:51.
22. In view of ÉRIN.MEŠ as feminine singular in lines 98 and 125, [a-a ti-l-qí-ši].
23. ti-bal-ki-ʿtu.
24. a-na na-da-⟨na⟩-n[i] a-na ⟨a-na⟩.
25. ⟨NÍG⟩.GA.MEŠ (makkūri): cf. EA 109:21 and n. 4. A reference to the treasures of Byblos (cf. EA 137:6off. 74f.) fits the context better than oxen (GUD.MEŠ, Knudtzon).

26. ʿū [t]á-pí-il: as preserved, the dubious sign looks more like ša (Knudtzon). In line 8, ma-p[i]; here ma-pí, or ma-bi-[x] and a different person.

27. ʿa-na 113 ma-zi-ri [ni-te-pu-uš . . .]: cf. line 45.

28. Distinctive of EA 137–38 and the letters from Ḫasi, EA 185–86, are forms of erēbu with i as thematic vowel, which appears elsewhere in EA only in 127:19; see EA 137:34, 42; 138:12, 134; 185:20, 36, 40; 186:26, 50, 57. It may not be simply a provincial aberration; note [i-ī]e-ri-ib in Whiting, Letters from Tell Asmar, AS 22, no. 2:6.

29. The value tú is so rare in EA (never occurring in a letter from Byblos or Beirut), and the other evidence for {ātu} so uncertain (pal-ḫa-tu, EA 129:82; 137:68; 138:120), that we must consider mi-ta-tú simply a mistake, or possibly an unfinished te.

To the king, [my] lo[rd, my Sun]: Message of Ili-ra[piḫ, your servant]; message of Gu(b)la,<sup>1</sup> [your maidservant. I fall at] the feet of the lord, the Sun, 7 times and [7 times]. 5–12 Do not neglect [Gu(b)la], your city and the city of [your] ancesto[rs] from most ancient times. Moreover, behold Gu(b)la! Just as Ḫikuptaḫ, so is Gu(b)la to the king, my lord.<sup>2</sup> Do not neglect the delicts of a serva[nt],<sup>3</sup> for he acted as he pleased in the lands of the king. 12–17 Here is the crime that Aziru . . .<sup>4</sup> against the king: [he kill]ed the king of Ammiya, and [the king of E]ldata, and the king of Ir(qata), [and a co]mmissioner of the king, my lord.<sup>5</sup> He also broke into Šumur.

18–29 [And indeed] he is now intent on [committing] a cri[me] against the king.<sup>6</sup> Moreover, . . .<sup>7</sup> 29–40 May the king, (my) lord, know [I] am his loyal servant. And so let him send a garrison to his city—30 to 50 men—as far as Gubla. The king is to take (n)o account of<sup>8</sup> whatever Aziru sends him. Where were the things that he sends coveted?<sup>9</sup> It is property belonging to a royal mayor whom he has killed that he sends to you.<sup>10</sup> Look, Aziru is a reb[el] against the king, my lord.

NOTES

1. The writing gu-la is so frequent that it should probably be considered a conscious abbreviation. Line 34: conventional URU gub-la.
2. See EA 84, n. 12.
3. a-na-a-me sú-ri [R]: very tentative; cf. a-na-me in EA 197:6, and see surru (AHw, p. 1063; CAD, S, p. 413, but no longer attested only in Old Assyrian; see AÉM 1/2, 436:43). Apart from the unlikelihood of "one that sits on the back of a servant" (Knudtzon), note that the value šib is not attested in the southern tradition.
4. Between a and aš undeciphered traces but certainly not pa (apaš, "committed").
5. Aziru is charged with his father's crimes; cf. EA 75:25ff. Eldata is the same as Ardata (cf. EA 140:12), and the commissioner is undoubtedly Pawuru (cf. EA 129:95ff.; 362:69).
6. 19 [i-pí-iš] ar-(ni/na): cf. lines 22 and 40.
7. Line 23: yi-de. Line 27: probably š]a-ra-[q]í (cf. EA 109:36).
8. libba šakānu does not mean here "to encourage," as in Akkadian, but "to consider, pay attention" (cf. Hebrew šim lēb). The king is to disregard Aziru's payments of tribute as expressions of apparent fealty, for it is all stolen goods.
9. a-ia<sub>8</sub>-ti: like ayya-mi. On the enclitic, see EA 34, n. 10.
10. We see here a general charge rather than a reference to an unnamed mayor (Weber, VAB 2/2, p. 1241).

NOTES

1. Cf. EA 139:14ff. The commissioner of EA 139 is here called a magnate (Introduction, n. 70).
2. ana šēr: see EA 138, n. 19. Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 82*, n. 15, proposes 25 [ú-sa]-maḫ, "he conspired with."
3. The letter breaks off here, probably to be continued on a second tablet. On yi-pu-šu as singular, see Izre'el, UF 19 (1987) p. 82. That the sentence is interrogative is not certain.

Ammunira of Beirut

TEXT: BM 29809.

PHOTOGRAPH: BB, pl. 23.

Say to the king, my lord, m[y] Sun, my god, the breath of my life: Message of Ammunira, the ruler of Beirut, your servant and the dirt : a-pa-ru<sup>1</sup> at your feet.

6–17 I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, my Sun, my god, the breath of my life, 7 times and 7 times. Moreover, I have heard the words of the tablet of the king, my lord, my Sun, my god, the breath of my life, and the heart of your servant and the dirt at the feet of the king, my lord, my Sun and my god, the breath of (my) life, has rejoiced very, very much that the breath of the king, my lord, my Sun, my god, has come forth to his servant and the dirt at his feet.

18–35 Moreover, as to the king, my lord, my Sun's, having written to his servant and the dirt at his feet, "Make preparations before the arrival of the archers of the king, your lord," I listened very, very carefully, and I have indeed made preparations,<sup>2</sup> including my horses and my chariots and everything of mine that is available to the servant of the king, my lord, before the arrival of the archers of the king, (my) lord. And may the arch(e)rs of the king, my lord, my Sun, my god, smash<sup>3</sup> the heads of his enemies, and may the eyes of your servant look with pleasure<sup>4</sup> on life from the king, my lord.

36–48 Moreover, may the 2 . . . of the king, my lord, my Sun, my god, the breath of my life, aven[g]e his servant.<sup>5</sup> I am indeed a servant of the king, (my) lord, and a footstool for his feet. I will indeed guard the city of the king, my lord, my Sun, the breath of my life, and its wall : ḫu-mi-tu, until I see<sup>6</sup> the eyes of the archers of the king, my lord, and . . . the servant of the king . . .

NOTES

1. Read SAḪAR.RA, a frozen context form ("in the dust"), rather than SAHAR-ra (opera), an erroneous accusative; cf. CAD, A/2, p. 166. On the breath of the king, see EA 100, n. 9.

2. šūširāku, with no object expressed, corresponds to the absolute use of the imperative in line 21, and it has other parallels in the absolute use of the infinitive (ana šūširi, 8x) and of first singular durative (išūširu, EA 65:11 and 216:10; ušēširu, 329:19). These parallels, especially the latter, argue against "I am (prepared and) ready" (CAD, A/2, pp. 132a, 148a; see also EA 144, n. 1). This version is also rejected by Pintore, OA 11 (1972) p. 119, n. 97.

3. ti-ra-'a<sub>4</sub>-as: rāsu; see AHw, p. 959.

4. amāru ina, "to look upon," with the connotation of pleasure, is a West Semitism; cf. Hebrew nā'ā bē.

5. In the context of the immediately preceding lines and lines 45ff., Ammunira probably states a wish rather than a fact (Knudtzon, tentatively). The subject, 2 ḪAR or A.ḪAR, remains unexplained. Or should we read a-mur, "behold," and assume that the subject has been omitted?

6. Not "until the eyes see the archers" (Knudtzon), which would require tīmurūna; cf. lū tīmurū in line 34. For "to see the eyes," see EA 237:16.

[Say] to the king, my lord, the br[ea]th of my life: [Mes]sage of Ammunir[a, your servant and] the dirt at [your] feet. [I fall at the fee]t of the king, [my] l[ord, 7 times and 7 times. . . the breath] of my [lif]e.

10-17 The king, my lord, [wrote] to his servant and to the dirt : ḫa-pa-ru' at his feet. As to his order, wherever what was ordered by the king, my lord, the breath of my life, is, I shall search it o[ut] and then send it on to the king, my lord, the breath of my life.

18-31 [M]ore[ove]r, note how, as soon as ships of the king, my lord, [th]at have been sailed<sup>2</sup> into Beirut, come in, I relea[se] (them).<sup>3</sup> As to the maidservant of the king, my lord, just as . . . ,<sup>4</sup> so is Beirut for the king, my lord. 32-35 [. . .] . . . [i]n sb[ips] of the king, my lord, I ha[ve] sent.

36-38 Moreover, may [the king, my lord], be info[rmed] that the [. . .] of the king, my lord, are used [up . . .].

Zimreddi of Sidon

TEXT: VAT 323.

COPIES: WA 90; VS 11, 76.

TRANSLATION: Oppenheim, LFM, pp. 126f.

Say to the king, my lord, my god, my Sun, the breath of my life: Thus<sup>1</sup> Zimreddi, the mayor of Sidon. 6–12 I fall at the feet of my lord, god, Sun, breath of my life, «(at the feet of my lord, my god, my Sun, the breath of my life)» 7 times and 7 times. May the king, my lord, know that Sidon, the maidservant of the king, my lord, which he put in my charge, is safe and sound. 13–21 And when I heard the words of the king, my lord, when he wrote to his servant, then my heart rejoiced, and my head went [h]igh, and my eyes shone, at hearing the words of the king, my lord. May the king know that I have made preparations<sup>2</sup> before the arrival of the archers of the king, my lord. I have prepared everything in accordance with the command of the king, my lord. 22–30 May the king, my lord, know that the war against me is very severe. All the cit[ies] that the king put in [m]y ch[arge], have been joined to the 'Ap[ir]u. May the king put me in the charge of a man that will lead the archers of the king to call to account the cities that have been joined to the 'Apiru, so you can restore<sup>3</sup> them to my charge that I may be able to serve the king, my lord, as our ancestors (did) before.

NOTES

1. As the following <sup>lū</sup>ba-za-nu (nominative) indicates, umma here probably does not mean "message of"; similarly, EA 232:3; 253:2//254:3; 255:3 (note tiṭṭu in line 5); 366:6 (qaqqarnu). See R. Marcus, JCS 2 (1948) p. 223; as a gloss, however, a-pa-ru in EA 141:4 proves nothing; cf. ana SAḪAR.RA : ba-pa-ru in EA 143:11.

2. Oppenheim, "I am in readiness"; line 21, "I am ready." See EA 141, n. 2.

3. Reading tū-ta-ri-ši-na: cf. tū-ti-ra-an-ni, EA 145:10; tū-te-ra-am, 145:26. The alternative, ut-ta-ri-ši-na, understood of the king or the leader of the troops, lacks the expected {yu}, and in context first person is not likely. In my reading, third feminine, agreement with ÉRIN.MEŠ piṭāt šarri is possible, but, in my opinion, less likely than second masculine. Form: D of tāru, tutār + epenthetic vowel (sporadic and typical feature of the periphery; see Kühne, UF 3 (1971) p. 370, n. 14) + pronominal suffix.

Word on Amurru

TEXT: VAT 1695.

COPIES: WA 182; VS 11, 77.

[Sa]y [to ...] ...<sup>1</sup> [my lord: Message of Z]imre[ddi]. I fall [at (your) fee]t. [May]<sup>2</sup> you know that I am safe and sound, and with your greeting from the presence of the king, my lord, you yourself brought back to me the breath of his mouth.<sup>3</sup> 11–22 I have heard your words that you sent me through ... [...]. The war is very severe. [...] ... The king, our lord, has indeed been ea[rnestly ad]dressed<sup>4</sup> from his lands, but the breath of his mouth does not reach his servants that are in the hinterlands.<sup>5</sup> 22–29 Moreover, as to your ordering with regard to the lands of Amurru, "The word you hear from ther[e] you must report to me,"<sup>6</sup> everyone [has] heard (that) [...] ... : ia-aq-wu-un-ka (he awaits you).<sup>7</sup> [...] ...

NOTES

1. Someone other than the king. This is the only letter in which a vassal reports in the introduction of his letter on his own well-being; see Introduction, n. 54. The message referred to in lines 6ff. seems to have implied an exception would be in place.

2. [lu-ú] ti-ī-de: cf. EA 144:10; lū īde inūma šalmat ... , passim in the Byblos letters; lū īde inūma ... , EA 333:4.

3. On ištu, "with," see EA 112, n. 1. <sup>uz</sup>KA : pi-šu (text, ka): the messenger brought the breath of the king back to the vassal (see esp. EA 147:17ff.), and the only breath that is of any importance and is ever mentioned elsewhere is the breath of the king, "the breath of his mouth" (line 20), "the breath of the mouth of the king" (EA 137:7). The assumed error might easily have been occasioned by the logogram KA just before.

The addressee, in person or by letter, brought along with his own greeting word from the king. The conjunction probably does not introduce a second clause dependent on inūma, but, rather, a virtual causal clause in which the pronoun attā emphasizes the contribution of the addressee: "I am well, for it was you who ..."

4. u[p-ti-ī]g-gi: up, less clear than in VS 11 copy; pagū (AHu, p. 809; cf. mupeggū?).

5. Despite EA 334:3, hardly a place-name. Read šú-ub-ri (šubri), West Semitic "back" (cf. šubru in the greeting-formula)? Are the "back-lands" simply the provinces?

6. In favor of the direct quotation are the enclitic, which is regularly attached to the first word of a direct quotation (awat-mi), and the parallels in EA 149:55ff.; 151:49ff.; cf. also the conclusion of a letter in Ugaritic, w.mnm rgm.d. išm' imt. u. št b. spr. 'my, "And whatever word you hear there, put in a letter to me" (A. Herdner, Corpus des tablettes en cunéiformes alphabétiques découvertes à Ras-Shamra-Ugarit de 1929 à 1939, Mission de Ras Shamra 10 [Paris, 1963], no. 53). Rainey, Particles, cites u awata mimma ša tešme ištu ašrānum šupram itya, "whatever word that you have heard from there put in writing to me" (Taanach Letter 1:15-18).

A hymn to the Pharaoh

TEXT: BM 29812.

COPY: BB, pl. 11.

TRANSLATIONS: Oppenheim, LFM, pp. 123ff.; Albright, ANET, p. 484.

To the king, my lord, my god, my Sun: Message of Abi-Milku, your servant. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. I am the dirt under the sandals of the king, my lord. My lord is the Sun who comes forth over all lands day by day,<sup>1</sup> according to the way (of being) of the Sun, his gracious father, 9-15 who gives life by his sweet breath and returns with his north wind;<sup>2</sup> who establishes the entire land in peace, by the power of his arm : ba-ap-ši; who gives forth his cry in the sky like Baal,<sup>3</sup> and all the land is frightened<sup>4</sup> at his cry. 16-21 The servant herewith writes to his lord that he heard the gracious messenger of the king who came to his servant, and the sweet breath that came forth from the mouth of the king, my lord, to his servant—his breath came back! 22-28 Before the arrival of the messenger of the king, my lord, breath had not come back; my nose was blocked.<sup>5</sup> Now that the breath of the king has come forth to me, I am very happy and : a-ru-u (he is satisfied), day by day.<sup>6</sup> 29-38 Because I am happy, does the earth not pr[osp]er?<sup>7</sup> When I heard the gracious me[sse]nger from my lord, all the land was in fear of my lord, when I heard the sweet breath and the gracious messenger who came to me. When the king, my lord, said : ku-na "(Prepare)<sup>8</sup> before the arrival of a large army," then the servant said to his lord : ia-a-ia-ia ("Yes, yes, yes!")<sup>9</sup> 39-51 On my front and on : šú-ri-ia (my back) I carry the word of the king, my lord. Whoever gives heed to the king, his lord, and serves him in his place, the Sun com(e)s forth over him, and the sweet breath comes back from the mouth of his lord. If he does not heed the word of the king, his lord, his city is destroyed, his house is destroyed, never (again) does his name exist in all the land. (But) look at the servant who gives heed to «(to)» his lord. His city prospers, his house prospers, his name exists forever. 52-60 You are the Sun who comes forth over me, and a brazen wall set up for him,<sup>10</sup> and because of the powerful arm : nu-ub-ti (I am at rest) : ba-ṭi-i-ti (I am confident). I indeed said to the Sun, the father of the king, my lord, "When shall I see the face of the king, my lord?" 61-71 I am indeed guarding Tyre, the principal city,<sup>11</sup> for the king, my lord, until the powerful arm of the king comes forth over me, to give me water to drink and wood to warm myself. Moreover, Zimredda, the king of Sidon, writes daily to the rebel Aziru, the son of 'Abdi-Ašratu, about every word he has heard from Egypt. I herewith write to my lord, and it is good that he knows.<sup>12</sup>

NOTES

1. According to Assmann, Liturgische Lieder an den Sonnengott: Untersuchungen zur altägyptischen Hymnik, vol. 1 (Berlin, 1969), p. 119, n. 22, "day by day" reflects Egyptian r<sup>c</sup> nb and implies the days of all eternity. On the hymn in lines 5–15 and its Egyptian background, see Albright, JEA 23 (1937) pp. 197ff.
2. See C. Grave, Or n.s. 51 (1982) pp. 161ff.
3. See EA 108, n. 1. On ḥapšū as the designation of a part of the body rather than the name of a weapon, see Knudtzon's note, VAB 2/1, p. 608, note d, which is still relevant; Peterson, BiOr (1966) p. 151a; and Lipiński, RSO 44 (1969) pp. 89f. For a different view, see Durand, ARMT 21, p. 344.
4. t[a]r-gu<sub>5</sub>-ub: following de Moor, UF 1 (1969) p. 188; cf. also the personal name yrḡbb<sup>c</sup>l (Ugar. 7, p. 6, RS 24.246:16).
5. An Egyptianism meaning "I was distressed," as demonstrated by Grave, OA 19 (1980) pp. 205ff., in a discussion of lines 16–27. Read i-sà-kir KA.MES ap-pí-ia.
6. On the Egyptian gloss, see Albright, JEA 23 (1937) p. 197, n. 3. According to Na'aman, Lingering over Words, pp. 401ff., the source of the writer's joy is not simply his receiving a message from the king, but the content of the message—namely, that the king is coming at the head of his troops. Similarly, in EA 141:8ff.; 142:5ff.; 144:13ff.; 195:16ff.; 227:5ff.; 292:8ff., he thinks the writers rejoice because troops or the king himself (EA 227) are soon to arrive. See also the Introduction, nn. 117–18.
7. ti-[ši-i]r: from ešēru? Perhaps better, with Na'aman, Lingering over Words, p. 402: "Did not the (entire) land prosper? (ti-[ši-i]r) since it has heard of the gracious messenger from my lord?"
8. Since one of the most frequent orders of the king in the EA correspondence is to make preparations before the arrival (ana pāni) of the Egyptian army (Introduction, sect. 5), cf. Hebrew **kūn*: Niphal, "prepare (intransitive), be ready" Hiphil, "prepare (transitive), make ready." So also, independently, Na'aman, Lingering over Words, p. 402, n. 25. kūna: imperative singular + {a} as in Hebrew l'kā, etc. See also EA 154, n. 1. For other versions, see Albright and Oppenheim.
9. See Albright, JEA 23 (1937) p. 197.
10. See Alt, ZDMG 86 (1933) pp. 33ff.; Auelette, RB 80 (1973) pp. 321ff. Here, as so often in this letter, the author speaks of himself in both the first and the third person.
11. As opposed to mainland Tyre, the city of Usu; cf. rabītu, "capital," in a Tell al Rimah inscription (Walker, Iraq 32 [1970] pp. 27ff., who compares EA 147:62).

12. Eyre, JEA 62 (1976) pp. 183f., considers u damiq inūma another Egyptianism.

The need for mainland Tyre

TEXT: C 4765.

COPY: WA 99.

To the king, my lord, [m]y god, my Sun: Message of Abi-Milku, your servant. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 4–17 The king, my lord, has written for glass. I give to the king, my lord, what I have on hand—100 (units) in weight. May the king, my lord, give his attention to his servant and give Usu to his servant so he can drink a jug: a-ku-ni of: mi-ma (water). May the king, my lord, give 10 palace attendants<sup>1</sup> to guard his city in order that I may enter and see the face of the ki[ng], my lord. 18–26 My presence will be as pleasing to the king, my lord, as when the king, my lord, charged me with the guarding of his city. I write to the king, my lord, because every day the king of Sidon has captured a palace attendant of mine. 26–34 May the king give attention to his servant, and may he charge his commissioner to give Usu to his servant for water, for fetching wood, for straw, for clay. 34–40 Since he has acted hostilely, has he not violated<sup>2</sup> the oath? There is not another palace attendant. The one who *rai[d]*s the land of the king is the king of Sidon. 41–47 The king of Ḥašura has abandoned his house and has aligned himself with the 'Apiru. May the king be concerned about the palace attendants. These are treacherous fellows.<sup>3</sup> He has taken over the land of the king for the 'Apiru. May the king ask his commissioner, who is familiar with Canaan.

NOTES

1. LÚ.GIR (also lines 26, 38, 44; and EA 149:18, 83; 151:60) is probably not the same as ÉRIN(MEŠ).GİR(MEŠ) (EA 149:62). Very tentatively, I take it as a logogram for girseqû. Albright, JEA 23 (1937) p. 202, n. 2, thought it meant simply "man, person."
2. Albright, ibid.: "Though (he) has made war (against me) he has not returned the oath of peace (i.e., he is still nominally at peace)."
3. The kings of Sidon and Ḥašura.

To the king, my lord, my Sun, my god: Message of Abi-Milku, [yo]ur servant. I fall at the feet of the king, [m]y lo[rd], 7 times and 7 times. I am the dirt under the feet and sandals of the king, my lord. 6–20 O king, my lord, you are like the Sun, like Baal,<sup>1</sup> in the sky. May the king give thought to his servant. The king, my lord, charged me with guarding Tyre, the maidservant of the king, but after I wrote an express tablet to the king, my lord, he has not replied to him. I am a commissioner of the king, my lord, and I am one that brings good news and also bad (news) to the king, my lord. May the king send 20 palace attendants to guard his city in order that I may go in to the king, my lord, and see his face. 21–27 What is the life of a palace attendant when breath does not come forth from the mouth of the king, his lord? But he lives if the king writes [t]o his servant, and he lives [for]ever. 28–40 For my part, [si]nce last year [my intention has been] to go in [and beho]ld the face of the king, my lord, [but Zimredda, the p]rince, [beard about m]e. He made [my caravan] turn back [fro]m the king, my lord, [saying, “Who c]an get you in [to the king?”] Hea[r],<sup>2</sup> my lord! Aziru, [the son of ‘Abdi]-Ašratu, [the re]bel against the king, [has taken possession of Šumur]. Haapi [. . .] . . . [g]ave Šumur [t]o Aziru. 40–54 May the king not neglect [th]is city and his land. When I hear the name of the king and the name of his army, they will be very afraid, and all the land will be afraid, that is, he who does not follow the king, my lord. The king knows whether you installed me as commissioner in Tyre. (Still), Zimredda seized Usu from ⟨his⟩ servant. I abandoned it, and so we have neither water nor wood. Nor is there a place where we can put the dead. So may the king, my lord, give thought to his servant. 54–63 The king, my lord, wrote to me on a tablet, “Write whatever you hear to the king.” Zimredda of Sidon, the rebel against the king, and the men of Arwada have exchan⟨ge⟩d<sup>3</sup> oaths among themselves, and they have assembled their ships, chariots, and infantry,<sup>4</sup> to capture Tyre, the maidservant of the king. 64–73 If the powerful hand of the king comes, it will defeat them. They will not be able to capture Tyre. They captured Šumur through the instructions of Zimredda, who brings the word of the king to Aziru. I sent a tablet to the king, my lord, but he has not replied to his servant. 74–84 [Si]nce last year there has been wa[r a]gainst me. There is no water, [th]ere is no wood. May he send a tablet to his servant so he may go in and see his face. May the king [give thought] to his servant and to his city, and may he not [abandon] his city and his land. Why should [a commissioner of] the king, our lord, move awa[y] from the land? [Zimredda] knows, and the traitor knows, that the arm<sup>5</sup> of the king is absent. Now a palace attendant [is bringing] my tablet to the king, the Sun, [my] lord, and may the king reply to his servant.

NOTE

1. Since Abi-Milku usually laments the absence of the Egyptian military, he probably refers here to support given to his predecessor. He says he is like him and also needs such support. Pintore, OA 11 (1972) p. 102, n. 5, maintains that Abi-Milku here calls himself a soldier, but Pintore does not translate the passage.

To the king, my Sun, my god, my gods: Message of Abi-Milku, your servant. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 4-11 I am the dirt under the sandals of the king, my lord. I am indeed guarding carefully the city of the king that he put in my charge. My intention has been to go to see the face of the king, my lord, but I have not been able, due to Zimredda of Sidon. 12-24 He heard that I was going to Egypt, and so he has waged war against me. May the king, my lord, give me 20 men to guard the city of the king, my lord, so I can enter before the king, my lord, to behold his gracious face. I have devoted myself to the service : ú-bu-di<sup>1</sup> of the ki[ng], my lord. May the ki[ng], my lord, ask his commissioner whether I have devoted myself to the king, my lord. 25-34 I herewith send my messenger t[o the kin]g, my lord, and may [the king], my lord, send [his messenger and] his ta[bl]et t[o me], so I may enter before the king, my lord. [I] have devoted myself to[tally]<sup>2</sup> to <the king>, t[o seeing] the face of the king, [my] lord. 35-48 May [the king, my lord], not abandon his servant. May the king, my lord, give [his] attention and gi[ve] water for o[ur] drink and wood to his servant. The king, my lord, knows that we are situa[te]d on the sea; we have neither water nor wood. I herewith send Iulumilku as messenger to the king, my lord, and I give 5 talents of bronze, ma[ll]ets, (and) 1 whip.<sup>3</sup> 49-58 The king, my lord, wrote to me, "Write to me what you have heard in Canaan." The king of Danuna died; his brother became king after his death, and his land is at peace. Fire destroyed the palace<sup>4</sup> at Ugarit; (rather), it destroyed half of it and so hal(f) of it has disappeared.<sup>5</sup> 59-70 There are no Hittite troops about. Etakkama, the prince of Qidšu, and Aziru are at war; the war is with Biryawaza.<sup>6</sup> I have experienced the injustices of Zimredda, for he assembled troops and ships from the cities of Aziru against me. Is it good that a palace attendant of my lord should become frigh[tened]? All have become frightened. May the king give his attention to his servant and return : yú-ša (come forth).

Servant of Mayati

TEXT: BM 29814 (+) VAT 1872.

COPIES: BB 31 (+) WA 228; VS 11, 82.

To the king, [the Sun, my lord]: Message of Abi-M[ilku, your servant. I fall] at the feet of the k[ing, my lord], 7 times and 7 times. I am the dirt under the sandals of the k[ing, my lord], and the king is the Etern[al] Sun. 7–17 The king ordered that the breath (of life) be given to his servant and to the servant of Mayati, and water : mi-ma be (given) for his drink, but they have not acted in accordance with the command of the king, my lord; they have not given (these things). So may the king give thought to the servant of Mayati, that water be given so he may live. 17–23 Moreover, O king, my lord, since there is no wood, n water, no straw, no supplies, no burial<sup>1</sup> for the de[ad], may the king, my lord, take cognizance of the servant of Mayati, that life be gi[ve]n to him. 24–39 Should the king, my lord, give water to drink to the servant of Mayati, then I will devote myself to his service (and that of) Mayati, my mistress,<sup>2</sup> night and day. Should I en[ter] before the king, [my] lo[rd], I would be afraid : ir-x-x, [and] unable [to speak], since the king, the Sun, looked on. But the commissioner has not done [what] the king [commanded]. He does [not] give [water, a]s the ki[ng] commanded. 40–47 So may the king take cognizance of his servant and of Tyre, the city of Mayati, for whatever command has issued from the mouth of the king to his servant, that he has done. The word of the king [g]oes : pa-ni-mu (before him).<sup>3</sup> 47–54 The king is the Eter[n]al Sun, and I am the loyal servant of the king, [m]y lord.

The ki[ng charged me] with guar[ding] the ci[ty] of [M]a[y]ati, my mistress.<sup>4</sup> . . . [. . .]. Moreover, my lord, [since the departure] of the troops from me, [I can]not [go] to land. 55–64 Should a ta[bl]et [of] the king, my lord, arrive, then I will app[roa]ch the land. May the king, my lord, know the sentiments of the enti[re] land. May the king gi[ve] attention to [his] ser[vant] and to Tyre, the city of Maya[ti], so [wood and] water are given that [he] might li[ve]. 65–71 Moreover, [my] lord [. . .] the king should inquire from his commissioner whether Şumur is [set]tled. As the ruler of Bei[r]ut has done service with one ship, and the ruler of Sido[n] is doing service with two ships, I will do service with all yo[ur] ships. So may the king give thought to his servant [and] protect the s[h]ips of the king with all my city.<sup>5</sup>

34–36 Moreover, in all haste send me my messenger, and [I wi]ll [. . .].

37–41 And whatever the mayors have given, I too will give to the king, my lord, my god and my Sun. I will give forever.

NOTES

1. On LÚ.İR.MEŠ, ardūtu, “service,” see Or n.s. 53 (1984) pp. 298f.; so also Izre’el, Amurru.
2. Egyptian high officials residing in, or in charge of, Şumur, not the city’s elders (Kitchen, Suppiluliuma and the Amarna Pharaohs [see Introduction, n. 119], p. 17). In EA 171, Yanḫamu is mentioned as one of these magnates.
3. Lit. “I have not committed,” and reading, with Izre’el, Amurru, la-a bi-it-ta<sub>x</sub>, not la a-bi-it-ta<sub>x</sub>. The expression ḫīṭa epēšu as used in EA 27:35 (failure to show messengers due honors) and 162:9 (failure to denounce) suggests that ḫīṭu refers to negligence, a dereliction of duty. This would explain why the nouns ḫīṭu and ḫīṭīṭu and the verb ḫaṭū are so rarely used in the Amarna correspondence, even though it is filled with denunciations: the acts denounced are those of commission (arnu). Perfect innocence is to be guilty of neither (EA 253:16ff.; 254:11ff.). The distinction of "l'arnu fautive délictuelle et le hītu fautive contractuelle" (Kestemont, in Garelli, ed., Le Palais et la Royauté [see Introduction, n. 73], p. 481), whether or not it obtains elsewhere, does not seem to explain adequately the Amarna evidence. Note, for example, that at the time of EA 157 Aziru, as he himself laments, is not formally an Egyptian vassal, and he is therefore under no contract. The basis for Kestemont's claim (ibid., n. 46) that the case of Aziru shows how the same act could be, before a pact, arnu, and after a pact, hītu, is not clear. The contrast I postulate between arnu and hītu, etc., goes back to the Old Babylonian period; cf. awilum šū arnam u hiṣṣitam ul ṣū, "This man has (committed) neither sin nor fault" (AEM 1/2, no. 312:11', "péché" and "faute").

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Izre'el, Amurru, pp. 31ff.

To the Great King, my lord, my god, [my Sun]: Message of Aziru, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord, [my] god, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times.

4–10 My lord, I am your servant, and on my arrival in the presence of the king, my lord, I spoke of all my affairs in the presence of the king, my lord. My lord, do not listen to the treacherous men that denounce me in the presence of the king, my lord. I am your servant forever.

11–22 The king, my lord, has spoken about Ḥan'i. My lord, I was residing in Tunip, and so I did not know that he had arrived. As soon as I heard, I went up after him, but I did not overtake him. May Ḥan'i arrive safe and sound so that the king, my lord, can ask him how I provided for him. My brothers and Bet-ili were at his service; they gave oxen, sheep and goats,<sup>2</sup> and birds,<sup>3</sup> his food and his strong drink.<sup>4</sup>

23–34 I gave horses and asses [for] his journey. May the king, my lord, hear my words. [When] I come to the king, my lord, Ḥan'i will go before me; like a mother and like a father he will provide for me. And now my lord says, “You hid yourself from Ḥan'i.” May your gods and the Sun be witnesses: (I swear) I was residing in Tunip.

35–40 The king, my lord, has spoken about the building of Šumur. The kings of Nuḥašše have been at war with me and have taken my cities at the instruction of Ḥatip. So I have not built it. Now, in all haste, I am going to build it.

41–46 And may my lord know that Ḥatip has taken half of the things that the king, my lord, gave (me). All the gold and silver that the king, my lord, gave me, Ḥatip has taken. May my lord know (this).

47–53 Moreover, the king, my lord, also said, “Why did you provide for the messenger of the king of Ḫatti, but did not provide for my messenger?” But this is the land of my lord, and the king, my lord, made me one of the mayors!<sup>6</sup>

54–56 Let my lord’s messenger come to me so I can give all that I promised in the presence of the king, my lord. I will give food supplies, ships, oil, logs of boxwood and (other) woods.

A letter from the Pharaoh: threats and promises

TEXT: VAT 347.

COPIES: WA 92; VS 11, 86.

Say [to Aziru], ruler of Amurru: [Thu]: the king, your lord, saying:<sup>1</sup> The ruler of Gubla, whose brother had cast him away at the gate, [sai]d to you, “[Ta]ke me and get me into my city. [There is much silv]er, and I will give it to you. Indeed, there is an abundance of everything, [but n]ot with me.”<sup>2</sup> Thus did the ruler speak to you.

7–11 Do you [n]ot write to the king, my lord, [say]ing, “I am your servant like all the previous mayors in his city”? Yet you acted delin- quently by taking the mayor whose brother had cast him away at the gate, from his city.<sup>3</sup>

12–14 He was residing in Sidon and, following your own judg- ment, you gave him to (some) mayors. Were you ignorant of the treach- ousness of the men?

15–18 If you really are the king’s servant, why did you not de- nounce him<sup>4</sup> before the king, your lord, saying, “This mayor has writ- ten me, saying, ‘Take me to yourself and get me into my city’”?

19–21 And if you did a[c]t loyally, still all the things you wrote were not true. In fact, the king has reflected on them as follows, “Every- thing you have said is not friendly.”

22–29 Now the king has heard as follows, “You are at peace with the ruler of Qidša.<sup>5</sup> The two of you take food and strong drink to- gether.”<sup>6</sup> And it is true. Why do you act so? Why are you at peace with a ruler with whom the king is fighting? And even if you did act loyally, you considered your own judgment, and his judgment did not count. You have paid no attention to the things that you did earlier.<sup>7</sup> What happened to you among them that you are not on the side of the king, your lord?<sup>8</sup>

30–32 Con[sider] the people that are [tr]aining you for their own advantage. They want to throw you into the fire. They have lit (the fire), and (still) you love everything so very much!

33–38 But if you perform your service for the king, your lord, what is there that the king will not do for you? If for any reason whatsoever you prefer to do evil,<sup>9</sup> and if you plot evil, treacherous things, then you, together with your entire family, shall die by the axe of the king.

39–41 So perform your service for the king, your lord, and you will live. You yourself know that the king does not fail when he rages against all of Canaan.<sup>10</sup>

42–54 And when you wrote, saying, “May the king, my lord, give me leave this year, and then I will go next year to the king, [my] l[ord]. If this is impossible, I [will send] my son [in m]y [place]”<sup>11</sup>—the king, your lord, let you off this year, in accordance with what you said. [Co]me yourself, or send your son, and you will see the king at whose sight all lan[ds] live. You are not to say, “May he give me this year, too.” If it is impossible to go to the king, your lord, send your son to the king, your lord, in your place. If it is impossible, he is to come.

55–67 Now the king, your lord, has heard that you wrote to the king, saying, “May the king, my lord, send Ḫanni, the messenger of the king, once more, so I can have the enemies of the king delivered into his charge.” He herewith goes off to you, in accordance with what you said. So have them delivered, omitting no one. The king, your lord, hereby sends you the names of the king’s ene(mi)es on [this] tablet given to Ḫanni, the messenger of the king. Have the[m] delivered to the king, your lord, omitting no one. Copper fetters are to be put on their ankles. Here are the men whom you are to have delivered to the king, your lord:

- 68 Šarru along with all his sons;
Tuya;
70 Leya along with all his sons;
Pišyari along with all his sons;
72 the son-in-law of Manya, along with his sons, along with his wives;<sup>12</sup> 74 the commissioner, who is expert in sacrilege, that fellow (who) has mocked a resident-alien;<sup>13</sup>
76 Daašarti; Baaluma;
Nimmaḫe—he is a brigand in Amurru.<sup>14</sup>

78–81 And know that the king is hale like the Sun in the sky. For his troops and his chariots in multitude, from the Upper Land to the Lower Land, the rising of the sun to the setting of the sun, all goes very well.<sup>15</sup>

NOTES

1. [um-ma-(a)-m]i: umma-mi is attested in EA 1:26, 37 (Egypt). Whatever the correct restoration may be, it is clear that no conventional form of introduction was used. With the exception of the conclusion (lines 78ff.), EA 162 is in form as well as content quite unlike the Pharaoh's letters to inferiors (see Introduction, sect. 5).

2. 5 [ma-ad KÙ.BAB]BAR . . . 6 [ù i]-ia-nu: free restorations; note the writing i-ia-nu in line 27 and i-ia-nu-um-ma in line 52. It is not clear that "take" means "take as a vassal," as proposed by K. McCarter, OA 12 (1973) p. 17.

3. This is a delinquency because upon receiving Rib-Hadda's communication, Aziru should have immediately denounced him to the king (lines 15ff.); see EA 157, n. 3.

4. ta-a-ku-ul kar-šî-i-šu: following McCarter, ibid., pp. 15ff. The reading is confirmed by collation; the copy is inexact, and there is a ligature of TE and A. The denunciation would also have required handing over the vassal to Egyptian authorities; cf. EA 245:1ff., and see Kühne, Andrews University Seminary Studies 1 (1963) pp. 71ff., and Kestemont, in Garelli, ed., Le Palais et la Royauté (see Introduction, n. 73), p. 477. Aziru was, therefore, doubly delinquent.

5. Etakkama.

6. See EA 161, n. 4. Meals sealed alliances and were shared only by allies and friends.

7. This is probably a reference to Aziru's having become a vassal-mayor.

8. This seems to be a reference to an initial contact with the Hittites, which is alluded to elsewhere, before Aziru's final capitulation as a Hittite vassal; see Klengel, MIO 10 (1964) pp. 72ff.

9. Instead of lî-mu-ut-ti here and in the following line, Gordon and CAD, S, p. 185a, propose an-mu-ut-ti, "these things"; see anmû, CAD, A/2, p. 125, and comparable forms at Alalakh and Boghazköy.

10. The language is somewhat obscure and other versions are possible.

Na'aman, Lingering over Words, p. 405, proposes: "And you know that the king does not want (to go) to the entire land of Canaan when he is angry."

11. a-[šap-pa-ra ki-mu]-'ú-a': quite doubtful.

12. DAM.MEŠ-ti-šu aš-ša-te-e-šu: following Knudtzon and recognizing the Hittite-Egyptian ductus of DAM, not NIN, as proposed by Ries, RLA 6, p. 183b, followed by Moran, Or n.s. 53 (1984) p. 297.

13. "Commissioner": following Albright, JNES 5 (1946) p. 18; perhaps an additional identification of "the son-in-law of Manya." Instead of "commissioner," Jeffrey Zorn, JNES 50 (1991) pp. 129ff., argues well in favor of "the soldier." We then read: ša ḫa-an-ni-pa i-de<sub>4</sub>-e-i-ú 75 ša-šu (ša) u-bá-a-ra il-ta-na-aš (šanāšu). The charge seems to refer to a serious breach of international law involving a foreign dignitary.

14. <sup>16</sup>ḫa-bá-tû (ḫabbātu, "robber"): following AHu, p. 304.

15. Long form: see the Introduction, sect. 5, and EA 99, n. 7.

Coming—on condition

TEXT: VAT 249.

COPIES: 38; VS 11, 88.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Izre'el, Amurru, pp. 36ff.

To Tutu, my lord, my father: Message of Aziru, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord.

4–17 Ḫatip has come and brought the gracious and sweet words of the king, my lord, and I am quite overjoyed. My land and my brothers, the servants of the king, my lord, and the servants of Tutu, my lord, are overjoyed when the breath of the king, my lord, comes. I do not deviate from the orders of my lord, my god, my Sun, and from the orders of Tutu, my lord.

18–26 My lord, since Ḫatip is staying with me, he and I will make the journey. My lord, the king of Ḫatti has come to Nuḫašše and I cannot g[o]. Just let the king of Ḫatti depart and straightaway I will make the journey with Ḫatip.

27–34 May the king, my lord, heed my words. My lord, I am afraid of the king, my lord, and of Tutu. Here are my gods and my messenger. Tutu and the magnates of the king, my lord, I would put under oath<sup>1</sup> and then I will make the journey.

35–42 And thus Tutu, the king, my lord, and the magnates: “(We swear) we will not devise<sup>2</sup> anything regarding Aziru that is not good.” Thus are you to be put under oath to my gods and to Aman.<sup>3</sup> Indeed, Ḫatip and I are servants of the gracious king.

43–44 Tutu, know [t]hat I will come to you.

NOTES

1. lu-ú-<sup>r</sup>ta<sub>5</sub> -[a]m-mi: following Izre'el, Amurru.
2. AHu, p. 1179, proposes ni-iš-qú-ug, a Canaanite loanword, “to rush upon,” but this leaves mimma . . . ša lā damiq without adequate explanation. I propose a derivation from šakāku, “to string together,” using “devise” from context. Izre'el, Amurru, following Winckler's comparison with the problematic šak in Jeremiah 5:27, is in essential agreement and renders by “plot.”

Tunip threatened

TEXT: VAT 325.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Izre'el, Amurru, pp. 40ff.

{T}o the k[ing, my lord, my god, my Sun]: Message of {Aziru, your servant}. [I fall at the feet of my lord] 7 times and 7 {times}.

4–9 My lord, m[y] god, {my Sun}, what m[ore do I seek]? I seek {to see} the gracious face of the king, m[y] lord, {my Sun}, forever. Baaluya and [I] are {yo}ur {servants}.

10–13 I am guarding the land of the king, my lord, and I am devoted to the service<sup>1</sup> of the king, my lord. Safe and sound,<sup>2</sup> I would s[ee] the gracious {f}ac[e] of the king, my lord.

14–17 My lord, Ḫatip and I are coming, and may my lord know that I will [be] there in all ha[st]e.

18–21 The king of Ḫatti is staying [in Nuḫašše], and I am afra[id of him]. Heaven forbi[d that he come into Amurru] and the land [of the king, my lord].

22–27 Because of [these] things I have been staying on. Just let him d[epar]t<sup>3</sup> and] return t[o his own land, and straightaway] I will ma[ke the journey] with Ḫatip. [I] am a [ser]vant of the ve[ry], ve[ry] gracious king.<sup>4</sup>

28–41 [My lord, do not wor]ry at all. I will be [th]ere! [My only concern has been]<sup>5</sup> the king of Ḫatti, [but n]o[w] I shall b[e th]ere to s[ee] the f[ace] of [my] Sun, [m]y [lord]. My lord, [when] I was staying [i]n [. . . , the king] of Ḫa[tti] ca[me] into Amurru, the land of the k[ing], [m]y lo[r]d, because the king, my lord, did not let me stay to guard his land. And now he is staying in Nuḫašše. It is (only) two day-marches to Tunip, and so I am afraid of his attacking Tunip. May he depart.

42–45 Mo[re]o[ver], my lord, do not listen to the tr[each]erous men]. I, [my brothers], and my sons are [servants of the king, my lord], foreve[r].

NOTES

1. See EA 157, n. 1.
2. ina šulmi: lit. “in a state of well-being,” said of arrivals (EA 161:18; 167:18; 168:5, 9, and cf. line 11), an event also implied here. Cf. the sequence in EA 167:18ff. of arrival ina šulmi followed by seeing the face of the king. In Old Babylonian, ina šalimtim was fairly common; see AHu, p. 1148, and add ARM 10, 1:9; 17:7.
3. [i-ip-tu<sub>4</sub>-ur]: cf. line 41; EA 164:24; 167:12ff., 24; also 166:29.
4. banû is said of the king's face, which is grammatically singular (EA 163:1) or plural (EA 165:7; 166:7; 167:19), of his words (EA 164:6), and of the king himself (EA 166:11). In its usage in EA 166:11, “all my brothers are servants ša šarri bēliya bā-ni,” the form is clearly genitive singular agreeing with šarri, and there is not the slightest reason to refer it to the brothers. Hence here, too, bani refers to the king, not to Aziru.
5. [pa-ni-ia-ma].

[T]o Ḫaay, my brother: Message of Aziru, your brother. For you may all go well, and for<sup>1</sup> the archers of the king, my lord, may all go very well.

6–11 What more do I seek? I seek the gracious face of the king, my lord. I, my sons, and my brothers are all servants of the gracious king, my lord.

12–16 Ḫatip and I are indeed coming, right now, in all haste. Ḫaay, may you be convinced that I will be there.

17–20 I do not deviate [f]rom the orders of my lord, and from your orders (I do not deviate). I am the servant of my lord.

21–29 The king of Ḫatti is staying in Nuḫašše, and I am afraid of him. Heaven forbid that he co(m)e into Amurru. If he attacks Tunip, then it is (only) two day-marches to where he is staying. So I am afraid of him, and for this reason I have been staying on until he departs.

30–32 And (then) straightaway I will come with Ḫatip.

NOTE

1. That the greeting should come from the archers (so Knudtzon, VAB 2/2, p. 1598) would be without parallel; for ištu, “with,” see EA 112, n. 1.

NOTES

1. This is probably a vocative (cf. EA 164:43), which would make Tutu the recipient of this letter.

2. [a]m-[m]a-'la': a highly probable reading.

3. [a-kà]-aš-(ša)-d[u]i)t-ti <sup>m</sup>tù-u-tù: Izre'el, Amurru, accepts my interpretation of itti, but considers, and rightly, West Semitized Akkadian in this dialect intrusive and improbable. That the use of itti is of West Semitic origin only partly alleviates the difficulty; cf. EA 35:54f.; 47:16; 82:15; 87:10. His own interpretation, according to which Aziru's heart and words have reached (kašdū) Tutu, seems somewhat obscure.

Aziru in Egypt

TEXT: VAT 1660.

COPIES: WA 39; VS 11, 93.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Izre'el, Amurru, pp. 51ff.

[... may all g]o well.<sup>1</sup>

4-15 [In me] there is no {dupl}icity.<sup>2</sup> [...] ... [Y]ou may keep me alive {and} you may put me to death. To you alone do I look, and you alone are my lord. So may my lord heed his servants. Do not delay Aziru, your servant, there (any longer). Send him here immediately so he may guard the countries of the king, our lord.

16-39 Moreover, to Tutu, my lord:<sup>3</sup> Hear the words of the kings of Nuḥašše. They said to me: "You sold your father [t]o the king of Egypt for gold, and w[he]n will he let him go from Egypt?" All the country and all the Sutean forces said to me, also to that point, "Aziru is not going to get out of Egypt." And now the Suteans are deserting<sup>4</sup> the country [and I am] repeatedly informed, "Your father is staying [i]n Eg[yp]t, {and so} we are going to wage war against you." [...] ... Listen, {my lord. Tut}u, my lord, [let] Aziru go [immediately. ...] ... Nuḥašše ... 40-47 [...] "... Let] him stay on, {and then we will wage} war against you." [Now indeed ever]yone is d[eser]ting.

NOTES

1. The sender of the letter is Aziru's son, perhaps DU-Teššup, the father of Aziru's successor, as Klengel, MIO 10 (1964) p. 75, n. 102, has proposed; see also Klengel, Geschichte Syriens (see Introduction, n. 127), Teil 2, p. 281. Izre'el, Amurru, suggests Bit-ili. If, following Izre'el, ibid., in lines 16ff. we see Tutu being addressed, then he is hardly the addressee of the preceding message. The latter must be another high Egyptian official.

2. [a-na ia-ši ŠA]: cf. EA 136, n. 7. For objections against this restoration, see Izre'el, Amurru.

3. See n. 1.

4. i-ḫa-ṣa-ru-nim: following AHu, p. 850, but the reading of the third sign is most uncertain.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: M. Dietrich and O. Loretz, in Stiehl and Stier, eds., Beiträge zur Alten Geschichte und deren Nachleben, Band 1 (Berlin, 1969), pp. 16ff.; Izre'el, Amurru, pp. 55ff.

To the king, our lord:<sup>1</sup> Message of Baaluya and message of Bet-ili. We fall at the feet of our lord. For our lord may all go well. Here with<sup>2</sup> the lands of our lord all goes very well.

7-13 Our lord, do not worry at all. Do not trouble yourself. Our lord, as soon as you can, meet with<sup>3</sup> them : zu-zi-la-ma-an(?) so they will not delay you there (any longer).

14-18 Moreover, troops of Ḫatti under Lupakku have captured cities of Amqu, and with<sup>4</sup> the cities they captured Aaddumi. May our lord know (this).

19-35 Moreover, we have heard the following: Zitana has come and there are 90,000 infantrymen that have come with him. We have, however, not confirmed<sup>5</sup> the report, whether they are really there and have arrived in Nuḥašše, and so I am sending Bet-ili to him. As soon as we meet with them, I will immediately send my messenger so he can report to you whether or not it is so.

36-44 To Rab(i)-Ilu and 'Abdi-<sup>d</sup>URAŠ, to Bin-Ana and Rabi-šidqi: Message of Amur-Ba'la. For you may all go well. Do not trouble yourselves, and do not worry at all. Here with your families all goes very well. Wish Anatu well.

NOTES

1. The king is Aziru, during his stay in Egypt, and this letter seems to have been written by the same scribe as that of EA 169, with which it was probably delivered; see Klengel, MIO 10 (1964) pp. 76f., and Dietrich and Loretz, Beiträge (see headnote), pp. 14f.

2. See EA 112, n. 1.

3. In lines 30-31, pānī šabātu is achieved by a journey (what Bet-ili does, Baaluya in effect does too) and provides the necessary check on the report; therefore, "to meet, face to face." Here in line 11, the meeting referred to is perhaps the official audience with the king and his court, without which Aziru could not depart. The interpretation of the Hurrian gloss is uncertain.

4. See n. 2.

5. Following AHu, p. 1327; for turrušu = kunnu, "to confirm," cf. tiriš kussê, "firming of the throne," in A. Abou-Assaf, P. Bordreuil, and A. ### NOTES

1. This letter is very reminiscent of EA 157, but the scribe has his peculiarities: the greeting is not ruled off from the body of the letter, and "7 times and 7 times" is omitted. See also Knudtzon, VAB 2/2, p. 1275, n. 1.

2. [iš-tu pa-na-nu-um-ma]: following Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 60*, n. 9; cf. EA 157:9.

3. [a-na]: despite the reservations of Knudtzon, VAB 2/1, p. 679, note h.

4. [ù ik-ta-la-šu-n]u.

5. [la it-ta-aš-šú-nim] 9 [lu-ú].

6. [ik-š]u-ud-ni 15 [m]pu]-ú-wu-ru [m<sup>14</sup>i]ḥ-r]i-pí-[tá LUGAL be-li-ia]: that ú-PI-ru is part of a personal name seems, in context, plausible, and otherwise makes no sense. If a personal name, Pa/uwuru is the obvious choice, and if correct, then certainly the Pawuru of the Byblos letters. That he might have been the unnamed commander of EA 107:14 is, of course, only a guess.

NOTES

1. "We" refers to his fellow mayors, who send exactly the same report to the king in EA 175–176 and 363.

2. ana pānī alāku has here been taken to mean to go "towards, to" (Knudtzon; Thureau-Dangin, RA 19 [1921] p. 95), which has been followed by Kitchen, Suppiluliuma and the Amarna Pharaohs (see EA 157, n. 2), p. 14, n. 4, and cf. Greenberg, Ḫab/piru, p. 43, on EA 195), or "at the head of" (Rainey, AOAT 8<sup>2</sup>, p. 25; Weippert; cf. also Bottéro, Ḫabiru, p. 104, on EA 195). Neither meaning seems satisfactory. It does not seem likely that Egyptian vassals would be ordered to march at the head of Egyptian troops (cf. EA 191:15f., and 202:8ff.), and it is not clear why the vassal should go to meet the Egyptian troops. Having made preparations for their arrival, he would rather wait for, and then join, them, adding his forces to theirs and proceeding on the march. Furthermore, "(to be) ana pānī the troops wherever they go" (EA 203:13ff.; 204:15ff.; 205:13ff.) seems to be virtually synonymous with ana pānī alāku. Therefore, ana pānī, "for, at the disposition of"; cf. Hebrew bālak lipnē, "to serve," and see M. Weinfeld, Maarav 3/1 (1982) p. 31, n. 76.

Look, my brother who is in Ṭubiḫu,<sup>2</sup> is a . . . ,<sup>3</sup> and he goes about taking over cities of the king, my lord, my god, [my] Sun. 19–29 [He has made] Amurru an enemy territory, [and] has turned over<sup>4</sup> all the men in the cities of the king, my lord, [m]y god, [my] Sun, to the ‘Apiru. And now<sup>5</sup> the god of the king, my lord, my god, my Sun, has permitted (it) and he has seized Ṭubiḫu. And so I would curse<sup>6</sup> my brother and guard Ṭubiḫu for the king, my lord, my god, [my Sun], for, consider, Ṭubiḫu is my ancestral city.

NOTES

1. up-š[a a-na ia-ši]: nappāšu is not used elsewhere in EA except perhaps in EA 19:16 and 29:48, but the association of the king’s message with his breath is quite frequent; see EA 100, n. 9.

2. Whether a member of his family or a fellow vassal is meant is not clear.

3. See CAD, S, p. 415. As used here, sūru seems a pejorative.

4. [ú’-ga-mi-ir: there is not enough room for ù, which was probably at the end of the previous line.

5. Following Rainey, UF 7 (1975) p. 413.

6. Person and mood of e-ra-ar are not certain. The curse seems in context to imply banishment.

2. šī-ir (text nī-te): (1) cf. šāru ina pānī in EA 252:14 (šī-ir-ti) and 286:6–7, 21 (cf. also 24); (2) lemnu (lamnu) is very rare in EA, its use as a predicate unattested, and šī = lim is extremely rare except as a writing of 1000 or in frozen phonetic complements.

An Egyptian traitor

TEXT: VAT 1725.

COPIES: WA 189; VS 11, 106.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Bottéro, Habiru, pp. 97ff. (lines 9–63); Greenberg, Habiru, pp. 41f. (lines 1–64).

Say to the king, my lord, my god, [m]y Sun: Message of [M]ayarzana, the ruler of Ḥasi, your servant, the dirt under the feet of the k[in]g, my lord, my god, m[y] Sun, the groun[d h]e t[r]ea[d]s on. I fall at the feet [of the kin]g, m[y] lord, [7 times] and 7 times.

9–15 M[ay] the king, my lord, [m]y [g]o[d], my S[un], know of<sup>1</sup> the d[ee]d that Amanḥatpe, the ruler of Tušultu, committed against the [c]ities of the king, my lord, when the ‘Apiru forces [w]a[ge]d<sup>2</sup> war against me and captured the cities of the king, my lord, my god, my Sun.

16–20 The ‘Apiru captured Maḥzibtu, a city of the ki[n]g, my lord, and plundered (it) and sen[t] it up in flames, and then the ‘Apiru took refuge<sup>3</sup> with Ama[nḥat]pe.

21–27 And the ‘Apiru captured Gilunu, a city of the king, my lord, plundered it, sent it up in flames, and hardly one family escaped from Gilunu. Then the ‘Apiru t(o)ok refuge with Amanḥatpe.

28–36 And the ‘Apiru cap(tu)red [M]agd[a]lu, a [ci]ty of the king, my lord, my god, m[y] Sun, plundered it, se(n)t it up in flames, and h[a]rd[l]y [on]e family escaped from Mag[da]lu. Then the ‘Apiru took refuge with Amanḥatpe.

37–41 And Uštu, a [ci]ty of the king, my lord, the ‘Api[ru] captured, plundere[d i]t, and sent it up in flames. Then the ‘Apiru took refuge with Amanḥatpe.

42-75 And then the 'Apiru having raided Hasi, a [ci]ty of the king, my lord, we did battle with the 'Apiru, and we defeated them. Then 40 'Apiru w[ent] t[o Amanh]atpe, and Amanhatpe welcomed whoever had escaped. [And] they were gathered (together) [in] the city.<sup>4</sup> [Ama]nhatpe is an 'Apir[u]!<sup>5</sup> We he[ar]d [tha]t the 'Apiru were with Amanhatpe, so [m]y broth[ers] and my so[ns], your servants, d[rov]e<sup>6</sup> a chariot t[o] Amanhatpe. My [br]others sa[id] to Amanhatpe, "Hand ov[er] the 'Apiru, traitors to the king, our lord, so we can [de]mand a reckoning of those 'Apiru that have taken re[fu]ge<sup>7</sup> with you, f[or] having c[aptured] cities of the king, my lord, and burning them down." He [a]gre[ed] to hand over the 'Apiru, but he took them in the night<sup>8</sup> and fled to the 'Apiru. Amanhatpe being a traitor, may the king, my lord, demand a reckoning of him. He has fled from him. May the king, my lord, not be negligent, with no reck[on]ing<sup>9</sup> demanded of Amanhatpe. (As to another ruler, traitors are not to be (al)lowed into the loyal land of the king, my lord.)<sup>10</sup> When [the kin]g, my lord, has demanded a reckon[ing of] Amanhatpe, the traitor, he will make (him) flee from him.<sup>11</sup> [And so we] (always) obey. And note: I am a loyal servant of the king, my lord.

NOTES

1. {ù}i-i'-d[e.]: cf. EA 148:43; 248:9; 257:8, etc., for the writing, but the reading is doubtful because the horizontal at the beginning of the last sign is certain. Perhaps it was meant to be erased.

2. i-p[u-š]u-m[i]: virtually certain.

3. Lit. "entered." Characteristic of EA 185-86 is i as thematic vowel in forms of erēbu: see EA 185:20, 26, 36, 40; 186:26, 50, 87. The only parallels are EA 127:19; 137:34, 42; 138:12, 134. These forms may not be provincial aberrations; note Old Babylonian [i-š]e-ri-ib, R. Whiting, Jr., Old Babylonian Letters from Tell Asmar (see EA 14, n. 9), no. 2:6.

4. {ù i-na} URU pa-ab-(ru)-mi: there is no reference in the parallel passage (EA 186:50-52) to a place called Paḥmu, which is otherwise unknown, and in context it is hard to see what role the place might have played. The scribe omitted a sign in lines 26, 28, 31, 69, and possibly 60 (i-ša-ra-pu-ni-(š)i-na). Throughout the letter -mi is regularly attached to the verb (27 times).

5. ù LÚ.SA.GA[Z<sup>ma</sup>a-ma-a]n-ḥa-at-pé: almost certainly not enough room for GA[Z. MEŠ ...].

6. t[i-na-am]-mi-š[u]: following Landsberger in Bottéro, Ḥabiru, p. 98.

7. i-ri-bu-mi: once it is recognized that erēbu itti can mean "to enter into (the presence)," the restoration seems virtually certain; see esp. EA 283:11; 286:40.

8. a-na mu-ši ((ir)): assuming the ir should have been erased like the preceding Winckelbaken.

9. ba-lu š'a'-a-al: the alleged ma-ḥa is actually written much closer than in the copies, making ša very probable.

10. A parenthetical remark referring to Amanhatpe's replacement?

11. Syntax ("converted perfect"?) and meaning (banishment?) unclear.

NOTES

1. [š]u-m-ma BA.UG<sub>7</sub> [ni-mu-ut]: Glossenkeil before nimūt? Cf. EA 362:11.
2. URU.K[I ma-ah-zi-ib]-t<sup>ki</sup>: cf. EA 185:17. Against URU t[u-š]u-ul-ti (Knudtzon, followed by Bottéro): (1) it does not fill the break; (2) it seems highly unlikely that the 'Apiru destroyed Amanḥatpe's own city and still gained his support; (3) after their forays they seem to retreat to Tušultu (Greenberg, Habipiru, p. 42, n. 13). Against my reading is the fact that nowhere else in EA 185–86 is a city name preceded by URU.KI. I assume influence of the immediately following URU.KI kitti.
3. URU [ma-ag-d]a-l[i]: cf. EA 185:29. Note, however, the absence of determinative ki at the end.
4. Pillaging of another city, presumably Uštu; cf. EA 185:37–41.

To the king, my lord: Message of Etakkama, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord, my Sun, 7 times plus 7. My lord, I am your servant, but the wicked Biryawaza has gone on defaming me in your sight, my lord, and when he was defaming me in your sight, then he took my entire paternal estate along with<sup>1</sup> the land of Qidšu, and sent my cities up in flames. 13–20 But, I assure you, the commissioners of the king, my

Reverse

1-8 [...] . . . Biryawaza. Thus do I serve you along w[ith] all my brothers, and wherever there is war against the king, I go, together with my troops, together with my chariots, and together with all my brothers. 9-18 Since Biryawaza had allowed all of the cities of the king, my lord, to go over to the 'Apiru in Taḥši and Upu, I went, and with your gods<sup>2</sup> and your Sun leading me, I restored from the 'Apiru the cities to the king, my lord, for his service, and I disbanded the 'Apiru. 19-27 May the king, my lord, rejoice at Etakkama, his servant, for I serve the king, my lord, together with all my brothers. TEXT: C 4760 (12192).

COPY: WA 125.

To the king, my lord: Message of Arsawuya, the ruler of Ruḥizza. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord. The king, my lord, wrote to me to make preparations before the arrival of the archers of the king, my lord, and before the arrival of his many commissioners.<sup>1</sup>

9-10 And could I think of not serving the king, my lord?

11-21 May I join up<sup>2</sup> with the archers of the king and his commissioners so that, having everything prepared, I might follow them wherever they are at war against the king, my lord, and we capture them (and) give his enemies into the hand of the king, our lord.

NOTES

1. As used here, high officials and military commanders.
2. Against Knudtzon, lukšudam-me is first person, not third, and singular, not plural.

To the king, my lord: Message of Tiwati. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times plus 7 times.

5–24 I am indeed in the city; I am very much on my guard. M[y] horses and [my] t[roops (and my chariots)<sup>1</sup> are for] the ser[vice of the king, my lord], and (when) the archers c[ome forth],<sup>2</sup> I will accompany th[em]. ## A tradition of service

TEXT: VAT 1705.

COPY: VS 11, 112.

To the king, my lord: Message of Biryawaza, yo[ur] servant. I fal[l] at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 6–16 Behold, we are servants (who) have served the king from time immemorial. Like Šutarna, my father, like ... [...],<sup>1</sup> [my] grand[father, ...] ... 17–27 ... [...] to gu[ar]d the cities. And the expedition<sup>2</sup> that you sent to Naḥrima ... [...] 28–32 [...] is very afraid.<sup>3</sup> [I] herewith [s]end<sup>4</sup> [m]y brother [t]o you.

NOTES

1. Collation shows only the horizontals of the fairly clear TAR of copy; Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 74*, n. 65, mba[š-x]-tar. Na'aman, UF 20 (1988) p. 180, sees here the beginning of Biryawaza's defense against charges by the king, perhaps of robbing a Babylonian caravan (cf. EA 7:75).
2. KASKAL-na (written šū). Instead of "expedition," perhaps "caravan"; see n. 1.
3. The gender (feminine) suggests that the subject is a city.

Waiting for the Pharaoh's words

TEXT: C 4761 (12230).

COPY: WA 96.

Say to the king, my lord: Message of Biryawaza, your servant, the dirt at your feet and the ground you tread on, the chair you sit on and the footstool<sup>1</sup> at your feet. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, the Sun of the dawn (over) : li-me-ma (peoples),<sup>2</sup> 7 times plus 7 times. 16–23 My lord is the Sun in the sky, and like the coming forth of the Sun in the sky (your) servants await the coming forth of the words from the mouth of their lord. 24–32 I am indeed<sup>3</sup>, together with my troops and chariots, together with my brothers, my 'Apiru and my Suteans, at the disposition<sup>3</sup> of the archers, wheresoever the king, my lord, shall order (me to go).

NOTES

1. GIŠ.GIR.GÛB : giš-tap-pí.
2. That the same scribe wrote EA 195 and 201–6 (so also Gordon; cf. Knudtzon, VAB 2/2, p. 1294, n. 2) is indicated by (1) a constellation of unusual sign-forms (note esp. ša, ni, bi, na, i, ia); (2) the presence only in these letters (not in EA 202) of 7-šū a-na pani 7-ta-(an)-ni; and (3) the appearance only in these letters of a-nu-ma a-na-ku qa-du ÉRIN.MEŠ-ia ù (qa-du) GIŠ.GIGIR.MEŠ-ia. Therefore, <sup>d</sup>UTU li-mi-ma in EA 205:6 rules out le-la-ma and makes li-me-ma certain. Following Rainey, Particles, chapter 1, read KIN as an abbreviation or KIN.(NIM) še-ri.MEŠ, "dawn(s)." The West Semitic plural formation lim + īma argues for li(')mu. The following lines elaborate the image of the rising sun. Cf. the hymns celebrating the sun breaking over the horizon, giving life to men and arousing them from deathlike sleep and torpor (John A. Wilson, ANET, p. 368, Amenophis III; ibid., pp. 370a–371a, Amenophis IV).

[...] he] said t[o me when] your servant was in A[dura].<sup>1</sup> ... They gave] his horses and hi[s] chariot to the 'Apiru, and they did not [give them] to the king, my lord. 5–12 And who am I? My (only) purpose<sup>2</sup> is to be a servant. Everything belongs to the king. Biridašwa saw this deed and moved Yanuamma to rebellion<sup>3</sup> against me. Having barred the city gate against me, he took chariots from Astartu but gave both of them<sup>4</sup> to the 'Apiru and did not give both of them to the king, my lord. 13–23 When the king of Bušruna and the king of Ḫalunnu saw (this), they waged war with Biridašwa against me, constantly saying, "Come, let's kill Biryawaza, and we must not let him go to [...] ..."<sup>5</sup> But I got away from them and stayed<sup>6</sup> in [...] Dimašqa, for [by myself h]ow can I serv[e the king, my lord]? 23–31 [They] keep saying,<sup>7</sup> "[We are servants of the king of Ḫat[ti], and I keep saying, "I am a servant of the king of Egypt[t]." Arsawuya went to Ki[ssa], took (some of) Aziru's troops, and captured Šaddu. He gave it to the 'Apiru and did not give it to the king, my lord. 31–42 Now, since Itatkama has caused the loss<sup>8</sup> of the land of Kissa, and since Arsawuya along with Biridašwa is causing the loss of Apu, may the king look carefully to his land lest the enemies take it. Since my brothers are at war with me, I am guarding Kumidu, the city of the king, my lord. May the king indeed be at one<sup>9</sup> with his servant. [M]ay the king [not] abandon his servant, [and may] the kings of [...] (and) the ki]ngs of Apu see whe[ther ...] ... I have seen the archers.

NOTES

1. See Na'aman, UF 20 (1988) p. 183.
2. IGI.2?: despite the possible dual-marker pānū.
3. yi-⟨maš⟩-na-mu-uš: following Rainey, UF 6 (1974) p. 306. On the subject of the verb, see Kühne, p. 7, n. 34 (end).
4. On the pronominal suffix, see BASOR 211 (1973) p. 53. The implication that Biridašwa took only two chariots is somewhat surprising and perhaps not right (mistaken use of the dual suffix?).
5. [x]-x-še: of the second sign only one oblique wedge is visible; against Tahše is its distance from the area that is Biryawaza's present concern, as noted by Na'aman, UF 20 (1988) p. 183, n. 23.

Say [to the kin]g, [my] lord, [my] personal god:<sup>1</sup> Message of Ara[šš]a, the ruler of Kumidu, the dirt at your feet, the ground you tread on. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 10-17 I am indeed your loyal servant. May the king, my lord, inquire<sup>2</sup> of all of his commissioners whether I am a loyal servant of the king, my lord. May the king, my lord, inquire of Hamašš[a] whether I am a loyal servant of the king, my lord. 17-23 May the king, my lord, welcome (me) and give me life, for I have neither horse nor chariot. 24-31 May it please<sup>3</sup> the king, my lord, to give life to his servant. Truly, I send my own son to the king, my lord, and may the kin[g], my l[or]d, give me life.

NOTES

1. Lit. "the god of my head"; cf. in Syrian Old Babylonian il ālim, "city-god," and il rēšim (rēšim?), "god of the head = personal god" (AEM 1/1, p. 239, n. 43; no. 108, note a).

2. li-eš-al<sub>x</sub>: cf. al<sub>x</sub>-lu-ú-me, line 27.

3. li-ut-r[u]-aš-me = litruš-me (cf. EA 92:46f.; 103:40; 106:35; 286:44): the horizontal wedge is not only lower than in š (Knudtzon), but somewhat longer, so that ru is possible. Gordon came independently to the same reading and the same interpretation.

NOTES

1. The scribe of this letter is distinguished by less archaic writing practices: qí-bi (not bí-ma; ni-[x q]u (not qú-ut; distinct AH-sign.
2. Formulaic "the king, my lord" prevails over context.
3. nišmu: durative seems much more probable than punctive + subjunctive-marker, the use of the latter being virtually unknown. The peculiarities of the scribe (see n. 1), however, preclude certainty on the matter.
4. An incomplete ra is more likely than ár (Knudtzon). Perhaps, as Na'a-man, UF 20 (1988) p. 181, n. 14, also suggests, Babylonian caravans were being harassed by the Ahlamean(s?); cf. EA 16.

NOTES

1. On the scribe of EA 201-6, see EA 195, n. 2. Probably all seven letters were written about the same time and perhaps in the same place. Another possibility is that Biryawaza sent his scribe from town to town; but see EA 204, n. 1.

2. kalbu išīēn (also EA 202:13; 247:15?): Pintore, OA II (1972) p. 125, n. 136, thought the phrase refers to a wild dog (wolf, jackal) cut off from the pack and living isolated and miserable; but cf. EA 319:19ff.

NOTES

1. Written ANŠE.MEŠ-pí.

2. The joy of a subordinate usually implies a message from the king (cf. EA 141-42, 144, 147, 154, 362), perhaps telling of his arrival (cf. EA 227); see also Na'aman, Lingering over Words, pp. 401ff. Novel features of this letter: the place, not its ruler, is happy; the language alludes to the vassal's duty of protecting the place where he is (lines 11ff.).

NOTE

1. The position of lū at the beginning of the sentence and not before the predicate suggests Canaanite influence (cf. AHu, p. 560) and argues against taking lū as asseverative (Campbell, Chronology, p. 100, n. 70).

NOTES

1. The script of EA 216 is quite different from that of EA 215. Between Yanhamu and Maya a new scribe was employed.

2. Or, "the king, my lord, will give thought" (threat), but not "may the king . . .," which is incompatible with the indicative yimluku.

NOTES

1. an [ia-ši]: cf. lines 9, 13; an for ana, probably an archaic survival. On lines 5-18, see Na'aman, Lingering over Words, p. 403.
2. a-šī-ti dUTU an-ia-š[i]: following Rainey, UF 7 (1975) p. 422, n. 35. If the writer's joy comes, not from the news of the king's journey, but simply from having heard from the king, another possibility is a-šē TI (balāt) . . . , "the coming forth of the life of . . ."; cf. the message (breath) of the king as life-giving, EA 100, n. 9.
3. ki-ia<sub>8</sub>-ša-ma: if right, another archaism; cf. kīašū, CAD, K, p. 309, and kīam (4), AHu, p. 470b. The alternative, kī yū-ša-ma, "when it (the message?) was heard," introduces a repetition that is hard to explain.
4. ab-di am-tal-[li-ik/lik]: ab-di, with Rainey, ibid., who postulates another archaism, uncontracted abdiam, and restores ri-[iš-te] (cf. line 19).
5. AHu, p. 1563, ellatīya, "my band."
6. ša-li-mu: indefinite third plural?
7. ip-pal-šū (for ippalsū) an-ia-ši: following Na'aman, Political Disposition, pp. 55f.
8. The durative yikšudu argues for a general statement and against "when Ḥani arrived," though it is very likely that Ḥani was in fact the bearer of the message to which EA 227 is the answer. See also EA 200, n. 3.

TEXT: BM 37646.

COPY: Scheil, Mémoires, p. 309.

TRANSLATION: Na’aman, Lingering over Words, p. 401.

Say to the king, my lord: Message of Yama,<sup>1</sup> your servant. I fall at your feet. 4–10 As I am your servant in the place where I am, the places where I am are all cities belonging to you. As your ⟨lo⟩yal servant,<sup>2</sup> I have indeed guarded your commissioners.<sup>3</sup> 11–16 If a soldier of yours comes to me, then I guard [h]im. And the cities where I am are all really guarded for you. 17–22 Just ask your commissioners whether they are really guarded.<sup>4</sup> May you know tha⟨t⟩ all your cities are safe and sound.

NOTES

1. Na’aman, Lingering over Words, p. 401, proposes that Yama is a mistake for Maya, the name of a well-known Egyptian commissioner (rābišu). This reading would explain the claim to offer protection to ḥazannūtu, a term that only very exceptionally does not refer to the local rulers, the “mayors.” If Maya is the writer, EA 230 is the only communication of an Egyptian official written in cuneiform.

2. IR ⟨ki-te-ka⟩: cf. VAB 2/2, p. 1601. Na’aman, ibid., reads IR-di<sub>12</sub>-ka.

3. If this letter is written by a vassal, then ḥazannu, as in EA 237 and 317, must refer to Egyptian officials, for a mayor’s duty was to protect, not other mayors, but Egyptians.

4. na-aš-ru: see Otten, MIO 1 (1953) p. 137, n. 30. For lū, “really,” cf. EA 255:25, mādiš našrat, “it is much guarded.”

Like Magdalun in Egypt

TEXT: VAT 1641.

COPIES: WA 95; VS 11, 134.

TRANSLATION: Albright, ANET, pp. 484f.

To the king, m[y] lord, the Sun from the sky: Message of Satatna, the ruler of Akka, your servant, the servant of the king, and the dirt at his feet, the ground on which he treads. [I] prostrate myself at the feet of the king, my lord, the Sun from the sky, 7 times and 7 times, both on the stomach and on the back.

10–35 May the king, my lord, heed the word of his servant. [Zir]damyašda des[er]ted [B]iryawaza. He w[as] with Šuta, a . . . [. . .] of the king, in the gar[rison] city.<sup>1</sup> He said [n]ot[hi]ng [t]o him. Out came<sup>2</sup> the troops of the king, my lord. He<sup>3</sup> w[as] with them in Magidd[a]. Nothing was said to hi[m].<sup>4</sup> Then he deserted to me, and Šuta has just written to me, "Hand over Zirdamyašda to Biryawaza." But I have not agreed to hand him over. Akka is like Magdalun in Egypt,<sup>5</sup> and has the king, [my lord], not [h]eard that Šuta is turned against me? May the king, my lord, [sen]d his [com]missioner to fet[ch] him.

NOTES

1. URU 'UN'-[ti/šu?]: on UN = maššartu, see EA 116, n. 1; al maššarti occurs in EA 76:36 (Šumer) and 190:5 (Kumidu?). The text does not say that the Zirdamyašda's desertion occurred in this place (so Pintore, OA 11 [1972] p. 307).
2. ašû, "to go/come forth," as said of troops, always refers in EA to leaving Egypt; the text does not say that the troops have departed (so Albright).
3. Perhaps the subject is plural ("they"), referring to Šuta too. Zirdamyašda and Šuta might have joined the Egyptian forces in Gaza and marched with them as far as Megiddo.
4. Since lā is consistently written la-a (lines 16, 26, 30), we should read, with Knudtzon, la-a qa-bi, not la a-qa-bi, "I said nothing" (so Albright); note also the nominative mi-mu.
5. The point of the comparison is not clear: whether the thorough Egyptianization of Akka (Albright), or its loyalty (Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 21*, n. 84). The reading and interpretation of what follows is also quite uncertain. In line 34, read [yû-šî-ra] (cf. EA 270:24), since uššira (Knudtzon) is always imperative.

At the end of line 10, Egyptian hieratic notation, in black ink; see EA 258.

NOTES

1. The long-distance join, made without comment, is Gordon's. Apart from other considerations, Knudtson's assumption in EA 235:11 of a[m-quit . . .] was in itself very improbable; šubēnu and maqātu in the same letter would be without parallel, and any repetition of the proskynesis is confined to the scribe who wrote EA 63 (probably omitted by mistake in 64–65) and 284, and to 184. A mistaken repetition of "at the feet . . ." in line 10, as in EA 228, is in itself most plausible.

2. na-šár; similarly, ú-na-šár (line 15 = 327:5); see EA 137, n. 15.

3. <sup>na, r</sup>eh<sup>1</sup>-tu-Ba-ak-ku: almost certainly an error for ehlipakku (AHu, p. 191); cf. EA 314, 323.

A servant from ancient times

TEXT: VAT 1678.

COPIES: WA 148; VS 11, 139.

Say to the king, my lord, my god, the Sun: Message of Rusmanya, the ruler of Šaruna, your servant, the dirt at your feet, the mire on which you tread, the footstool of the feet of my lord. (I fall at the feet of the king, my lord), 7 times and 7 times. 9–11 As I am a servant of the king from time immemorial, it is the king, my lord, I serve. 12–16 And here and now the king, my lord, [...], the king, my lord. 17–20 Another he smo[te]<sup>1</sup> throu[gh] my se[rvic]es, for I am a loyal servant of the king, my lord.

NOTE

1. da' -k[i : perhaps infinitive + i (JCS 4 [1950] pp. 169ff.), and perhaps to be rendered as passive, "another was smitten," on the assumption of no distinction of voice in the infinitive.

TEXT: VAT 1669.

[Say] to the king, [my l]ord and my Sun and [my] go[d]: Message of Biridi[ya], the loyal servant of the king. I f[a]ll at the feet of the king, [my] lord and my Sun and my god, 7 times and 7 times.

8–22 I have obeyed the orders of the king, my lord and my Sun, and I am indeed guard[ing] Magidda, the city of the king, my lord, day and night : l[e-l]a.<sup>1</sup> By day I guard (it) [f]rom the fields with chariots, and by n[ight]<sup>2</sup> on the wall[s<sup>3</sup> of] the king, my lord. And as the warring of the 'A[pi]ru in the land is seve[re], may the king, my lord, take cognizance of his land.

NOTES

1. GI<sub>6</sub>-ša (mūša): there is no reason to postulate **mīšu*. The reading of the gloss follows Rainey, UF 7 (1975) p. 405.

2. [e-l]a: following Rainey, ibid.

3. BÄD.M[EŠ (ša)): the reading is certain; the MEŠ, perhaps otiose. I assume accusative of place, but (ištu) dūrānī is another possibility. Another reading that has Biridiya guarding the walls seems unlikely.

Besieged by Lab'ayu

TEXT: C 4768 (12200).

COPY: WA 244.

TRANSLATIONS: Albright, ANET, p. 485; Campbell, Shechem, p. 193; H. Freydank in A. Jepsen, ed., Von Sinube bis Nebukadnezar: Dokumente aus der Umwelt des Alten Testaments (Stuttgart and Munich, 1975), p. 101; Seux, Textes du Proche-Orient, pp. 51f.

Say to the king, my lord and my Sun: Message of Biridiya, the loyal servant of the king. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord and my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 8–17 May the king, my lord, know that since the return (to Egypt) of the archers, Lab'ayu has waged war against me. We are thus unable to do the plucking: Ka-Zi-ra (harvesting),<sup>1</sup> and we are unable to go out of the city gate: ša-ab-ri because of Lab'ayu. 18–24 When he learned that archers were not co[m]ing o[ut],<sup>2</sup> he immediately [de]termined<sup>3</sup> to take Magidda. 25–33 May the king save his city lest Lab'ayu seize it. Look,<sup>4</sup> the city is consumed by pestilence, by . . .<sup>5</sup> So may the king give a garrison of 100 men to guard his city lest Lab'ayu seize it. Look, Lab'ayu has no other purpose. He seeks simply the seizure<sup>6</sup> of Magidda.

NOTES

1. The gloss is difficult. That what precedes is to be read ZÚ.SI.GA ba-qa-ni, "plucking," must be considered certain; see Meissner, AfO 5 (1928–29) p. 184; Kraus, Staatliche Viehhaltung im altbabylonischen Larsa (Amsterdam, 1966, p. 13); Finkelstein, RA 63 (1969) pp. 61ff. On the left of the gloss marker, there is nothing about harvesting fields (so Campbell). Middle Babylonian baqānu replaces Old Babylonian baqāmu; the apparent genitive baqāni rather than the expected accusative baqāna remains unexplained. The gloss may not be read ga<sub>14</sub>-zi-ra (Hebrew gāzar, "to cut off, divide"), which, difficulties of form aside (Piel infinitive gazzira?), would imply cutting up the sheep, not plucking or shearing them. Therefore, qā-šī-ra, "harvest(ing)," seems much more likely (cf. Hebrew qāšîr), but not as a gloss to what precedes; rather, as another activity, the gloss marker simply indicating a non-Akkadian word. Interference in the basis of agrarian life, flocks and fields, seems to belong to the topos "under siege" (cf. EA 226:10ff.).

2. ti-it-[ta-š]ú-na: following Gordon; this reading fits with the nominative piṭātu in the following line.

3. [š]u-ut-ri-iš: only one vertical visible. Rainey, private communication, 18 January 1981, after collation, reads [t]a-ri-iš.

4. On šumma (also line 38), see EA 35, n. 3.

5. The reading u[p]-ri has yielded no satisfactory sense. Dhorme, RB 33 (1924) p. 16, n. 3, also published in Recueil Édouard Dhorme (Paris, 1951), p. 501, n. 4, proposed "the dust (of Sheol)," but one does not die from the dust of the netherworld; see also JCS 7 (1953) p. 79, n. 8. It should be noted that neither sign is clear (so also Gordon). Albright and Campbell (see headnote) propose "disease," apparently from context. Perhaps dāb-ri (Hebrew deber), a virtual gloss and synonym of Akkadian mūtānū, which is here treated as singular.

6. 'ša'-ba-at-me: more likely than abātme, "destruction" (Gordon); note šabātu in lines 18 and 37. The inverted word order, object-verb, stresses the former.

1. A two-tablet letter; see EA 101, n. 1.
2. On the singular referent of DINGIR.MEŠ and on yi-pu-šu as singular, see Izre'el, UF 19 (1987) pp. 82f.
3. On lines 8ff., see Campbell.
4. TIL.LA-aṭ: perhaps balāṭ refers to provisions rather than to a message from the king; til-la-at, "auxiliaries," should not be ruled out.
5. li-ḫa-a[š-ši-iḫ]: but only the base and causative conjugations are attested in EA: -a[l-li-iṭ] is excluded.
6. Finley, Word Order in the Clause Structure of Syrian Akkadian (see Introduction, n. 8), pp. 67f., shows that in lines 24–45, where the word order is subject-verb-object, Surata as the guilty one is stressed.
- On the gloss, cf. Emar(?) dialect anu, "gear, equipment," in apin-ā-kār = ū-nu-tu = a-nu (Emar 6/4, no. 545: 136').
7. Biridiya's "brothers" were probably his confederates joined with him against Lab'ayu (cf. lines 1ff.), and therefore, "small" (ṣeḫrūta) would seem better understood in terms of rank rather than age ("younger").

NOTES

1. The script and the clay make the provenience of this fragment clear; it was Megiddo. The character of the message favors Biridiya, the ruler, rather than Yašdata, the exile (cf. EA 248).
2. On kalbu ištēn, if the correct reading, see EA 201, n. 2.
3. If erīštu occurs in the next line, then a form of nadānu, "to grant," not šemū, "to heed," seems required, for in common parlance one did not heed requests; one either granted or refused. See JCS 31 (1979) pp. 247f. The form should be indicative (addinu, anaddinu); cf. the indicative forms of šemū in EA 201–2, 319–20, 322.

oblique wedges, but the absence of this feature here could be due to the position of the sign on the upper corner of the reverse.

NOTES

1. L[Ú.MEŠ-ī]a UD (ūm) <sup>m</sup>mi-ī[l-ki-lf]: first restoration with Albright, CAH 2/2, p. 106, and Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 62, whom, however, I do not follow in the assumption of ⟨a⟩ by haplography and of UD by mistake for na, so that the men are going over to (ana) Milkilu. My own solution, perhaps hardly less desperate, is alāku, “to serve, do service”; see CAD, A/I, pp. 309f., and note its use in the periphery.

2. For a somewhat different version of the difficult lines 8–10, see Albright and Na'aman, ibid. (note 1).

3. maḥ-šū: the difference from Knudtzon's meaningless maḥ-ba is minimal and easily concealed in a damaged sign; UGU (eli? muḥḥi?), “because,” as in EA 250:17.

4. [yi-ī]p-tū-ra-ni: the petition, a measure of the vassal's desperate situation, is to be released from obligations of service and dismissed (cf. EA 126:47). Another proposal is Na'aman's in Political Disposition, p. 61: [ū i]š-tū-ra-ni . . . , “And the king wrote to me, ‘What have Milkilu and Lab'ayu done?’ ([yi-pu-u]š-mi).” Although this accounts for more of the text, it postulates too many features that are exceptional (šatāru; indirect personal object expressed by the accusative verbal suffix; singular verb with plural subject) or unparalleled (ayyū-ma, interrogative pronoun).

A calling to account

TEXT: C 4769 (12204).

COPY: WA 154.

TRANSLATIONS: Albright, ANET, pp. 485f.; Campbell, Shechem, pp. 202ff.

Say [t]o the king, my lord: Message of Ba<sup>c</sup>lu-UR.SAG, your servant. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 4–8 May the king, my lord, know [t]hat the two sons of the rebel against the kin[g], my [l]ord, the two sons of Lab'a[y]u, have made their purpose the loss of the land of the kin[g], my lord, over and above the loss that the[ir] father caus[ed].<sup>1</sup> 9–14 May the king, my lord, know that—for how many days!—the two sons of Lab'ayu have been calling<sup>2</sup> me to account, (saying), “Why have you handed Gittipadalla [t]o the king, your lord, a city that Lab'ayu, our father, had taken?” 15–27 And the two sons of Lab'ayu keep talking to me like this, (saying), “Wage war against the people of [G]ina for having killed our father. And if you do not wage war, then we will be your enemies.” I have answered the two of them, “May the god of the king, my lord, preserve me from waging war against the pe[op]le of [G]ina, servants of the king, my lord.” May it seem rig[ht] in the sight of the king, my lord, and may he sen[d] one of his magnates to Biryawaza [to tel]l him, “You will ma[r]ch against the two sons of Lab'ayu or [yo]u are a rebel against the king.” 28–30 After this may the king, my lord, wr[i]te t[o] m[e], “D[o] the work of the [kin]g, your [lo]rd, against the two son[s] of L]ab'ayu.”<sup>3</sup>

31–36 [ . . . ] . . .<sup>4</sup> 37–39 . . . in order to<sup>5</sup> cause the loss, with the assistance of the two of them, of the r[es]t<sup>6</sup> of the lan[d] of the k[ing], m[y] [l]ord, over and above what Milkilu and Lab'ayu caused to be lost. 40–47 And thus the two [s]on[s] of L]a[b'a]yu keep saying to me, “Wage war against the king, your lord, as our father did, when he attacked Šunama, Bur[q]luna, and Ḥarabu, and deported the evil ones, li[fti]ng up the loyal.<sup>7</sup> He also seized Girtirimmunima, and he cultivated the fi[el]ds<sup>8</sup> of the king, your lord. 48–54 But I have answered the two of them, “May the god of the king, my lord, preserve me from waging war against the king, my lord. It is the king, my lord, I serve, along with my brothers that give heed to me.”<sup>9</sup> The messenger of Milkilu does not move from the two sons of Lab'ayu. 55–60 Now, Milkilu is indeed trying to cause the loss of the land of the king, my lord, but I have no other purpose: the king, my lord, I serve, and the orders that the king speaks I obey.

NOTES

1. arki ša, "over and above what": see BASOR 211 (1973) p. 51, n. 6. On bulluqu, see EA 99, n. 1.

2. tu-[b]i-bu-na: reading certain.

3. i-[pu-uš]-mi ipšī: cf. ipša ana muḫḫi epēšu, EA 287:7If.

4. The reading of lines 31–36 is so difficult that it seems best to avoid even a very tentative version. The following may be noted: (1) the copy of WA omits line 31 and makes the first line of the reverse the last line of the obverse; (2) end of line 33 has yi-e[n]-na-Bi-<sup>r</sup>il<sup>r</sup> (with copy; also Gordon); (3) any readings at the beginning of lines 34–35 must be considered extremely tentative; (4) line 35: . . . a Zi x UZU.ZI.

5. The reading of the beginning of the line is extremely difficult, with not one sign certain. Gordon doubted a-n[a] and suggested that there was only one sign (li? ta?).

6. According to Gordon, not EGIR-ki-[t]i, but only EGIR-ki, the alleged -[t]i being in reality the m of the end of line 23. The meaning is deduced from context; perhaps, with Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 60, "hinterland."

7. yi-is-sū-ub lem-ni : ia-a[n-š]u ke-en-ni: (1) lemnī (substantive, not adjective, and therefore not necessarily lemnūti) seems preferable to an unmotivated dual pronominal suffix (-šī-ni; so BASOR 211 [1973] p. 53); (2) the reading -a[n-n]a is also possible, though perhaps less likely) and the interpretation of the apparent gloss are tentative in the extreme (kennī, for kēnī, like lemnī; yanšu, indicative, circumstantial clause, "lifting," i.e., "promoting, favoring"; gloss marker marking specifically non-Akkadian syntax). See also EA 180, n. 2.

8. yū-pa-at-ti : ú-[gà]r-ri: the dubious sign is very probably ("definitely," according to Gordon) not GI or ZI; GÀR is likely. This reading guides the interpretation of yupatti, "he opened," i.e., loosened the earth and made the fields ready for further cultivation, as the verb was used in both Akkadian and Hebrew. If this is the correct reading, the context suggests that this action was seen as a sign of appropriation. Na'aman, in Heltzer and Lipiński, eds., Society and Economy in the Eastern Mediterranean (c. 1500–1000 B.C.), Orientalia Lovaniensia Analecta, 23 (Louvain, 1988), p. 185, sees here a reference to the crown lands in the Jezreel Valley. Gloss marker used to mark a quasi-logogram (Ú.GÀR-ri)?

9. Note that the word order—object-verb ("the king, my lord, I serve")—stresses the object of service (also lines 58–59); cf. too lines 59–60 ("the orders the king speaks I obey").

Say to the king, my lord: Message of Lab'ayu, your servant. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord. 5–9 As to your having written me, "Guard<sup>1</sup> the men who seized the city," how am I to guard (such) men? It was in war that the city was seized. 10–15 When I had sworn my peace—and when I swore the magnate swore with me—the city, along with my god, was seized. He has slandered me<sup>2</sup> : šī-ir-ti (I am slandered) before the king, my lord. 16–22 Moreover, when an ant is struck, does it not fight back<sup>3</sup> and bite the hand of the man that struck it? How at this time can I show deference<sup>4</sup> and then another city of mine will be seized? 23–31 On the other hand, if you also order, "Fall down beneath them so they can strike you," I will d(o) (it).<sup>5</sup> I will guard the men that seized the city (and) my god. They are the despoilers of my father,<sup>6</sup> but I will guard them.

NOTES

1. ú-sur-me: following Rainey (private communication), confirmed by collation. My understanding of this difficult letter is that, in time of peace under oath, to which an Egyptian official was also a party (lines 10f.), certain enemies of Lab'ayu had taken his paternal city or village but had then been captured and come into his hands. On learning of this, the crown had written him, telling him to keep his prisoners in custody, presumably for investigation by Egyptian officials. Lab'ayu points out that he was not the aggressor, as he seems to have been accused (lines 13f.), and that his striking back was only natural (lines 16–19). Moreover, deference now to royal orders would only encourage further aggression (lines 20–22). Nevertheless, if ordered to do so, he would let his enemies have the upper hand, even kill him. Faithful vassal, he capitulates, and returning to the beginning of the letter, he promises to guard the prisoners.

2. The subject is the Egyptian official; see Halpern and Huehnergard (headnote), p. 229, n. 14. Cf., too, EA 253:16f.

3. See RA 69 (1975) p. 149, n. 1.

4. i-ša-ba-tu: on šabātu (properly of the u-u class), to renounce personal action out of deference to authority, see Durand, AEM 1/1, no. 32, note c.

5. i-pé-(šu): very dubious.

6. By taking the statue or image of the family god, Lab'ayu's enemies had violated his family.

[To the ki]ng, [my lord] and my [Sun]: Thus [L]ab'ayu, your [servant] and the d[irt on which] you tre[ad]. I fall [a]t the feet of the k[in]g, my [l]ord, 7 times and 7 times. 7–10 I have [o]beyed the orders [th]at the king, my lord, [w]rote to m[e] on a tablet. 11–17 [A]s [I am] a servant of the king [like] my [fathe]r and my [gr]andfa[th]er, a servant [o]f the ki[n]g from [lon]g a[lg]o, I am [n]ot a rebel [and] I am not delinquent in duty.<sup>1</sup> 18–25 Here is my act of rebellion and here is my delinquency: when I entered Gazru, I (spoke) as follows: "The king treats us kindly."<sup>2</sup> 25–31 Now there is indeed no other purpose (for me) except the service of the king, and whatever [the k]ing orders, I [o]bey. 32–35 May the king keep me in [the char]ge of my commissioner [in order to] guard the c[it]y [of the king].

NOTES

1. See EA 157, n. 3.

2. "The king punishes/will punish us" (Rainey, AOAT, 8<sup>2</sup>, p. 70) would require a quite different and, it seems to me, quite implausible interpretation of EA 253–54.

To the king, my lord and my Sun: Thus Lab'ayu, your servant and the dirt on which you tread. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord and my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 6–10 I have obeyed the orders that the king wrote to me. Who am I that the king should lose his land on account of me? 10–15 The fact is that I am a loyal servant of the king! I am not a rebel and I am not delinquent in duty.<sup>1</sup> I have not held back my payments of tribute; I have not held back anything requested by my commissioner. 16–29 He denounces me unjustly,<sup>2</sup> but the king, my lord, does not examine my (alleged) act of rebellion. Moreover, my act of rebellion is this: when I entered Gazru, I kept on saying, "Everything of mine the king takes, but where is what belongs to Milkilu?" I know the actions<sup>3</sup> of Milkilu against me! 30–37 Moreover, the king wrote for my son.<sup>4</sup> I did not know that my son was consorting with the 'Apiru. I herewith hand him over to Addaya. 38–46 Moreover, how, if the king wrote for my wife, how could I hold her back? How, if the king wrote to me, "Put a bronze dagger into your heart and die," how could I not execute the order of the king?<sup>5</sup>

NOTES

1. See EA 253, n. 1.

2. On yi-ka-lu as singular, see Izre'el, UF 19 (1987) p. 83; on karšī akālu, "to denounce," see EA 162, n. 4. I take ba-ba-lu-ma as an infinitive expressing circumstance; cf. the infinitive absolute in biblical Hebrew after a finite verb, and see Paul Jouon, S.J., Grammaire de l'Hébreu Biblique (Rome, 1947), §123r.

3. ep-še-et-šu ša: last two signs omitted in Knudtzon's transliteration; see Schroeder, OLZ, 1915, col. 175.

4. <sup>m</sup>DUMU.MU-ia (also line 33): an unparalleled personal name, Dumuya (Knudtzon, Oppenheim, Seux), does not seem likely, and <sup>m</sup>i-mu-ia, “my father-in-law” (Albright, CAH 2/2, p. 115, n. 7), must be rejected on grounds of grammar (genitive expected in line 31) and especially paleography (the DUMU- and I-signs are quite distinct, and in both instances the sign in question is clearly the former). In view of <sup>m</sup>DUMU-a-ia<sub>8</sub> at roughly contemporary Taanach, most probably Binaya (Glotz, BASOR 204 [1971] p. 20), the same name may occur here. The apparent association, however, of ideas—delivery of a son, readiness to deliver a wife—favors a common noun and a display of provincial learning: Sumerian DUMU.MU, “my son,” plus Akkadian pronominal suffix. See also EA 3, n. 2.

Say [t]o the king, [my] lord and my Sun: Thus Mut-Baḥl[u], your servant, the dirt at your feet, the mire you tread on. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 8–11 The king, my lord, sent Ḥaaya to me to say, “A caravan to Ḥanagalbat is this (man) to send on, and (all of you) send it on!”<sup>1</sup> 12–21 Who am I that I would not send on a caravan of the king, my lord, seeing that [La]b’ayu, my father, [used to serve] the king, his lord, [and] he [himself] used to send on [all the caravan]s [that] the king [would send]<sup>2</sup> to Ḥanagalbat. 21–25 Let the king, my lord, send a caravan even to Karaduniyaš.<sup>3</sup> I will personally conduct it under very heavy guard.<sup>4</sup>

NOTES

1. The position of annû in the sentence argues against its being the deictic particle, and uwaššeruma is not a plural form. The plural imperative uššerû is perhaps addressed to the entire local administration, but more probably, it seems to me, to all whom Ḥaaya would meet on his journey.

2. [ša yû-wa-š]e-ru or [yû-wa-š]e-ru.

3. Placed at the beginning of its clause, “to Karaduniyaš” becomes an ultima Thule.

4. To paraphrase: “Send a caravan even much farther, even to Babylonia, and I will not only send it on but conduct it there myself, with a large escort.”

Say to Yanḥamu, my lord: Message of Mut-Baḥlu, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord. 4–10 How can it have been said in your presence,<sup>1</sup> “Mut-Baḥlu has fled. He has hidden Ayyab”? How can the king of Piḥilu flee from the commissioner : sû-ki-ni of the king, his lord? 10–19 As the king, my lord, lives, as the king, my lord, lives, I swear Ayyab is not in Piḥilu. In fact, he b[as been in the fie]ld<sup>2</sup> for two months. Just ask Ben-Elima. Just ask Tadaa. 19–28 Just ask Yišuya whether, after be [ro]bbed Šulum-Marduk, I went to the aid of Aštartu, when all the cities of Garu had become hostile: Udumu, Aduru, Araru, Mešta, Magdalu, Ḥeni-anabi, Sarqu.<sup>3</sup> (Ḥayyunu, along with Yabiluma, has been captured.)<sup>4</sup> 29–35 Moreover, seeing that, after you sent me a tablet, I wrote to him, before you arrive from your journey, he will surely have arrived in Piḥilu. And I do obey [your] orders.<sup>5</sup>

NOTES

1. The rhetoric of defense: a rhetorical question challenging the two charges against Mut-Baḥlu (lines 4–6); another rhetorical question challenging the first charge (6–10); under oath by the life of the king, twice invoked, denial of second charge, followed by statement of the facts (10–14); invocation of possible witnesses to support denial of implied third charge (15–28); transition (“Moreover”) and, by implication, return to the first two charges: assuring Ayyab’s presence in Piḥilu (29–34), general statement of compliance with orders (35, as against the charge of flight?).

2. ia-a[r-b]i-iš: this reading fits the traces, which ia-[a-nu]-ma (Albright), though making very good sense (“he is not/has not been here”), does not; cf. šurbušu at Mari, said of putting troops in camps (ARMT 2 23:22). Ayyab, in this reading, is still engaged in stamping out the rebellion referred to later in lines 22–28. He might therefore be difficult for Yanḥamu to reach, who might then suspect Ayyab’s alleged ally of hiding him.

3. This new understanding of lines 15–27 depends on Na’aman, UF 20 (1988) pp. 181f. Line 20: of the two readings that have been proposed—gân’-ba (Knudtzon) and É’ ša (BB, followed by Albright)—only the first is possible. The reading ša is wrong: of the putative two oblique wedges before the last vertical, the lower is the end of the middle horizontal in ba, the upper a break in the tablet and not writing at all. Besides, only most rarely are personal names written without a determinative (the final vertical of the alleged ša). Mut-Baḥlu wishes to deny that after Ayyab's serious crime against a Babylonian—according to Na'aman, robbing his caravan, but the usage of gānab in biblical Hebrew favors kidnapping (cf. EA 8:34ff.)—he gave any (further?) support to the ruler of Aštartu when the latter was faced with rebellion. (If the city Aštartu were the subject of ennerir [Albright], the form would have to be either tennerir or ennerirat.) What remains unclear in this reconstruction is how Mut-Baḥlu, having in some sense broken off relations with Ayyab, could assure Yanḥamu of Ayyab's presence soon in Piḥilu.

4. Does this mean that these cities have been retaken?
5. ištimuna: first person, following Rainey, AOAT, 8<sup>2</sup>, p. 94.

The ubiquitous king

TEXT: BM 29853.

COPY: BB 70.

TRANSLATION: Oppenheim, LFM, p. 127.

To the king, m[y] lord: Message of Tagi, you[r] servant. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 5-10 As I am the servant of the king, I tried to assemble a caravan,<sup>1</sup> with my brother<sup>2</sup> in charge, but he barely escaped being killed. He is<sup>3</sup> unable to send my caravan to the king, my lord. 11-19 Ask your commissioner if my brother did not barely escape being killed. Moreover, as far as we are concerned, it is to you that my eyes (are directed).<sup>4</sup> Should we go up into the sky : ša-me-ma, or should we go down into the netherworld, our head : ru-šu-nu is in your hand. 20-25 So now I try herewith to send my caravan to the king, my lord, with a partner of mine in charge. May the king, my lord, be informed that I serve the king and am on my guard.

NOTES

1. It seems more likely that a vassal would be sending one caravan, not many; for otiose ḪI.A, cf. KASKAL-ra-ni. ḪI.A (EA 255:9), referred to by singular pronominal suffix (ušseru-ši, line 11). Organizing a caravan involved assembling the various goods requested or expected, and this could entail searching in various places (cf. EA 143:10ff.).
2. Or "a brother of mine." Since tappū, "partner" (line 22), probably always refers in EA to fellow mayor-vassals (EA 113:30; 120:45; 295 rev. 3), "brother" must mean here either a blood relation or someone of Tagi's immediate entourage.
3. "I am unable" (Knutdson) is hard to reconcile with lines 20ff.
4. The explanation of the alternation of first person singular and plural is perhaps that "it is to you that my eyes (are directed)" is an insertion in a stock expression of the impossibility of escaping the Pharaoh's control and support.

To the king, my lord: Message of Tagi, your servant. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord. My own man I sent along<sup>1</sup> with [. . .] to see the face of the king, my lord. 7–15 [And] the king, my lord, [s]ent a present to me in the care of Taḥmaya, and Taḥmaya gave (me) a gold goblet<sup>2</sup> and 1[2 se]ts<sup>3</sup> of linen garments. For the information [of the kin]g, my lord.

NOTES

1. The word order (object-verb), which stresses the object, suggests that a vassal was not expected to send his own man (whatever that means), at least not in the writer's situation, to the court. The king acknowledged such devotion by sending back a generous gift. This report might also have served as a check on Taḥmaya's honesty.

2. GAL (kāsu): reading certain.

3. "Set" seems to imply that the garment consisted of more than one piece; see Oppenheim, JCS 21 (1969) p. 250, n. 76.

NOTES

1. Knudtzon's transliteration omits the determinative of the text, mšum-[. . .]

2. Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 68, proposes URU [m]a-[aḥ]-[a-zi] and would identify it with the URU mubḥazi in EA 298:25. Though n]a (Knudtzon; Na'aman's m]a) is quite uncertain, it may be doubted that ma-ḥa-zi in line 13 explains the deviant spelling (so Na'aman).

3. CAD, M/I, p. 88, puts this use of māḥāzu under "town, settlement," but this seems to be a later meaning of the word, and if it had this meaning, it is hard to see why it occurs nowhere else in EA. If here the connotation is not of "important city" (CAD, M/I, p. 87), perhaps it is "harbor (city)" (ibid., p. 88, 5).

4. "Gone," not just "have gone" or "disappeared" (ḥalqū), but "used up, destroyed, wiped out" (gamrū), like the sons and daughters of Byblos (EA 74:15ff. and parallel passages).

5. Or, "through the activity of, abetted by" (ina).

6. ÉRIN.MEŠ pt-tá-ti-šu: following Rainey, Lingering over Words, p. 417, a reading tentatively noted in my collation notes.

EA 272-77 were written by the scribe of the Milkilu letters; see Knudtzon, VAB 2/2, p. 1329, n. 1, and EA 278, n. 1.

From a queen mother

TEXT: VAT 1686.

COPIES: WA 137; VS 11, 155.

Say to the king, my lord, my god, my Sun: Message of <sup>f</sup>NIN-UR.MAḤ.MEŠ,<sup>1</sup> your handmaid. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 8-14 May the king, my lord, know that war has been waged in the land, and gone is the land of the king, my lord, by desertion to<sup>2</sup> the 'Apiru. 15-24 May the king, my lord, take cognizance of his land, and may the [k]ing, my lord, kn[ow]<sup>3</sup> tha[t] the 'Apiru wrote to Ayyaluna and to Šarḥa, and the two sons of Milkilu barely escaped being killed. 25-26 May the king, my lord, know of this deed.

NOTES

1. The bearer of this name, still of uncertain interpretation, was probably ruling as queen mother; see Liverani, in Garelli, ed., Le Palais et la Royauté (see Introduction, n. 73), p. 336, n. 5.

2. See EA 272, n. 5.

3. Note the different nuances of yāde in this and the preceding clause; for the latter, see EA 60, n. 8.

TEXT: C 4773 (12216).

COPY: WA 138.

TRANSLITERATION (PARTIAL) AND TRANSLATION: Albright, BASOR 89 (1943) p. 17.

Say to the king, my lord, my god, my Sun: Message of <sup>f</sup>NIN-UR.MAḤ.MEŠ, your handmaid, the dirt at your feet. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 10-19 May the king, my lord, save his land from the power of the 'Apiru lest it be lost. Šapuma has been take(n).<sup>1</sup> For the information of the king, my lord.

NOTE

1. 'la-'q'i-ta-(at): the text reflects perhaps some confusion between Akkadian leqū and laqātu, Canaanite lakada; cf. EA 284:7. Since city names are feminine in this dialect, -(at). Albright's reading, 15 URU.KI-ka 16 URU ša-pu-na<sup>ki</sup>, must be rejected: URU in line 15 is most unlikely (the copy is exact), and ka is impossible (copy is exact); in line 16, the next-to-last sign is conceivably ba, but certainly not na (so also Gordon). Šapuna, if identified with biblical Šaphon in the Jordan Valley, is also open to objections on geopolitical grounds; see Na'aman, UF 11 (1979) p. 680, n. 33.

Sa[y] t[o] the king, my lord, [m]y g[od], my Sun: Mes[sage] of Šuwardata, [yo]ur servant, the dirt at your feet. I fall at the [fee]t of the king, my lord, [m]y god, my Sun, 7 [ti]mes and 7 times. 9–15 The king, my lord, permitted<sup>1</sup> me to wage war against Qeltu. I waged war. It is now at peace with me; my city is restored to me. 16–24 Why did 'Abdi-Ḥe[b]a write to the men of Qeltu, "[Ac]cept silver and follow me"? 24–29 Moreover, may the king, my lord, conduct an inquiry. If I took a man, or a single ox, or an ass, from him, then he is in the right! 30–35 Moreover, Lab'ayu, who used to take our towns, is dead, but now [an]other Lab'ayu is 'Abdi-Ḥeba, and he seizes our town. 36–40 [So] may the king take cognizance of [hi]s servant because of this deed, but I will do nothing until the king sends back<sup>2</sup> word to his servant.

NOTES

1. Or "sent," but in any case stressing the intervention of the crown, without which he promises (lines 36ff.) no further action (occupation of Qeltu?).
2. Instead of yú-šú-te-ru, perhaps yú-na-ki-ru, "changes," i.e., revokes an earlier decision (so Gordon).

May the king, my lord, ta⟨k⟩e me away.<sup>7</sup> Since Yanḫamu, that is, the commissioner<sup>8</sup> of the king, my lord, is there, may the king, my lord, spea[k] with him, (asking), "Is the war against Šuwardata severe or is it not?"

NOTES

1. There is a ruling between lines 1 and 2, and two more between lines 16 and 17.
2. du-gu-la-ni KI (itti) . . . : following AHw, p. 576a.
3. mīya-mi yumaggir, lit. "who would grant"; cf. Hebrew mī yittēn.
4. The interpretation of line 12 is quite tentative: ana omitted (for the construction, see Introduction, n. 75) or (a-na); le-qé-ma, infinitive, but la-qé-ma expected (see VAB 2/2, p. 1452).
5. The reading of KÛ + 40 and KÛ + 40 x is as obscure as ever. If the occasion of the visit reflects the presence of a new king on the throne, there may be reference here to the renewal of the vassal oath.
6. Cf. AHw, p. 709, nadû, IV; CAD, N, p. 309, nuddû.
7. Taking Šuwardata away is the alternative to sending archers; cf. lines 15–17.
8. It does not seem likely that the commissioner in question is someone different from Yanhamu, and so, tentatively, I take the u as corresponding to waw-explicativum.

NOTES

1. In the summer of 1951, I prepared with Albright a transliteration and translation of the Jerusalem letters that, though often considerably modified, I here draw on.
2. Perhaps k[i-ma ar-ḫi-e]š, "with all speed" (Knudtzon), but this expression is otherwise attested only at Byblos.
3. e-m[u-qi/qa]: so also Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 97. Though the word is attested only in EA 154:7, its appearance in a letter from Tyre is especially relevant because of a certain shared background of the Jerusalem and Tyrian scribes. Note also in the north emūqa kašādu, "to have the advantage over someone" (Nougayrol, Ugar, 5, no. 20: 14, 17', 23').

Say [t]o the king, my lord: Message of 'Abdi-Ḥeba, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord, the king, 7 times and 7 times. 5-15 What have I done to the king, my lord? They denounce me : ú-ša-a-ru (I am slandered) before the king, my lord,<sup>1</sup> "Abdi-Ḥeba has rebelled against the king, his lord." Seeing that, as far as I am concerned, neither my father nor my mother put me in this place, but the strong arm of the king<sup>2</sup> brought me into my father's house, why should I of all people commit a crime against the king, my lord? 16-21 As truly as the king, my lord, lives,<sup>3</sup> I say to the commissioner of the king, [my] lord, "Why do you love the 'Apiru but hate the mayors?" Accordingly, I am slandered before the king, my lord. 22-31 Because I say,<sup>4</sup> "Lost are the lands of the king, my lord," accordingly I am slandered before the king, my lord. May the king, my lord, know that (though) the king, my lord, stationed a garrison (here), Enḥamu has taken i[t al]l away. [...] . . . 32-43 [Now], O king, my lord, [there is n]o garrison, [and so] may the king provide for his land. May the king [pro]vide for his land! All the [la]nds of the king, my lord, have deserted. Ili-Milku has caused the loss of all the land of the king, and so may the king, my lord, provide for his land. For my part, I say, "I would go in to the king, my lord, and visit the king, my lord," but the war against me is severe, and so I am not able to go in to the king, my lord. 44-52 And may it seem good in the sight of the king, [and] may he send a garrison so I may go in and visit the king, my lord. In truth,<sup>5</sup> the king, my lord, lives: whenever the commissioners have come out, I would say (to them), "Lost are the lands of the king," but they did not listen to me. Lost are all the mayors; there is not a mayor remaining to the king, my lord. 53-60 May the king turn his attention to the archers so that archers of the king, my lord, come forth. The king has no lands. (That) 'Apiru<sup>6</sup> has plundered all the lands of the king. If there are archers this year, the lands of the king, my lord, will remain. But if there are no archers, lost are the lands of the king, my lord. 61-64 [T]o the scribe of the king, my lord: Message of 'Abdi-Ḥeba, your [ser]vant. Present eloquent words to the king, my lord. Lost are all the lands of the king, my lord.

NOTES

1. On the gloss, see EA 180, n. 2. For the various explanations of EN.RI, see Schroeder, OLZ 1915, cols. 295f. Hurrian influence has also been suggested: EN-ri = Hurrian iuri (ibri); see Loretz, UF 6 (1974) p. 485, and Jerusalem Scribe, p. 163, n. 52. Rainey, in Avishur-Blau, eds., Studies in Bible and the Ancient Near East (Jerusalem, 1978), p. 151, prefers a mistaken transposition from LUGAL-ri, an error occurring three times in this letter but nowhere else in the Jerusalem correspondence, though the work of the same scribe.

2. zu-ru-ub LUGAL-ri KALAG.GA (dannatu): cf. EA 147:12, and see Weipert, UF 6 (1974) p. 415, n. 2; not "the arm of the mighty king" (Albright). See also M. Görg, Homages à François Daumas, Institut d'Égyptologie, Université Paul Valéry (Montpellier, 1986), pp. 323ff.

3. "As long as the king lives, I (will) say" (Knudtzon, Ebeling, Albright) does not make much sense, whereas adi as asseverative/conditional ("whether") particle in an oath does: 'Abdi-Ḥeba swears that what he actually said or did, as against the charges of rebellion, was nothing more than to accuse the commissioner(s) of preferring the king's enemies to his supporters.

4. à-qa-bi: see Jerusalem Scribe, p. 161, n. 37.

5. In view of the parallelism with adi in line 16 (see n. 3), enūma reflects Canaanite asseverative kî (cf. Albright's translation).

6. The Ili-Milku of line 36.

So may the king provide for archers and<sup>6</sup> send the archers against men that commit crimes against the king, my lord. 20-24 If this year there are archers, then the lands and the mayors will belong to the king, my lord. But if there are no archers, then the ki[ng] will have neither lands nor mayors. 25-32 Consider Jerusalem! This neither my father nor m[y] mother gave to me. The [str]ong hand : zu-ru-ub (arm) [of the king] gave it to me.<sup>7</sup> Consider the deed! This is the deed of Milkilu and the deed of the sons of Lab'ayu, who have given the land of the king (to) the 'Apiru. Consider, O king, my lord! I am in the right!<sup>8</sup> 33-42 With regard to the Kašites, may the king make inquiry of the commissioners. Though the house is well fortified, they attempted a very serious crime. They [t]ook their tools, and I had to seek shelter by a support<sup>9</sup> for the roof : ga-ag-gi. A[nd so i]f he is going to send [troop]s into [Jerusalem], let them come with [a garrison for] (regular) service.<sup>10</sup> May the king provide for them; [all] of the land might be in dire straits<sup>11</sup> on their account. 43-52 May the king inquire about the[m]. Let there be!<sup>12</sup> much food, much oil, much clothing, until Pauru, the commissioner of the king, comes up to Jerusalem. Gone<sup>13</sup> is Addaya together with the garrison of soldiers [that] the king [pro]vided. May the king know (that) Addaya [sa]id to me, "[Beh]old, he has dismissed me."<sup>14</sup> Do not abandon it, [and] send this [year] a garrison, and send right here<sup>15</sup> the commissioner of the king. 53-59 I sent [as gift]s<sup>16</sup> to the king, my lord, [x] prisoners, 5000 . . . [. . .],<sup>17</sup> [and] 8 porters<sup>18</sup> for the caravans of the k[ing, my lord], but they have been taken in the countryside : ša-de<sub>4</sub>-e of Ayyaluna. May the king, my lord, know (that) I am unable to send a caravan to the king, my lord. For your information! 60-63 As the king has placed his name in Jerusalem forever, he cannot abandon it—the land of Jerusalem.<sup>19</sup>

64-70 Say to the scribe of the king, my lord: Message of 'Abdi-Ḥeba, your servant. I fall at (your) feet. I am your servant. Present eloquent words to the king, my lord: I am a soldier of the king. I am always yours.<sup>20</sup>

71-78 And please make the Kašites responsible for the evil deed.<sup>21</sup> I was almost killed by the Kašites [i]n my own house. May the king [make an inquiry] in the[ir] regard. [May the kin]g, my lord, [provide] for th[em]. 7 t[imes] and 7 times may the king, my lord, [provide] for me.<sup>22</sup>

NOTES

- [a-mur g]āb-(bi) a-wa-ta<sub>5</sub>; all the letters from Jerusalem, with the exception of EA 286, begin the body of the letter with amur; cf. Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 39*, n. 37.
- Cf. Albright (see headnote), but other restorations are of course possible; see lines 29-31. Ventive, "against me"?
- Or "did to me"; cf. EA 290:5.
- unuduGAG.Ú.TAG.GA (mulmullu, šiltābu): following A. Sachs, AfO 12 (1937-39) pp. 37ff.
- Enough room? See Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 40*, n. 38.
- pi-ta-ti ú: ú* for u, "and," sporadically in EA and elsewhere; see JAOS 100 (1980) p. 186; Schramm, Einleitung in die assyrischen Königsinschriften, pt. 2 (Leiden and Cologne, 1973), p. 2.
- See EA 286, n. 2. On <sup>16</sup>AD.DA.A.NI, logogram with frozen pronominal suffix (cf. EA 3, n. 2), see Jerusalem Scribe, p. 163, n. 52, and Huehnergard, Ugaritic Vocabulary, p. 48, n. 2, and his criticisms of Weippert, UF 6 (1974) pp. 415ff. (The DUMU.A.NI iš-ki-ba-al, Iraq 32 [1970] p. 27:2, should be read, with I. Gelb, DUMU A-ni-iš-ki-ba-al; private communication of C. B. F. Walker.)
- šadūq ana iyāši*: translation, with Albright, according to context (criminal charges against enemies), but the assumed impersonal subject—lit. "it is right for me"—is difficult; see Feigin, JQR 34 (1943-44) pp. 443ff. For a different version, "it is the king my master that is šadūq for me," šadūq = "generous," see H. Cazelles, JANES 5 (1973) p. 76.
- aš-ru-ú: cf. šerū (AHu, p. 1220), with accusative of place, but no satisfactory explanation of the apparent durative (yaqtulu). For earlier proposals and various possible readings, see Feigin, JQR 34 (1943-44) pp. 449ff. Albright, against the copy, read bat-ḡú-ú, "they breached" (see already Feigin, p. 449); Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 91, reads (e)-tel-<sup>l</sup>lu-ú, "they climbed up." As copied, the first sign is considerably larger than the BE on lines 37 and 45.
- <sup>37</sup> e<sup>7</sup>-mid (imdu): following an earlier reading of Albright, later retracted (see ANET). After the gloss, <sup>38</sup> [šum-m]a.
- 39 ÉRIN].MEŠ ti-ta-lu it-ti [LÚ ma-šar-ti] 40 [a-na] IR.MEŠ: ana ardūti, with Albright (cf. EA 157, n. 1). 'Abdi-Ḥeba asks, not for a punitive expedition, but for troops stationed permanently in Jerusalem that will give him the needed protection (cf. lines 46f.). The assumption of ti-ta-lu as erroneous for ti-la-tu, "auxiliary troops," a proposal of Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 91, and Rainey, Studies in Bible (see EA 286, n. 1), p. 144, seems unnecessary and unlikely. Albright restores [<sup>16</sup>ú-e-e] (cf. line 47), and translates "officer." Egyptian w<sup>u</sup>, however, referred to an infantryman (lowest grade) or simply a soldier; see A. R. Schulman, Military Rank, Title, and Organization in the Egyptian New Kingdom, Münchener ägyptologische Studien, vol. 6 (Berlin, 1964), pp. 36f.; EA 288, n. 1.

11. ta-ša-qa: cf. perhaps Hebrew šûq; form, yaqtula (cf. teppaša in line 71). A more venturesome proposal is found in Rainey, Studies in Bible (see EA 286, n. 1), p. 149.

12. lišâl ana šâšu[nu lu-û]: šâlu does not mean "requisition" (Albright, Seux), and mād seems to be a predicate, not attributive, adjective (private communication of D. Gropp).

13. On the use of the infinitive (pašāri), see JCS 6 (1952) p. 77.

14. Against "let me go" (Albright)—apart from the difficulties of form (pašranni for expected pušranni)—is the unlikelihood of a high Egyptian official's asking permission from a local ruler for anything. The subject understood is the king. The dismissal of Addaya—i.e., sending him elsewhere—arouses 'Abdi-Heba's fears that the king is going to abandon Jerusalem to its own resources.

15. annikānu, "here," its initial position in the sentence stressing Jerusalem as the place a commissioner should be stationed; see Jerusalem Scribe, p. 154.

16. [NIG.BA].HI.A: following Albright; cf. EA 288:22.

17. Albright, "silver (shekels)," but the copy is against K[Û.BABBAR].

18. Before "8" Knudtzon saw traces that he tentatively read as "318."

19. See Jerusalem Scribe, p. 162, n. 46.

20. ma-at-ii: a desperate crux; cf. Hebrew tāmîd and perhaps md, "to endure" (?), in Amorite personal names (see Huffmon, APNMT, p. 229). Albright translated as "insignificant(?)," as if ma-ṭi-ti (maṭū), and Finkelstein, Eretz Israel 9 (1969) pp. 33f., as "I would surely die (for you)," but the modal force of the perfect is questionable, and one may doubt whether it is possible to die "very much" (magal, EA 289:50).

21. On lines 71–72, see Jerusalem Scribe, p. 164, n. 61.

22. Restoring liškin in both breaks, with Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 92, but understanding the first instance as provision in terms of justice for the Kašites, not of provision or concern for the garrison, which has not been mentioned for over 20 lines. Albright's "avenge" assumes [li-iq-qi-im] and an unsuspected Canaanitism (nqm); see W. Pitard, Maarav 3/1 (1982) pp. 5ff.

On messages to the scribes of addressees, see the Introduction, sect. 4, n. 58.

Benign neglect

TEXT: VAT 1643 (not collated).

TRANSLATIONS: Ebeling, pp. 376f.; C. Mullo Weir, in D. Winton Thomas, ed., Documents from Old Testament Times, pp. 43f.; Albright, ANET, pp. 488f.; Freydank, in A. Jepsen, ed., Von Sinube bis Nebukadnezar, pp. 103f.

Say [t]o the king, my lord, [my Su]n: [M]essage of 'Abdi-Heba, your servant. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 5–10 Behold, the king, my lord, has placed his name at the rising of the sun and at the setting of the sun. It is, therefore, impious what they have done to me. Behold, I am not a mayor; I am a soldier of the king, my lord.<sup>1</sup> 11–15 Behold, I am a friend of the king and a tribute-bearer<sup>2</sup> of the king. It was neither my father nor my mother, but the strong arm of the king that [p]laced me in the house of [my] fath[er].<sup>3</sup> 16–22 [. . . c]ame to me. . . [. . .]. I gave over [to his char]ge 10 slaves. Šuta, the commissioner of the king, ca[me t]o me; I gave over to Šuta's charge 21 girls,<sup>4</sup> [8]o prisoners, as a gift for the king, my lord. 23–28 May the king give thought to his land; the land of the king is lost. All of it has attacked me.<sup>5</sup> I am at war as far as the land of Šeru and as far as Ginti-kirmil. All the mayors are at peace, but I am at war. 29–33 I am treated like an 'Apiru,<sup>6</sup> and I do not visit the king, my lord, since I am at war. I am situated like a ship<sup>7</sup> in the midst of the sea. 34–40 The strong hand (arm) of the king took the land of Naḥrima and the land of Kasi,<sup>8</sup> but now the 'Apiru have taken the very cities of the king.<sup>9</sup> Not a single mayor remains to the king, my lord; all are lost. 41–47 Behold, Turbazu was slain in the city gate of Silu. The king did nothing. Behold, servants who were joined to the 'Api[r]u smote<sup>10</sup> Zimredda of Lakisu, and Yaptiḥ-Hadda was slain in the city gate of Silu. The king did nothing. [Wh]y has he not called them to account? 48–53 May the king [pro]vide for [his land] and may he [se]e to it tha[t] archers [come ou]t to h[is] land.<sup>11</sup> If there are no archers this year, all the lands of the king, my lord, are lost. 54–61 They have not reported to the king that the lands of the king, my lord, are lost and all the mayors lost. If there are no archers this year, may the king send a commissioner to fetch me, me along with my brothers, and then we will die near the king, our lord. 62–66 [To] the scribe of the king, my lord: [Message] of 'Abdi-Heba, (your) servant. [I fa]ll a[t (your) feet]. Present [the words that I hav]e offered<sup>12</sup> to [the king, my lord]: I am your servant [and] your [s]on.

NOTES

1. 'Abdi-Heba does not deny that he is a soldier (so Albright); cf. EA 285:5–6, and see the remarks of Liverani, RA 61 (1967) p. 15, n. 4. Israelit-Groll, in M. Görg, ed., Fontes atque pontes (see EA 3, n. 17), p. 238, is of the view that Egyptian wē'u (w'w) here means "post commander."

2. On <sup>10</sup>ru-ḥi, "friend" (?), see Donner, ZAW 73 (1961) pp. 269ff. ūbil, "bearer," like ūbilī in EA 287:55, or "I have brought."

3. See EA 287, n. 7.
4. MUNUS.DUMU.MUNUS, subārtu?
5. Cf. tišbutu, "to seize one another, fight." The usual version, "all of it has been taken from me" (Knudtzon, followed more or less by Ebeling, Albright, et al.), has against it not only the assumption of a separative accusative (another example in EA?), but the fact that all of the king's land cannot be taken from a vassal because he never had all of it to lose.
6. enūma <sup>16</sup>ḥapiri: translation with Albright, who recognized that enūma, used commonly as a synonym of kīma as conjunction, is here also given the latter's meaning as preposition.
7. enūma eleppi: see n. 6.
8. KUR ka-((pa))-si: following Rainey, AOAT<sup>2</sup>, p. 105, perhaps for ka-a-si.
9. Though royal power is sufficient to achieve conquests far to the north and far to the south, so very close by are the conquests of the 'Apīru.
10. ig-gi-ū-šu: following Ebeling, VAB 2/2, p. 1546, for yigge-ū-šu. Bot-téro, Ḥabiru, p. 109, reads iq-qī-ū-šu, "slaves . . . have immolated(?) him," as if from naqū.
11. {u l}iddin šarru pānīšu 'ū' [lu-ši-m]i 50 [LÚ.MEŠ] ÉRIN.MEŠ pi-ta-ti a-na KUR-š[u]; cf. li-din LUGAL pa-ni-šu a-na LÚ.MEŠ pi-ta-ti à lu-ši-mi LÚ.MEŠ ÉRIN pi-ta-ti, in EA 286:53f. The reading 49 . . . 'ū' [lu-ma-še-e]r 50 [LUGAL] (so Albright) accords with neither the space nor the traces. There is no reason why -m]i belongs at the end of line 50 (Knudtzon) rather than line 49.
12. 65 [ša na]-<sup>r</sup>ad-na-ti: following Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 37*, n. 19.

[Say t]o the king, my lord: Message of 'Abdi-Ḥeba, your servant. I f[all] at the feet of my lord, the k[ing], 7 times and 7 times. 5-10 Milkilu does not break away from the sons of Lab'ayu and from the sons of Arsawa, as they desire the land of the king for themselves. As for a mayor who does such a deed, why does the king not (c)all him to account? 11-17 Such was the deed that Milkilu and Tagi did: they took Rubutu. And now as for Jerusalem, if this land belongs to the king, why is it (not) of concern<sup>1</sup> to the king like Ḥazzatu? 18-24 Gintikirmil belongs to Tagi, and men of Gintu are the garrison in Bitsanu.<sup>2</sup> Are we to act like Lab'ayu when he was giving the land of Šakmu to the Ḥapiru? 25-36 Milkilu has written to Tagi and the sons (of Lab'ayu), "Be the both of you a protection.<sup>3</sup> Grant all their demands to the men of Qiltu, and let us isolate Jerusalem."<sup>4</sup> Addaya has taken the garrison that you sent in the charge of Haya, the son of Miyare; he has stationed it in his own house in Ḥazzatu and has sent 20 men to Egypt. May the king, my lord, know (that) no garrison of the king is with me. 37-44 Accordingly, as truly as the king lives, his irpi-official,<sup>5</sup> Pu'uru, has left me and is in Ḥazzatu. (May the king call (this) to mind when he arrives).<sup>6</sup> And so may the king send 50 men as a garrison to protect the land. The entire land of the king has deser[ted]. 45-51 Send Ye((eh))ḥamu that he may know about the land of the king, [my lord]. To the scribe of the king, [my lord: M]essage of 'Abdi-Ḥeba, [your] servant. Offer eloq[uent] words to the king: I am always, utterly yours.<sup>7</sup> I am your servant.

NOTES

1. With Albright, CAH 2/2, p. 116; cf. ina libbi šakānu? On enūma, "like," see EA 288, n. 6.
2. His enemies make up the protective forces to the north. "Who will guard the guardians?"
3. lu-ū 2 šil-la-tu-nu: difficult and obscure; see Jerusalem Scribe, p. 162, n. 42, and the remarks on the reading lu-ū a-mi-la-tu-nu, "be men" (AHw, p. 90b). Other emendations: lu É-mi at-tu-nu, "you are of my house" (Albright, ANET; Campbell); lu-ū ša-mi at-tu-nu, "as for you, go on" (Albright, CAH 2/2, p. 116, n. 6; imperative of ašū?).
4. lū niptur: lit. "let us separate"; perhaps, "let us desert." By their generosity to Qiltu they would entice the city to their side and thereby isolate Jerusalem; see Na'aman, Political Disposition, p. 100.
5. ir-pf: following AHw, p. 386; MAŠKIM (rābišu, "commissioner" [so Albright and Campbell]) is excluded.
6. A reading li-is-kīn (Albright and Campbell), instead of li-iz-kur, is excluded because of the assumed kīn (a value unknown in EA) and the construction (all nine occurrences of šakānu are with ana, never ina pānī).

[Sa]y [t]o the king, my lord: Message of [‘Abdi]-Ḫeba, your servant. I fall at the feet [of the kin]g, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 5–13 Here is the deed against the land<sup>1</sup> that Milkilu and Šuardatu did: against the land of the king, my lord, they ordered<sup>2</sup> troops from Gazru, troops from Gimtu, and troops from Qiltu. They seized Rubutu. The land of the king deserted to the Ḫapiru. 14–21 And now, besides this, a town belonging to Jerusalem, Bit-<sup>d</sup>NIN.URTA by name, a city of the king, has gone over to the side of the men of Qiltu. May the king give heed to ‘Abdi-Ḫeba, your servant, and send archers to restore the land of the king to the king. 22–30 If there are no archers, the land of the king will desert to the Ḫapiru. This deed against the land<sup>3</sup> was [a]t the order of Milki[lu and a]t the order<sup>4</sup> of [Suard]atu, [together w]ith Gint[i].<sup>5</sup> So may the king provide for [his] land.

NOTES

1. ipša KUR (ipšu KUR, line 25): not ipša gloss-marker (Knudtzon, followed by Ebeling and Albright, who ignores the KUR in line 25). Na‘aman, Political Disposition, p. 51*, n. 19, suggests a syllabic writing, KUR = KÚR, “hostile.”

2. mu-’i-ru: see Jerusalem Scribe, p. 151. Other solutions: “they hired” (Knudtzon, Ebeling; cf. Hebrew mohar, “bride-price”); “they rushed” (Albright; cf. Hebrew nimbar, “to hasten”); “they were taken in” (CAD, M/1, p. 68, Akkadian muhbūru); “they assembled” (emending mu to pu, Greenberg, Ḫablpiru, p. 49, followed by Rainey, Studies in Bible [see EA 286, n. 1], p. 150).

TEXT: BM 37647.

COPY: Scheil, Mémoires, p. 298.

TRANSLATION: Albright, ANET, pp. 489f.

Say to the king, my lord, [my] go[d], my Sun: Message of Adda-danu,<sup>1</sup> your servant, the dirt at your feet. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, my god, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 8–13 I looked this way, and I looked that way, and there was no light. Then I looked towards the king, my lord, and there was light. 13–17 A brick may move from under its partner, still I will not move from under the feet of the king, my lord.<sup>2</sup> 17–26 I have heard the orders that the king, my lord, wrote to his servant, “Guard your commissioner, and guard the cities of the king, your lord.” I do indeed guard, and I do indeed obey the orders of the king, my lord, day and night. 26–40 May the king, my lord, be informed about his servant. There being war against me from the mountains, I built : b[a]-n[i]-t[i]<sup>3</sup> a house—its (the village’s) name is Manḫatu—to make preparations before the arrival of the archers of the king, my lord, and Maya has just taken it away from me and placed his commissioner in it. Enjoin Reanap, my commissioner, to restore my village to me, as I am making preparations before the arrival of the archers of the king, my lord. 41–52 Moreover, consider the deed of Peya, the son of Gulatu, against Gazru, the maidservant of the king, my lord. How long has he gone on plundering it so that it has become, thanks to him, like a pot held in pledge.<sup>4</sup> People are ransomed from the mountains for 30 shekels of silver, but from Peya for 100 shekels.<sup>5</sup> Be informed of these affairs of your servant.

NOTES

1. The reading of the name, written <sup>d</sup>IM-DI.KUD remains a matter of discussion. See RA 69 (1975) pp. 153f.; Izre‘el, Tel Aviv 4 (1977) pp. 159ff.; idem, IOS 8 (1978) p. 15, n. 16; Na‘aman, UF 11 (1979) p. 681, n. 38.

2. Lines 8ff.: cf. the virtually identical introductions of EA 266 and 296.

3. The reading of the gloss is not entirely certain.

4. Cf. EA 297:12ff. ri-qi = riqqu, a byform of ruqqu (AHw, p. 995, ruqqu I); bu-bu-li, in view of bu-bu-ul-li in EA 297:14, must derive from hubullu, “debt, interest,” and “the pot of a debt” makes sense only as a type of security held until the debt is paid. The modesty of such a security carries with it, too, the implications of extreme poverty. This line of thought leads to the redemption in the following lines.

5. According to PRU 3, pp. 7f., the king of Carchemish paid a ransom of 50 shekels to get someone from the Suteans.

1. <sup>md</sup>x-<sup>r</sup>D<sup>r</sup>I.KUD: the second determinative (deus) is virtually certain, and is almost identical with the determinative in <sup>d</sup>UTU-ia (line 6) (also Gordon). The next sign is doubtful only because so little is preserved, and this is compatible with IM. In view of the otherwise (except EA 294) unparalleled features common to EA 292-93, there can be no doubt about the identity of the sender of this letter.

[Sa]y [to the king], my lord, my Sun, my g[od: Message of . . .]-DI.KUD,<sup>1</sup> your servant, a loy[al] servant, [the dirt] beneath the sandals of the [ki]ng, my lord. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, my Sun, my god, 7 [times] and 7 times. 8-11 I am indeed the servant of the king, my lord, who serves the king, my lord, [from] my head to my feet, just as my [an]cestors<sup>2</sup> (have done) since time immemori[al]. 12-15 May the king, [my] lord, be i[n]formed of the de[ed that] Yab[ni-. . . , the ruler of S]idon<sup>3</sup> [d]id to me. 15-22 . . . I am indeed prepa[ring] my caravan and my intention is to go (to Egypt) to serve the king.

NOTES

1. Na'aman, UF 11 (1979) pp. 673ff., has shown that EA 295 was sent by a ruler of Tyre. He was probably the predecessor of Abi-Milku (EA 146–55), and the one killed in a palace revolt (see EA 89). The scribe of EA 295 is not the same as that of EA 146–55; perhaps he too perished with his master.

2. [a-bu]-ti-ia: so also Na'aman. The syllabic writing without the determinative LÚ is found only at Byblos and Tyre.

3. From Knudtzon's description of traces before -du-na (VAB 2/1, p. 887, note f), no longer visible even to Schroeder, Na'aman proposes [... LÚ URU š]i-du-na; see UF 11 (1979) p. 673 (also Gordon).

4. qa-du <sup>m</sup>ka-a[l-bi LÚ URU ...]: for the determinative, see Böhl, Sprache, p. 9; however, a syllabic writing of kalbu is found elsewhere in EA only in EA 320:22 and 322:17.

5. [a-p]i-i[š]: if correct, this occurs elsewhere only at Byblos (a-pt-eš, 5 times), and always passive. Was the partner ("partners" is also possible) the ruler of Byblos? (See n. 1, and cf. EA 264, n. 2.)

6. LÚ.IGI.KÁR EN.[NUN/NU.UN]: in favor of EN.NUN (maššartu), "garrison," are the task assigned to the men and the fact that 50 is a common number for manning a garrison (see EA 139:32; 238:11; 289:42). LÚ.IGI.KÁR, perhaps āširu or pāqidu, and āšir/pāqid maššarti may correspond to Egyptian imy-r jw'jt, "overseer of the garrison." For further discussion, see Acta Sumerologica Japonensia 5 (1983) p. 176, and cf. EA 337, n. 1.

Say to the king, my lord, my god, my [Sun]: Message of Ya[h]tiru, your servant, the dirt at your feet. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, my god, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 9–16 Moreover, I am indeed the loyal servant of the king, my lord. I looked this way, and I looked that way, and there was no light. Then I looked towards the king, my lord, and there was light. 17–22 A brick : la-bi-tu may move from [un]der its partner, still I will not move from under the feet of the king, my lord.<sup>1</sup> 23–29 May the king, my lord, inquire of Yanḥamu, his commissioner. When I was young, he brought me into Egypt. I served the king, my lord, and I stood at the city gate of the king, my lord.

30–35 May the king, my lord, inquire of his commissioner whether I guard the city gate of Azzatu and the city gate of Yapu, and (whether) where the archers of the king, my lord, march, I m[arch]<sup>2</sup> with them. And indeed, now that I have [p]la[ced] the ...<sup>3</sup> of the yoke : bu-ul-lu of the king, my lord, on my neck, I carry it.

Say to the king, my lord, my god, my Sun: Message of Yapaḥu, your servant, the dirt at your feet. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord, my god, my Sun, 7 times and 7 times. 8–16 Whatsoever the king, my lord, has said to me, I have listened to with the greatest care. Moreover, I have become like a (bronze) pot : sí-ri<sup>1</sup> given in pledge, because of the Suteans. 17–21 I have, however, just heard the sweet breath of the king. It has come forth to me, and my heart is very content.<sup>2</sup>

NOTES

1. ki-ma ri-qi URUDU : sí-ri: on riqqi, see EA 292, n. 4. To judge from the synonymous gloss síri, URUDU is probably best taken as a determinative. As to the gloss, Rainey, UF 5 (1973) p. 251, n. 82, compared Hebrew sír; but this had already been assumed by Albright, as seems clear from his translation, "an empty [riqi] bronze [URUDU] cauldron [síri]," and he restored the gloss in EA 292:46. On the position of the gloss, not in the previous line (Knudtzon), sí-ri is written higher than the rest of line 13, but this seems to have been occasioned by the scribe's awareness of the lack of room; ri is even higher than sí, and the writing slopes gradually upward. See also EA 292, n. 4.

[T]o the king, my lord, my god, my Sun, the Sun from the sky: Message of Yapa[h]u, the ruler of Gazru, your servant, the dirt at your feet, the groom of your horses. I prostrate myself at the feet of the king, my lord, the Sun from the sky, 7 times and 7 times, both on the stomach and on the back. 14-19 Whatsoever the king, my lord, has said to me, I have listened to very carefully. I am a servant of the king and the dirt at your feet. 20-33 May the king, my lord, be informed that my younger brother, having become my enemy, entered Muḥḥazu and pledged hi(m)self to<sup>t</sup> the 'Apiru. As [Ti]anna<sup>2</sup> is at war with me, take thought for your land. May my lord write to his commissioner with regard to this deed.

NOTES

1. qa-(ti)-šū: "to give the hands" is understood, with Greenberg, Ḥab/piru, p. 49, in the light of Hebrew parallels; CAD, N/1, p. 54, "to join."

1. (yū)-uš-šī-ra: following Izre'el, Tel Aviv 4 (1977) p. 163.
2. yi-it-ra-ṛni: the last sign, which is more probably -ni than -nu, "us," seems to have been written over LUGAL, which should probably be ignored in the translation; cf. EA 298:31, bēlīya alone. For the reading, see Bottéro, Ḥabiru, p. 110; Na'aman, UF 11 (1979) p. 679, n. 29.

NOTES

1. [a]-ka-[m]e 'ù' [du-gu-ul pa-ni] 14 LUGAL be-lí-k[a]: if Knudtson's copy of the first sign (VAB 2/1, p. 1007, no. 165) is accurate, my reading is excluded; what I could see allowed for al. Cf. lines 26–27 below, where Šubandu sends someone else after apparently excusing himself in the previous lines; cf., too, urruba dugulani, "Come into (Egypt) and visit me" (EA 283:8f.). For a different reading, see Na'aman, UF 11 (1979) p. 680, n. 34.

2. 14 . . . [ù a-na] 15 [m]a-an-[ni] e-[zi-bu URU LUGAL]: cf. "leave city—go to the king" (ezēbu—alāku, EA 294:31ff.) and "leave city—go away (to Egypt)" (ezēbu—pašāru, EA 118:34ff. and n. 3).

3. Traces suggest a final vertical, and hence 'de' rather than m[u]r (Knudtson). Besides, amāru, except as deictic imperative, is rare and northern language.

4. maršāku: perhaps, "I am sick," especially after "I tire myself out," but still the context suggests that it is the current hostilities that demand his presence in the city.

5. šu-'ta'-šī-r[i]: if this is the correct reading—or Knudtson's šutaširu—then the reference is hardly to making preparations, which is always expressed by šūšuru. Cf. šutēšuru, "to proceed, march on," CAD, E, p. 358.

6. 'K'U.D (KISLAḤ) : ma-aš-ka-n[a-ti-k]a: there is no doubt about the reading of the first sign. maškanātu seems to replace the more usual ašru, "place"; cf. EA 315:8f., alu-ašru, and see Na'aman, UF 11 (1979) pp. 680f., n. 34.

NOTES

1. To judge from the clay (grayish and filled with seashell fragments) and the script, this letter was very probably sent by Šubandu (EA 301-6).
2. k[a] probably belongs on line 1 (Gordon) rather than on line 2 (Knudtzon).
3. LÚ.MEŠ DA[M<sup>2</sup>.GÀR<sup>2</sup>.MEŠ<sup>2</sup>]: the first questionable sign is certainly not i[b] (Knudtzon); the copy is accurate. Gordon saw traces following SAL that require DAM; if correct, the rest of the restoration is obvious.
4. Unless there is question of two separate payments or two separate indemnities, this is a strange way to write 1400. Or are 400 shekels paid against a debt of 1000?
5. x-ri: first sign is not [š]a (Knudtzon); unless two signs, a large sign.
6. me-eb-š[ú]: last sign is hardly ḥ[a (Knudtzon); cf. line 4.

TRANSLITERATION: Artzi, JNES 27 (1968) p. 170.

Dagantakala, your servant, says to the Great King, my lord: I fall at the feet of the Great King, my lord, 7 times and 7 times.<sup>1</sup> 7–12 And now Dagantakal[a], your servant, belongs to the Great King, my lord. I have indeed listened to the orders of the Great King, my lord. 13–18 Dagantakala says, "Just as my father [and] my [gran]d-father, too, [a]cted towards the Great King, I have a<sup>c</sup>t[ed] towards the Great King, my lord." 19–25 The Great King, my lord, has said to me, "Obey your commissioner."<sup>2</sup> I have obeyed very carefully, and the commissioner is the one who knows whether I have not obeyed him.

Say [to] the magnate: [Message of P]aapu.<sup>2</sup> I fall [a]t your feet. 4–18 May you know that Šipti-Ba<sup>c</sup>lu and Zimredda are acting disloyally<sup>3</sup> together, and Šipti-Ba<sup>c</sup>lu said to Zimredda, “The for<sup>c</sup>es<sup>4</sup> of the town of Yaramu have written to me. Give me [x +] 11<sup>5</sup> bows, 3 daggers,<sup>6</sup> and 3 swords. Look,<sup>7</sup> I am about to sally forth against the land of the king, and you are in league<sup>8</sup> with me.” 19–26 To be sure, he rejects<sup>9</sup> (the charge of) disloyalty to the king, (saying), “The one who is disloyal is Paapu, so send him [t]o<sup>10</sup> me.” I [no]w<sup>11</sup> send Rabi-Ilu. He will [certain]ly answer<sup>12</sup> him [i]n<sup>13</sup> this matter.

NOTES

1. I have not seen the copy by Scheil (see VAB 2/1, p. 15).

2. [um-ma<sup>m</sup>p]a-a-pi: following Albright, BASOR 87 (1942) pp. 33ff., and cf. Knudtson, VAB 2/1, p. 945, n. 1; the reading is certain.

3. This form, tu-ša-tū-na, šu-ut (line 20), and ū-ša-a-t (line 21), are classified by AHw, p. 1205, as (Canaanite) passives of šātu, “to despise.” Formally, this is possible, but I cannot make sense of the letter under this assumption, and so I follow Albright in taking all forms as “intensives” (ibid., p. 33, n. 8). The absolute use in this line is comparable to šātu, “to contemn,” but also “to sin,” and there may have been some confusion between šātu and šētu.

4. a<sup>c</sup>-bi or ša<sup>c</sup>-bi: traces of two verticals, with Knudtson and BE 1/2; Albright's LÚ (ibid., p. 34, n. 10) is impossible.

5. Traces favor 10 + 1, with room for another 10. Against 6 (Knudtson) is the fact that enough of the final vertical is visible to argue against another above it.

6. GÍR.URUDU: following Albright, ibid.

7. “If” does not seem to fit the context; on šumma, see EA 35, n. 3.

8. The erasure at the end of line 18 seems to have been of a-na; cf. a-na ia-ši in the line above.

9. ū-ti-ru-m<sup>c</sup>i<sup>c</sup>: following Albright, ibid., the visible horizontal is lower than one would expect if the last sign were -ši (Knudtson).

10. [i-n]a (Knudtson) fills the break better than [a-n]a (Albright).

11. [i-na-n]a.

12. [lu]-ū<sup>c</sup> yi-pal-šu.

13. [i-n]a: traces of a vertical probable (Knudtson).

Rib-Haddi. Say to the king, my lord: I fall beneath the feet of my lord 7 times and 7 times.<sup>1</sup> 5-11 I have indeed heard the words of the king, my lord, and my heart is overjoyed. May my lord hasten the sending of the archers with all speed. If the king, my lord, does not send archers, then we ourselves must die and 12-20 Gubla<sup>2</sup> will be taken. He was distraught recently; he is also distraught now.<sup>3</sup> Recently they were saying, "There will be no archers," but I wrote with the result that archers came out and took their father. 21-30 Now indeed they are saying, "Let him not write or we will certainly be taken."<sup>4</sup> They seek to capture Gubla, and they say, "If we capture Gubla, we will be strong." If they capture Gubla, they will be strong;<sup>5</sup> there will not be a man left, (and) they (the archers) will certainly be too few for them.<sup>6</sup> 31-39 I for my part have guarded Gubla, the city of the king; night (and) day. Should I move to the (outlying) territory, then the men will desert in order to take territory for themselves,<sup>7</sup> and there will be no men to guard Gubla, the city of the king, my lord. 40-50 So may my lord hasten the archers or we must die. Because my lord has written to me, they know indeed that they are going to die, and so they seek to commit a crime.<sup>8</sup> As to his having said<sup>9</sup> before the king, "There is a pestilence in the lands," the king, my lord, should not listen to the words of other men. There is no pestilence in the lands. It has been over for a long t(i)me.<sup>10</sup> 51-59 My lord knows that I do not write lies to my lord. All the mayors are not in favor of the archers' coming out, for they have peace. I am the one who wants them to come out, for I have distress. 60-65 May the king, my lord, come out, visit his lands, and take all. Look, the day you come out, all the lands will be (re)joined to the king, my lord. Who will resist the troops of the king? 66-69 May the king, my lord, not leave this year free for the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta, for you know all their acts of hatred<sup>11</sup> against the lands of the king. Who are they that they have committed a crime and killed the commissioner: sú-ki-na, Pewure?

NOTES

1. See EA 126, n. 1.
2. On URU.MEŠ as singular, see EA 129, n. 33.
3. URU.MEŠ gub<sup>ph</sup>-li tu-ul<sub>11</sub>-qu ma-a-ga-mi . . . : agāmi, "today" (Thureau-Dangin, RA 19 [1922] p. 92, n. 1; AHw, p. 15; CAD, A/1, p. 141) must be rejected. It is neither West Semitic (AHw, CAD), where it is unknown and has no explanation, nor a compound of agā + ūmi (Thureau-Dangin), since the first element is attested only in very late times. Moreover, tulqu-ma is improbable, since enclitic -ma is rare in general and does not appear once in this letter, where we find -mi 13 times and even qí-bi-mi, an extremely rare replacement of standard qí-bi-ma. We thus have a twofold comparison between the past and the present: ma-a-ga-mi in the past (tumāl šalsāmi), ma-an-ga-am-mi (also) in the present (inanna; on the non-initial position, cf. EA 101:11-18); but, in the past (tumāl šalsāmi) they were saying . . . (teqbūni; on the form see EA 126, n. 12), now (inanna) they are saying . . . (teqbūna). An unattested West Semitism, mā(n) "what" + gam

"also" (Rainey), understood to mean that what was true in the past is also true now, does not allow for the statement of contrast between the past and the present. And so I assume either a mistake (ma-a for ma-an) or māga = manga. The subject I would identify as Aziru, who reappears unnamed in line 46 (see n. 9). On the meaning of the verb, see EA 106, n. 3.

4. Lines 15-23: see Or n.s. 29 (1960) pp. 4 and 15.
5. Lines 25-29: see JCS 4 (1950) p. 170.
6. ia-nu-am-mi LÚ-la te-i-ša a-na ša-šu-[nu]: accusative awīla, governed by iyānu, according to rule (JCS 2 [1948] p. 248); te'īša is from (w)iāšu, not from (w)ašū, since in the latter the preformative is always tu- (see lines 19, 56, and 62 in this letter). On a similar warning about the archers (feminine singular, by rule; see JCS 6 [1952] p. 78), cf. EA 137:44 and n. 8.
7. Lines 33-39: see Or n.s. 29 (1960) p. 14.
8. Rib-Hadda seems to imply that the sons of 'Abdi-Aširta were familiar with the Pharaoh's letter promising the arrival of archers, an event that would mean their deaths. The crime would be the capture of Byblos, an event rendering the arrival of the archers meaningless; see above, lines 25-30. Perhaps the murder of Pewure should also be included; see below, line 69.
9. yiqbu is in form singular, and the subject can only be Aziru, at this period at least primus inter pares (fratres); see Rainey, AOAT 8<sup>2</sup>, p. 21.
10. Or "all is healthy for a long time" (cf. Rainey, ibid.), "all is healthier than before" (cf. Thureau-Dangin; Dhorme, RB 33 [1924] p. 8 [also in Recueil É. Dhorme, p. 492]; Oppenheim, LFM).
11. Line 66: following Thureau-Dangin; cf. EA 162:42f. Line 67: ti-dī šu-na-i: cf. šannā'um, "hater, enemy" (AHw, p. 1164), but the comparison is questionable, and other interpretations are possible (Thureau-Dangin, Oppenheim, Rainey).

A joint report on Amqu (4)

TEXT: AO 7097.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Thureau-Dangin, RA 19 (1922) pp. 94f.; Rainey AOAT 8<sup>2</sup>, pp. 24f.

Say to the king, my lord, my god, my Sun:<sup>1</sup> Message of 'Abdi-Riša,<sup>2</sup> your servant, the ruler of E(ni)šasi.<sup>3</sup> I fall in the dirt under the feet of the king, my lord, 7 times and 7 times. 7-14 Look, we ar(e) in Amqu, in cities of the king, my lord, and Etakkama, the ruler of Qinsa, assisted the troops of Hatta and set the cities of the king, my lord, on fire. 15-23 May the king, my lord, take cognizance, and may the king, my lord, give archers that we may (re)gain the cities of the king, my lord, and dwell in the cities of the king, my lord, my god, my Sun.

NOTES

1. <sup>4</sup>UTU-ia, written on the reverse, was omitted in the copy; see RA 69 (1975) p. 155, n. 1. On this letter, see EA 174, n. 1. Joint reports 1-3 are EA 174-76.

2. Na'aman, UF 20 (1988) pp. 187f., suggests that -ri-ša is a mistaken metathesis for -ša-ri, an element well known in Hurrian names. Against this proposal is the fact that "servant of . . ." is a type of name unattested among the Hurrians (Gernot Wilhelm, private communication).

3. See EA 187, n. 1.

Justified war

TEXT: AO 7094.

COPY: Thureau-Dangin, RA 19 (1922) p. 104.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Thureau-Dangin, ibid., pp. 95f.; Rainey, AOAT 8<sup>2</sup>, pp. 26f.

To the king, my lord: Message of Ayyab, your servant. I fall at the feet of my lord 7 times and 7 times. I am the servant of the king, my lord, the dirt at his feet. 10-16 I have heard what the king, my lord, wrote to me through Atahmaya. Truly, I have guarded<sup>1</sup> very carefully [the cities]<sup>2</sup> of the king, my lord. 17-28 Moreover, note that it is the ruler of Ḫašura who has taken 3 cities from me. From the time I heard and verified this,<sup>3</sup> there has been waging of war against him. Truly, may the king, my lord, take cognizance, and may the king, my lord, give thought to his servant.

NOTES

1. aš-šur-<sup>r</sup>mi: following Thureau-Dangin; if aš-šur-<sup>r</sup>ru is the reading (Rainey), "I am guarding."

2. Though [KUR].MEŠ seems required by the space, KUR is only very rarely the object of našāru, and never with plural determinative, whereas URU + plural marker is quite common.

3. In lines 18f., the word order, subject-verb, stresses the identity of the one who took the cities. In line 21, the sequence šemū-amāru, "hear-see," brings out the fact of personal verification. Perhaps a-ma-ru is best taken as an infinitive, "I heard and then there was verification." Rainey postulates a West Semitism, "I commanded (the waging of war)."

Furnishing corvée workers

TEXT: AO 7098.

TRANSLITERATION AND TRANSLATION: Thureau-Dangin, ibid., pp. 97f.; Rainey, AOAT 8<sup>2</sup>, pp. 28f.

TRANSLATIONS: Ebeling, p. 378; Alt, Kleine Schriften zur Geschichte des Volkes Israel, vol. 3 (Munich, 1959), pp. 169ff.; Albright, ANET, p. 485; Borger, in Galling, ed., Textbuch zur Geschichte Israels<sup>2</sup> (Tübingen, 1968), p. 28; Na'aman, in M. Heltzer and E. Lipiński, eds., Society and Economy in the Eastern Mediterranean (ca. 1500-1000 B.C.), Orientalia Lovaniensia Analecta 23, pp. 180f.

Say [to the ki]ng, my lord and my [Su]n: Message of Biridiya, the loyal servant of the king. I fall at the feet of the king, my lord and my Sun, 7 times and 7 times.

8-14 May the king, my lord, take cognizance of his servant and his city. In fact, only I am cultivating : ab-ri-šu in Šunama, and only I am furnishing corvée workers. 15-23 But consider the mayors that are near me. They do not act as I do. They do not cultivate in Šunama, and they do not furnish corvée workers. 24-31 Only I : ia<sub>8</sub>-bu-du-un-ni (by myself) furnish corvée workers. From Yapu they come, from [my] resources here, (and) from Nuribta.<sup>1</sup> And may the king, my lord, take cognizance of his city.

NOTE

1. Lines 26-29: the language is quite ambiguous, and various translations have been proposed. Line 27: yi-la-ku, singular, subject massu, a collective; ištu šU-[ti/ia]. The restoration istu šu-[na-ma<sup>(ki)</sup>] (Albright, CAH 2/2, p. 106) is highly improbable, since throughout this letter, city names are preceded by URU. Na'aman reads "from [your?] hand," i.e., by the Pharaoh's authority they come to Megiddo ("here") from Yapu, an Egyptian garrison-city; whether, however, ištu qātīka can have this meaning is not clear.

Say to the king, my lord, my Sun, my god: Message of Šuwardata, your servant, the servant of the king and the dirt at your feet, the ground you tread on. I prostrate myself at the feet of the king, my lord, the Sun from the sky, 7 times and 7 times, both on the stomach and on the back.

11-19 May the king, my lord, be informed that the 'Apiru that rose up : na-aš-ša-a against the lands, the god of the king, my lord, gave to me,<sup>1</sup> and I smote him. And may the king, my lord, be informed that all my brothers have abandoned me. 20-28 Only 'Abdi-Ḫeba and I have been at war with (that) 'Apiru. Say to Endaruta, the ruler of Akšapa: Thus the king. He herewith dispatches to you this tablet, saying to you, Be on your guard. You are to guard the place of the king where you are.

6-21 The king herewith sends<sup>1</sup> to you Ḫanni, the son of Maireya, the stable overseer<sup>2</sup> of the king in Canaan. And what he tells you heed very carefully lest the king find fault in you. Every word that he tells you heed very carefully and carry out very carefully. And be on your guard! Be on your guard! Do not be negligent! And may you prepare before the arrival of the archers of the king food in abundance, wine (and) everything else in abundance. Indeed he is going to reach you very quickly, and he will cut off the heads of the enemies of the king.

22-25 And know that the king is hale like the Sun in the sky. For his troops and his chariots in multitude all goes very well.

NOTES

1. Liverani, Lingering over Words, pp. 341ff., maintains that the king here and in EA 369-70 announces an event of the future, "will send," but this is incompatible with the form of the verb, umtešer, which is clearly a perfect. It no more has future reference than uštēbilakku in line 3. In lines 18-20 the subject is the king, not Ḫanni. See also Introduction, n. 78.

2. akil tarbaši renders Egyptian bry ḫw; see Helck, Beziehungen, p. 438. For the rest of the letter, see the Introduction, sect. 5, and EA 99, n. 7.

To Milkilu, the ruler of Gazru: Thus the king. He herewith dispatches to you this<sup>1</sup> tablet, saying to you, He herewith sends to you Hanya, the stable (overseer) of the archers, along with everything for the acquisition of beautiful female cupbearers:<sup>2</sup> 9-14 silver, gold, linen garments: ma-al-ba-ši, carnelian, all sorts of (precious) stones, an ebony chair; all alike, fine things. Total (value): 160 diban.<sup>3</sup> Total: 40 female cupbearers, 40 (shekels of) silver being the price of a female cupbearer. 15-23 Send extremely beautiful female cupbearers in whom there is no defect, so the king, your lord, will say to you, "This is excellent, in accordance with the order<sup>4</sup> he sent to you." 24-32 And know that the king is hale like the Sun. For his troops, his ch[ariot]s, his horses, all goes very well. Aman has indeed put the Upper Land, the Lower Land, where the sun rises, where the sun sets, under the feet of the king.

NOTES

1. an-na-am<sup>1</sup>: see RA 69 (1975) p. 151, n. 2. This (elsewhere an-na-a) is one of several features that set EA 369 apart from the other letters to vassals (Introduction, sect. 5): (1) non-Hittite ductus; (2) ulšēbilakku (elsewhere uštēbilakku); (3) ana qabē (elsewhere qabē); (4) omission of qibīma; (5) conclusion of letter without parallel.

2. ša-qi-tu: see RA 69 (1975) p. 151, n. 2.

3. ī-ba-an: Egyptian dbn; on the reading, see Edell, GM 15 (1975) p. 12. The dbn weighed ca. 91 grams, and therefore the shekel here (10 shekels = 1 dbn) is not the Babylonian shekel (8.416 g) but the slightly heavier Syrian one (ca. 9 g).

NOTES

1. [yi-ma]-lik: cf. EA 85:38; 104:16. Izre'el includes EA 371 in the Amurru corpus (see n. 2). His collation of the tablet also suggested to him a wider tablet than allowed for here.

2. The town of Šehlalu figures prominently in 'Abdi-Aširta's adventures as told in EA 62.

3. 15 [ù ši-m]i EN-ia a-di 16 [a-na-ša-a]r aš-ri-šu-ù 17 [URU<sup>2</sup>.K]I<sup>2</sup>EN-ia ki-ma' [a-bi-ia] 18 ia-nu ŠA-ba ša-na-a[m] 19 [aš-šu]m . . . 20 [li]-de i-nu-ma la-a DÜG.GA 21 [šu-nu] . . . 22 [KUR.KUR].KI . . . 23 [a]-la-ki a-na pa-ni-šu-[nu] 24 [a-na-ša]-ru . . . Line 15: the imperative addressed to the king is fairly common, especially in letters from Byblos; line 16: the apparent genitive is a difficulty, and accepting Izre'el's larger format (see n. 1), one might suggest [pa-nu-ia a-na na-ša-a]r aš-ri-šu, "my purpose is to guard his place"; line 17: I could see only one final vertical at the beginning of the line, and the last sign is not clearly iš (Gordon); line 20: if not [li], then [yi], and at the end of the line DÜG.GA is quite clear (see copy); line 21: perhaps not enough room for [šu-nu] and not necessary for sense; line 22: the durative (?) tišbatūni (cf. EA 126, n. 12?) probably calls for some sort of plural object (no oblique wedge in qa-sign; correct copy); line 23: after -šu I could identify nothing as certainly traces of writing; line 24: I could not make out the last sign, but Rainey's ti seemed possible and Izre'el suggests ka<sub>4</sub> (QA).

4. [i-na] UZU pi-šu-nu: quite clear.

5. yi-iš-bat: quite clear; so already Rainey.

NOTE

1. On the assignment of this fragment to the Amarna archive, see Walker. The script, especially the forms of la and ni, argues for either Hittite or Egyptian provenience. Note, too, the form of address (see Introduction, sect. 4). The text is probably a letter, with the obverse and reverse of the editio princeps to be exchanged (I keep the lineation, however). If so, then it seems to be sent by one official to another, not by a king to another king. My translation is based on the following reading:

Reverse

Index of Proper Names

This index includes all the ancient proper names found in the introduction, the letters, and the notes to the letters. Where possible, the language of the personal names in the letters is identified and the names translated. It should be noted that many names classified here with the remark “language uncertain” have been considered by many scholars to be of Indo-Aryan origin. The analyses of these names, however, are often so divergent, and the objections against them so serious, that the option here is on the side of caution.

Abbreviations: Akk. = Akkadian; Egy. = Egyptian; Hitt. = Hittite; Hurr. = Hurrian; hypo. = hypocoristique; Kass. = Kassite; l.u. = language uncertain; Ugar. = Ugaritic; WS = West Semitic; DN = divine name; PN = personal name

The order is strictly alphabetical. Note the sequences: s, š, š; t, t, t. All references are to EA.
